30 In 1848-49 the price of opium was still lower than it was in 1847-48, but the quantity sold was 33,073 chests against 22,879 in 1847-48, and the quantity of Malwa opium registered for passports in 1848-49 was 21,456 chests against 10,969 in 1847-48, hence the increase of revenue from those sources, to 2,84,01,825 rupees, in 1848-49, against 1,66,15,039 rupees in 1847-48

31 In 1849-50 the net revenue from opium greatly exceeded that of any former period it having amounted to 3½ crores of rupees, and thus a surplus in the finances of India was realized sooner than could otherwise have been expected

32 The increase in the opium revenue in 1849-50 may be assumed at 70 lacs beyond the average amount of even favourable years To that extent we, therefore, consider your ordinary revenues were especially improved in that year

33. We think it important always to keep in view the serious financial effects to which we are liable from so large a dependence on an article, the value of which is of so fluctuating a character

34 The Sayer and Abkaree receipts, including the Moturpha tax at Madras, now yield upwards of a crore of rupees per annum. The increase in those receipts has been gradual since the year 1845-46, when they amounted to 92,71,077 rupees The last year's actual accounts, 1849-50, show that they had risen to 1,02,86,731 rupees, and they are estimated to produce a still larger amount in 1850-51.

35 The revenue from stamps in Bengal has gradually declined, since 1845–46, from 24 lacs to 22 lacs in 1850–51. In Agra there was a considerable increase in the stamp receipts in 1849–50, which was not, however, expected to be maintained, the amount estimated in 1850–51 being 1,40,000 rupees less than the actual receipts in 1849–50 The stamp receipts at Madras appear to have recovered from the depressed state to which they had fallen in the five years from 1844–45 to 1848–49, when they averaged little more than 3 lacs of rupees per annum They have now increased to nearly 4¼ lacs, which is, however, less than the annual receipts prior to 1844–45 The stamp duties at Bombay have also somewhat increased since 1844–45 The receipts from this source are, however, inconsiderable both at Madras and Bombay. Indeed, the whole revenue from stamps is less than 46 lacs per annum on the average of years

36 In reviewing the income received from subsidies, &c., we observe that the Nizam's Government paid, in 1848–49, on account of arrears of the Mahratta Choute the large sum of 7,84,255 rupees, in addition to the current year's contribution of 1,06,944 rupees, which accounts for the total receipts from subsidies, &c., in that year being so much larger than usual. The Nagpore subsidy of eight lacs per annum was paid regularly in the years from 1845–46 to 1848–49, but in 1849–50 six lacs only were received on that account, a most unusual circumstance, requiring explanation, as this subsidy has been hitherto paid with almost as much regularity as the tributes from Mysore, Travancore, &c.

37. The annual proceeds of the Tobacco Monopoly at Madras, since 1845-46, have not equalled the amount realised in that year, nor does there appear to be any tendency to improvement under this head of revenue at that presidency.

38 With respect to the receipts and charges connected with our Indian mints, we have no doubt that but for the gain on the copper coinage, the charges would considerably exceed the receipts The annexed statement shows that with the exception of the year 1849-50 this was the case in respect of the Calcutta mint, and we apprehend that similar results would be found in respect of the mints at Madras and Bombay, if the entries on the annual statements of those presidencies admitted of the same investigation

39 The difference between the price of the copper purchased for coinage, including charges of fabrication, and the nominal value of the coinage when issued, is properly regarded as profit, but as most of the coin is again returned to the public treasuries when defaced by wear, it becomes of less value to Government than what it originally cost as metal, and hence the profit first obtained is, to some extent, nominal

40 As the Indian mints take credit for the profits on the copper money issued, they ought to be charged with the losses incurred in the disposal of the old pyce, not only at the general treasury, but at every other treasury under Government Until this be done it will be impossible to ascertain accurately the financial result of the great circulation of copper money in India, and we strongly recommend that this course should be invariably followed for the future at each of the presidencies

41 With respect to the Post-office department, we observe that under the Presidency of Bengal the charges exceed the postage receipts, which is however counteracted by surplus receipts in the North Western provinces

Appendix, No. 12.

42. At Madras the charges are in excess of the Post-office receipts, and at Bombay they exceed the receipts to the extent of more than one and a half lacs of rupees per annum on the average, which, we presume, may be accounted for by the explanation given by the Postmaster-general at Bombay, in a letter dated 20th May 1847, received through your Government, in reference to our observations on the results of previous years to have arisen "from the greatly increased overland communication between England and India having rendered it necessary for Government to make additions to the Bombay postal establishments, on which devolve the duty and expense of sorting and despatching the overland mails for all India, and of carrying them beyond the limits of this presidency, whilst the inland postage realized on by far the greatest portion of the overland letters and papers, instead of being exhibited as a portion of the receipts of Bombay is carried to the credit of the Calcutta, Madras, and Agra presidencies."

43 We presume that the inland postage thus alluded to was realised within the presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Agra, in which case it would be properly applicable to those presidencies But if the postage was realized within the presidency of Bombay it should have been credited as a receipt of that presidency, it being inconvenient and useless to adjust, in the account of supplies between the presidencies, particular items of receipt and charge which may be thought more applicable to one presidency than to another.

44 That the overland communications with India and the improvement in the postal arrangements in the interior have added largely to the charges of Government, there can be no doubt, and we trust the advantages to the public and to commerce have been more than commensurate thereto It will nevertheless be proper to conduct the altered system with as much economy as is consistent with an efficient discharge of all the duties connected with the postal administration.

45 In paragraph 31 of our despatch, dated 25th October 1848, No 41, we remarked that the improvement which had taken place in the revenues of Singapore, Penang, and Malacca in 1841-42 was not expected to be maintained in the years 1846-47 and 1847-48, which has proved to be the case, the deterioration having in fact been greater than was estimated Since 1847-48 there has been some improvement, but the average receipts are still short of seven lacs of rupees per annum, while the charges, exclusive of the pay of the troops employed in the eastern settlements, but including all other military charges, average more than 12 lacs of rupees per annum.

47 Following the course pursued in our despatch above mentioned, we insert in the margin the ordinary receipts from the province of Scinde since its acquisition, in the year 1843–44 In 1847–48 the revenue from Scinde amounted to rather more than 30 lacs, but it has since deteriorated to about 28½ lacs per annum

Gwalior State

1843–44 In part compensation for losses sustained, &c - Rs 3,20,220

1843–44 Received on account war charges - - Rs 10,00,000

1849–50 Received from the Gwalior state, for compensation, &c Rs 2,92,778

48 In paragraph 35 of our despatch just referred to, we observed that payment had been obtained from the Gwalior Durbar of 3,20,220 rupees, "in part of compensation for losses sustained during, and in consequence of, the late hostilities" with that state, whereas five lacs was assumed in the treaty as the amount of compensation to be defrayed, we now find that a further payment was made on that account by the Gwalior state in 1849–50, which makes more than 6 lacs, irrespective of the 10 lacs received in 1843–44 on account of the war charges

49 The sum of 1,11,092 rupees, credited in the Bengal statement for 1848–49, as received on account of compensation for losses sustained during the hostilities with the State of Gwalior, appears by the general books for the same year, to have been erroneously entered in the statement, that item being applicable to the head of "Scindia's Reformed Contingent," should have been included in the debt account It also appears by the general books that the balance due by Government at the close of the year 1848–49 on account of "Scindia's Reformed Contingent" was 5,26,473 rupees, and on account of the "Gwalior Contingent, under treaty of the 13th January 1844," 22,45,558 rupees.

50 By the treaty with the late Government of Lahore, dated 9th March 1846, a crore and half of rupees were to be paid to the British Government as an indemnification for the expenses of the war then concluded, and for the security of such payment the Maharajah ceded certain territories in the hill countries of the Punjab. The greater portion of this territory was, however, by treaty of the 16th March 1846, made over by the British Government to Maharajah Goolab Sing, for which he undertook to pay a moiety (75 lacs) of the indemnity of the crore and half already mentioned. The total amount received from both sources, according to the annexed statement, is only 1,19,20,860 Company's rupees; or, at the exchange laid down in the Bombay revised assay table, 1,18,31,334 Nanuckshabee rupees, of which amount the Sikh government paid 49,26,846 Nanuckshabee rupees, and Golab Sing, 69,04,488 Nanuckshabee rupees There consequently remains unpaid, on account of the indemnity, about 31 lacs Of this sum 25 lacs was owing by the Sikh government at the period of its deposition, and there is owing also by the Maharajah Golab Sing, nearly six lacs, which we presume will be forthcoming at an early period, although nothing is credited in the Bengal Estimate for 1850-51 on that account

51 It was also stipulated by article 9 of the Treaty with the Government of Lahore, of 16th December 1846, "That the Lahore State shall pay to the British Government 22 lacs of News Nanuckshabee rupees, of full tale and weight per annum," for the maintenance of the troops employed in the Lahore territories Under this arrangement upwards of 50 lacs of Nanuckshabee rupees ought to have been paid to the British Government, whereas 14 lacs only appear to have been received on that account No faith was therefore kept by the Lahore government in either of their engagements, and the subsequent rebellion and war ended in the necessary annexation of the Punjab to the British territory

53. It will be seen by the foregoing statement, which embraces one year's actual and two years' estimated receipts and charges, that the land revenue from the Punjab may be assumed at about a crore of rupees per annum at present The syer, abkaree and produce of salt mines, which in 1849-50 yielded less than 12 lacs, are estimated at 30 lacs in 1851-52. The Customs duties which amounted to nearly six lacs of rupees in 1849-50, have been abolished. The net revenue from stamps will probably amount to about a lac per annum, and the post-office receipts in excess of the charges are estimated in 1851-52 at 50,000 rupees.

54 The total ordinary revenue of the Punjab in 1849-50, is stated to have amounted to 1,16,08,958 rupees In 1850-51, it is estimated at 1,26,37,000 rupees, and in 1851-52, at 1,30,00,000 rupees In the latter year a considerable increase was expected in the sayer and salt receipts, in respect of which Mr. Morey, the officiating accountant, observed in his letter to your financial secretary, dated 19 August 1851, " So far as my present means of information enables me to judge, I am of opinion that the actual increase from those sources will be quite as much, if not more, than what I have reckoned upon for the present year "

55 The ordinary revenue of the Punjab may, therefore, we think, be assumed at about 130 lacs per annum

56 With respect to the charges, it seems to be more difficult at present to form any clear idea of their probable annual amount The charges of 1849-50 evidently afford no criteria of the amount likely to be incurred in subsequent years The estimates for 1850-51 and 1851-52 assume the ordinary charges at 93 and 96 lacs respectively This large amount is reached by considerable augmentations of charge under several heads The revenue, abkaree and salt charges, which in 1850-51 are taken at 14,62,000 rupees, are in 1851-52 estimated at 17,65,000 rupees, being an increase of above three lacs of rupees. In the judicial charges, the increase is nearly as large, the addition to the general charges is nearly two lacs, and the political pensions are raised from 15 lacs to 18½ lacs in that year, and thus the reduction of 8½ lacs in the expense of the local corps is more than absorbed by augmentations of charge The extraordinary charges for civil buildings and works are taken at 19 and 16 lacs respectively, the average of those charges, ordinary and extraordinary, would be 112 lacs per annum, which being deducted from a revenue of 130 lacs would leave a surplus of only 18 lacs per annum, but supposing the cost of civil buildings and works to be hereafter reduced, as we trust they will be, to 5 lacs per annum, and the charges to remain at about 95 lacs, the annual surplus would be 30 lacs This, however, includes none of the charges of the regular troops, nor the expenses of barrack accommodation for the army

57 In your letter dated 15th August 1851, No 46, paragraphs 38 to 46, reference is made to the finances of the Punjab, and reports from the officiating accountant at Agra upon the subject are quoted, from which it is evident that no accurate conclusion had been reached as to the probable amount of the surplus He says, "I would not, therefore, venture for the present to assume more than 40 lacs of surplus, nor do I think that the permanent result of the annexation of the Punjab upon the Indian finances will be satisfactorily ascertained till the actual accounts of 1852-53 are brought to a close"

58 We feel assured that you will see the necessity of exercising a vigilant supervision of every branch of the establishments in this new territory, with a view of keeping the total expenditure of the Punjab within the narrowest limit compatible with its efficient government We desire to impress this the more strongly upon you, as there appears to us to be a tendency to enlarged expenditure in those districts

59 Before we quit the subject of the Punjab finances, it may be proper to explain that the view indicated in paragraph 6 of our despatch, dated 5th February 1851, No 10, in respect of the year 1849-50 is erroneous, and that the error was occasioned by the receipts and charges of the Cis and Trans Sutlej States having been included with those of the Punjab in the statement which accompanied our Governor-general's letter, dated 13th November 1850, No 40

Scinde

60 In paragraph 55 of our former review, we inserted a statement of the charges on account of the province of Scinde, from the acquisition of the territory in 1843-44 to the latest information then before us We now continue that statement from the accounts since received

61 It is exceedingly difficult to arrive at an accurate view of the annual charges of the province of Scinde, from the irregular mode of bringing them to account, as shown in the preceding statement Combining the charges of the six years from 1844-45 to 1849-50, we find the average amount, after deducting the revenue, to have been about 31 ½ lacs per annum It is satisfactory to observe, however, that the charge has been much diminished in later years, and that, in the year 1850-51, a net charge is estimated of only 15,76,390 rupees We shall be glad to learn that so extensive an amelioration is realized

62 In the year 1848-49 the receipts and charges of the province of Scinde were transferred from the Bengal to the Bombay accounts, but there was an arrear of 9,27,694 rupees for commissariat charges of former years, included in the Bengal accounts of that year, which forms a part of the total charges of the six years upon which the above average has been struck, exclusive of that sum, the average charge of Scinde upon the revenues of India would be about 30 lacs per annum

63 The estimate for 1850-51 promises a far more favourable result, the net charge being assumed at 15 ¾ lacs We are afraid, however, this is a more sanguine view than the expenditure of preceding years would justify us in adopting at present, as the cost of the province of Scinde, exclusive of the expense of the regular troops of the Scinde division of the army, which we estimate at 20 lacs more, at least

64 We consider that 20 lacs may be assumed as probable charge on account of Scinde, exclusive of the pay of the regular troops as above

Sattarah

65 The annexation of the territory of Sattarah to the Presidency of Bombay will occasion a new entry in the accounts for 1850-51, to exhibit the receipts and charges of that territory According to the estimate for 1850-51 the charges exceed the receipts by upwards of 3 ½ lacs, as shown in the following abstract

Estimated Receipts and Charges of Sattarah, 1850-51

| Receipts | Rs. | Charges | Rs |
| General department | 18,600 | Political stipends | 3,60,850 |

| | | Add, amount of extraordinary charges in excess of extraordinary receipts | 2,720 |
| Rs | 24,06,230 | Rs | 24,06,230 |

66 We certainly were not prepared to find that the annexation of "Sattarah" would entail a charge upon the general resources of India; and we hope that the actual accounts will dispel the unfavourable views given in the estimates for 1850-51 and 1851-52, which assume that the charges will exceed the receipts in the sums of 3,53,830 rupees, and 1,59,410 rupees in those years respectively Assuming that the estimated results only are realized in 1851-52, it appears that the charges will have admitted of considerable reduction, and we desire that your attention be especially directed to the improvement of the financial result of that territory, so that it may be rendered an advantage rather than a burden to our administration

67 Having for the sake of convenience reviewed together the charges, as well as the revenues of the lately acquired territories in the Punjab, Scinde and Sattarah, we proceed to review the other charges of the several presidencies

68 In continuation of the statement of the general charges inserted in the margin of paragraph 39 of our despatch, dated 25th October 1848, No. 41, we annex a similar view of those charges for the subsequent years, and we have again to remark, that the increase observable in some years is chiefly nominal, and arises "from bringing to account at Bombay of larger payments than formerly in respect of enams, &c " The apparent decrease in the charges subsequently to 1847-48, is also chiefly nominal, and results from the transfer to a separate head of the expense of Scinde The reduced amount of the charges of the two last actual years 1848-49 and 1849-50, however, exhibits a very considerable increase as compared with the first three years of the account, of which the present is a continuation

In the years 1838-39 to 1840-41 the general charges, including stipends, &c , amounted on the average to 3,79,12,800, rupees, the average charge in the two last years, was 4,55,51,202 rupees, which shows an increase of about 76 lacs of rupees, but of this amount, 61 lacs is occasioned by an alteration in the mode of stating the stipends, enamdars and allowances to zemindars in the Bombay accounts

69 With a view of showing the extent to which the general charges stated in the margin of the preceding paragraph, are influenced by the stipends, pensions, &c , we insert the annual amount of those payments at each presidency, from 1845-46 to 1850-51, inclusive.

70 Deducting the above stipends, &c, from the general charges, we find an increase of charge in 1846-47 of nearly 17 lacs of rupees, as compared with the amount in 1845-46, and a further increase of six lacs in 1847-48. In 1846-47, the increase was principally occasioned by an addition to the provincial battalions in Bengal, by an additional outlay in repairs to public buildings, &c In 1847-48, there was also an addition of about five lacs in the charge for provincial battalions in the North-west Provinces

71. Since 1847-48, the general charges would appear to have averaged less than their amount in 1845-46, but this is explained by the transfer as already stated of the charges on account of the province of Scinde from the general department in the Bengal accounts to a separate head in the Bombay accounts On the whole, while we are warranted, by frequent experience, in entertaining doubts of the realization of the low estimate of these charges for the year 1850-51, we trust that their amount will not have exceeded the average of the two preceding years It would be still more satisfactory to find those charges reduced to their amount in the years which preceded the acquisition of Scinde, which we trust will be found practicable without impairing the efficacy of the services required to be discharged.

72 In the six years reviewed the general charges, stipends, &c. amount to 27,17,54,247 rupees, of which 13,77,53,502 rupees appertain to stipends, &c, being more than a moiety of the whole amount, and averaging nearly 230 lacs per annum, abstracted from the revenue We have before conveyed to you our earnest desire that the course of these charges should be carefully watched, so as to effect reductions in their amount upon the death of existing incumbents, wherever it is practicable.

73 In paragraphs 41 and 42 of our former review we remarked upon the increase which had occurred in the judicial charges, and stated that it would be desirable to inquire into the causes thereof, "with the view of effecting every practicable reduction." Those charges have apparently since been reduced, as will be seen by the annexed statement, to the extent of about 10 lacs per annum, but the reduction is wholly attributable to the abolition of the military police under the criminal courts in the North Western Provinces, the cost of which was about 13 lacs per annum

74 The Bengal Judicial Charges have somewhat increased since 1845-46, while those at Madras and Bombay exhibit a slight decrease since that period The observations quoted above, relating to their reduction, are therefore still applicable to the Judicial Charges generally.

75 The revenue charges, as shown in the annexed statement, include the expense of surveys, expenditure on canals in the North-western provinces, and in repairs of tanks at Madras The variation in the extent of expenditure on those works, annually, necessarily occasions fluctuations in the total charges of the revenue department

Appendix, No. 12.

| | Bombay | 27,68,913 | 1,81,65,748 |
| 1848–49 | Bengal | 41,43,964 | |
| | Agra | 56,55,643 | |
| | Madras | 54,62,718 | |
| | Bombay | 28,20,812 | 1,80,83,187 |
| 1849–50 | Bengal | 41,30,082 | |
| | Agra | 58,55,380 | |
| | Madras | 54,46,606 | |
| | Bombay | 28,05,111 | 1,82,37,179 |
| 1850–51 (Estimated) | Bengal | 40,37,376 | |
| | Agra | 75,85,000 | |
| | Madras | 55,16,230 | |
| | Bombay | 28,74,460 | 2,00,13,066 |

76 In 1845–46 the expenditure under the three heads indicated amounted to 16,61,509 rupees; in 1846–47, to 18,51,089 rupees; 1847–48, to 30,68,907 rupees, 1848–49 to 29,29,690 rupees, 1849–50, to 30,60,201 rupees, estimated, 1850–51, to 47,33,890 rupees.

77 Allowing for the increased outlay in those works, as specified in the annexed statement, there will still remain a considerable increase in the revenue charges, which will then stand as follow:

| | Rs |
|---|---|
| 1845–46 | 1,45,32,173 |
| 1846–47 | 1,49,42,897 |
| 1847–48 | 1,50,96,841 |
| 1848–49 | 1,51,53,447 |
| 1849–50 | 1,51,76,978 |
| 1850–51 (Estimated) | 1,52,79,176 |

A progressive increase of charge from four lacs in 1846–47, to nearly 6 ½ lacs in 1849–50, is thus shown to have occurred in the revenue department, while the estimate for 1850–51 indicates a further increase of a lac of rupees.

78 This increase of charge demands your investigation, not only with a view to put a stop to it, but to effect a reduction in the existing amount of the revenue charges Some allowance must be made for the increase of charge in 1846-47, and subsequent years, as compared with the amount in 1845-46, by the annexation of the territory on the Sutlej to the North-western Provinces, but although an immediate increase at that time may thus be accounted for, that circumstance will not furnish sufficient reason to justify the progressive increase in the charges of collecting the revenue in those provinces It is manifest also that, without any accession of territory, a progressive increase has occurred in the revenue charges at Madras, as exhibited in the margin In the year 1839-40 the charge of collection was 21,58,906 rupees; in 1849-50 it was 23,81,827 rupees, having increased more than 10 per cent between the two periods We regret to observe that the estimated charge in 1850-51 is still higher.

79 At Bombay the charges of collecting the revenue are not so distinctly shown as at Madras, but there is good reason to suppose, from the increase which has occurred in the total amount of revenue charges at that presidency, since 1839-40, that a similar augmentation in the charges of collection has also taken place there, the revenue charges having increased from 21,67,117 rupees in 1839-40 to 24,94,070 rupees in 1849-50, or 15 per cent., and the estimate for 1850-51 being still higher.

80 The Customs charges have also increased since 1845-46 In Agra this increase may be accounted for by the extension of the Customs line to the newly acquired territory on the Sutlej, but as respects Bombay, we certainly expected to find a diminution rather than an increase of charge, the receipts having fallen off since that period

If this sum were added to those charges the average amount of the whole would be little short of 55 lacs per annum, against which should be set the Marine receipts on account of pilotage, port, and light dues, the earnings of the steamers, and the portion of the passage-money derived from the steam packet service (the other portion being allotted to the commanders). These receipts altogether average, according to the annexed statement, about 14 ½ lacs per annum.

The extraordinary receipts in excess of the charges average about 3½ lacs per annum, which being added to the 14½ lacs of ordinary receipts make a total deduction of 18 lacs from 55 lacs of charge, leaving a result of 37 lacs as the annual net amount of the Indian Navy and Marine charges. This charge involves such wide and various descriptions of expenditure that it requires to be kept under rigid control, and we trust that no effort will be spared to accomplish a careful revision of that expenditure, and to effect, if it can be done without impairing the efficiency of the service a reduction in the amount of those charges We observe amongst the charges at Bombay, a very large item for the purchase of stores, against which there is a set-off for stores sold, averaging about one third of the amount purchased. We do not understand why so large a portion of those stores, as shown in the margin, are again sold, no doubt at a sacrifice The system appears to us to be liable to abuse, and should be carefully inquired into.

Appendix, No. 12.

85 In comparing the amount of the ordinary military expenditure in 1838–39, with the amount in each successive year down to 1850–51, we find an accumulated increase of charge of no less an amount than 21,67,93,572 rupees, which is exclusive of the increased charges for arms and other military stores supplied from this country, and also of the additional expenses incurred here on account of the increase and transport to India of the Queen's troops, urgently called for, and in the amount of military pay and off-reckonings to officers at home

86 But there are other important items of expense entered in the India accounts, under the head of "Extraordinary Military Charges," which must not be overlooked in our endeavours to arrive at an approximation of the cost of military operations These were much augmented at the period of the Expedition to Affghanistan in 1838–39, and have since been maintained and increased by the subsequent hostilities in which you have been engaged We shall therefore exhibit the amount of the extraordinary military charges incurred since 1838–39, as they appear in your accounts, and deduct therefrom the amount of the extraordinary military receipts, and add the remainder to the ordinary charges already specified.

87 The extraordinary military charges comprise during war the cost of additional commissariat supplies, extra allowances to the troops, donation batta, compensation for loss of baggage, &c &c

88 The extraordinary military receipts comprehend the refund of advances in excess of the charges admitted, the proceeds of stores and cattle sold, bazaar collections, soldiers' stoppages and various items of receipt arising from adjustment of accounts, &c In time of peace the extraordinary receipts usually exceed the extraordinary charges In 1838–39, for instance, the excess of receipts amounted to 20 lacs of rupees, while in every succeeding year, the greater part of which may be regarded as a period of continued warfare, as respects expenditure, there was a large excess of extraordinary charge, as will be shown in a statement following this paragraph The accumulated excess from 1839-40 to 1850-51 inclusive, amounts to 7,05,76,473 rupees, which being added to the accumulated excess of ordinary charge already specified make a total amount of 28,73,70,045 rupees This sum does not, however, include the cost of the additional stores supplied from this country during the period in question, which forms a part of the home charges, allowing but a little more than a crore of rupees for this, we arrive at a conclusion that, consequent on the military operations which have occurred since the Affghan Expedition was undertaken, there has been an aggregate increased expenditure for military charges of 30 crores of rupees

Appendix, No 12

90 We see no advantage in entering into a detailed examination now of the enormous increase in the military charges since the year 1838–39, believing, as we do, that such increase is attributable to the series of military operations in which our armies have been more or less engaged from that period. Happily, tranquillity has been restored, and the authority of British rule in India maintained, but at a cost both in life and treasure which has been very great

91 The charge for interest has necessarily increased with the augmentation of the debt during and subsequently to the military operations already mentioned In the year 1839–40 the interest charged in the Bengal accounts was just 132 lacs It has since progressively increased to 222 lacs, as follows, viz.

92 We have already explained the grounds upon which we had come to the conclusion that 30 crores had been expended in increased military charge since 1838–39, and we have now shown that 5 ¾ crores more have been paid for interest on the money borrowed in India

93 The remittances from India being insufficient to defray the home charges, we were compelled to increase our bond debt in the sum of 2,165,200 l, which has occasioned a further charge for interest, since 1840–41, of 444,908 l or 47,45,685 rupees This sum being added to the interest stated in the Bengal accounts, shows an aggregate additional charge for interest on money borrowed of 623 lacs, which has principally resulted from the series of military operations and actual hostilities in which India has been engaged since 1838–39

This additional expenditure appears to have been met partly by borrowing in India, and at home partly by indemnity money, &c , from the Lahore and other states, to the extent of nearly a crore and a half, and the remainder we assume to have been obtained by the augmentation of the revenues since 1838–39, which, but for the increase principally of military charge, would have yielded a large surplus

94 We are afraid that the recent expedition against the Burmese will interrupt for a time so extensive a reduction in the military charges as might otherwise have been expected. We are not without hope, however, that with some retrenchments in the civil charges a deficiency will be averted in 1852–53 In our letter in this department, of 19th August 1846, No 22, paragraph 136, we showed that the expense of the civil establishments of Bengal had risen, between the years 1830 and 1841, from 64 to 89 lacs of rupees per annum, and in our letter of 9th October 1850, No 39, paragraph 2, we pointed out that between February 1844 and December 1848, the net increase of civil salaries and establishments had exceeded 36 lacs of rupees per annum These additional charges necessarily augmented the annual deficit when it occurred

95 We have likewise found it necessary on several occasions to remark that a considerable part of the money recently borrowed remains in your treasuries, and has augmented your cash balances, which have been gradually increasing for some time past, and are of higher amount, by some crores of rupees, than we consider the exigencies of the public service require

96 While adverting to this point we may remark, that the latest estimate of their amount, on the 30th April 1852, exhibits the large, and, we believe, the unprecedented sum of 13,52,10,893 rupees, as expected to be lying in the Indian Treasuries at that date, of which nearly 3¾ crores were in those of the Bombay Presidency, where no demand for so large a sum is at all likely to arise. We invite your most earnest attention to these circumstances, and to the urgent expediency of applying the excess of your cash balances to the liquidation of a portion of your debt, or to an extensive reduction of the amount of interest now payable upon it

97. Having concluded our review of the most important heads of the revenues and charges of India during the last five years, we insert a summary of the Indian view from 1834-35 to the latest advices received.

100 However gloomy the foregoing statement may appear, viewed as a whole, it will be obvious, on reference to the years of peace, as distinguished from those of war, that the Indian resources, under ordinary circumstances, are not only ample to cover all necessary expenditure, but sufficient to yield a considerable surplus towards the liquidation of debt contracted in war or for outlay in public improvements.

101 In the six years from 1833-34 to 1838-39, before the effect of the Affghan Expedition was materially felt, the Indian finances yielded an average surplus of nearly half a million In the next 10 years, from 1839-40 to 1848-49, which may be regarded financially as an uninterrupted period of warfare, involving the campaigns of Affghanistan, in Scinde and in the Punjab, we find that the aggregate charges exceeded the revenues in the sum of 15,048,702 l, being an average deficiency of a million and a half a year

102 The costliness of Indian warfare is necessarily great, it being generally prosecuted at distances from our settled dominions, which occasions large sacrifices both in life and money The Burmese war, as well as that in Affghanistan, are memorable examples of this fact The Burmese war, which commenced in 1824 and terminated in 1826, occasioned so great a pressure on the finances, that there was a deficiency for several years afterwards, and there is little doubt but that war cost 15 000,000 l, and augmented the debt of India from 26,468,475 l, the amount at which it stood on the 30th April 1824, to 39,948,488 l, its amount on the 30th April 1830, being an increase of thirteen millions and a half

103 From 1830 to 1834 the Indian debt would appear, from the Parliamentary accounts, to have undergone a considerable reduction, but this in reality was not the case, the difference between the amount of the debt at the two periods being more than accounted for by the relative value of the Indian currency in sterling money, as converted at the high rates of exchange which were formerly used in those accounts, and the rate of 2*s* the Sicca rupee, adopted after the passing of the Act of 3 & 4 Will 4, c 85 The amount of Indian debt bearing interest on the 30th April 1834 (the commencement of the new era), is shown, in order to compare it with the amount in subsequent years, and to notice shortly the principal causes of the fluctuations, observable at different periods

| 1834 - | 35,463,483 |

104 It will be seen from the statement in the margin, that a rapid reduction was effected in the debt from 1834 to 1836 This was accomplished by the application of a portion of the Company's commercial assets to that object The large surplus revenue obtained in the three succeeding years, from 1835-36 to 1837-38, proportionately increased the Indian cash balances, and obviated the necessity of borrowing funds for the Affghan Expedition The debt was, therefore, not materially increased between the years 1836 and 1840 Towards the close of the year 1840-41 the cash balances had, however, fallen too low to sustain the heavy demands which continued to press on the treasury, recourse was, therefore, had to the money market A Five per Cent Loan was accordingly opened in March 1841, and closed in January 1843, upwards of five crores of rupees having been subscribed to it within that period This supply had become necessary by the revolt in Cabool in the winter of 1841, and the downfall of the power of Shah Soojah, which occasioned the most serious disasters to the British arms Measures of retaliation, and punishment for the treachery and murders committed by the Affghans, were promptly and successfully executed by our army within the following year 1842 The war with Scinde, which had likewise occurred, having also terminated, your Government were enabled to close the Five per Cent Loan

105. Affairs having thus assumed a brighter prospect, you considered that the deficiency which still continued, though reduced in amount, might be supplied by a loan bearing a lower rate of interest. A new Four per Cent Loan was accordingly advertised, and kept open from February 1843 to October 1846, the produce of which was about 2½ crores of rupees Supplies being, however, more urgently required for the new Sikh war than could be obtained at that rate of interest, you were compelled to re-open the Five per Cent Loan, and you continued to receive subscriptions at this rate of interest to the 7th April 1851, being two years after the annexation of the Punjab to the British possessions. The subscriptions from the re-opening of the Five per Cent. Loan, in October 1846, to its closing in April 1851, amounted to 8½ crores of rupees.

106 It will have been observed by the statement of the Indian debt bearing interest, inserted in the margin of paragraph 102, that the increase of debt between the year 1839, when the expenses of the Affghan war pressed so heavily on the finances, and the commercial assets had become exhausted, and the year 1850, when the Punjab war had terminated, amounted to 16,676,902 l, of which upwards of five-sixths was borrowed at an interest of 5 per cent.

107. When we last addressed you on the general state of the finances of India, under date 25th October 1848, No 41, we entertained a very strong hope that your difficulties had at length been overcome by the establishment of peace throughout India, and we hailed with satisfaction the announcement of the measures which Viscount Hardinge had planned, before retiring from the Government; for reducing the expenditure.

108 Peace was, however, too soon interrupted, by the flagrant conduct of the Sikh army and chiefs, to admit of the early amelioration in the Indian finances which Lord Hardinge confidently relied upon on his quitting India. The generous policy of his Lordship towards the young Maharajah Dhuleep Sing and the Sikh nation, after the occupation of the city of Lahore by our army, made but a transient impression on the sirdars and chiefs, for they soon secretly violated the engagements of the State by a series of intrigues, the object of which could not be mistaken, treachery, rebellion, and open hostilities, followed in quick succession

109 The renewal of war in the Punjab thus frustrated the measures in progress for bringing the expenditure of India within its resources. Grievous as this disappointment has been to us, we must admit that the war, on the part of our Government, was inevitable. The papers relating to the Punjab, laid before Parliament by command of Her Majesty in 1849, fully demonstrate this fact, and convince us that nothing short of surrendering British authority in that part of India at least, could have prevented the collision which was the result of the invasion of our territory, and which ended in the annihilation of the Sikh Government.

110 In the admirable review of our relations with the Punjab by the Governor-general, the Marquis of Dalhousie, dated Sidham, 7th April 1849, No 20, and printed in continuation of the Papers relating to the Punjab before Parliament, already noticed, it is clearly shown, that the real object of the Sikhs from the beginning, was the destruction of the British power in the East, for which purpose they not only invited the aid of Dost Mahomed Khan from Caboul, but "laboured to induce other states and sovereigns in India to attack us also." The question at issue was, therefore, one of national safety on our part, and called for extraordinary vigour, and the continuance for a time of war expenditure on a heavy scale "Every regiment," the Marquis of Dalhousie observes, "which could be made available, without rashly weakening the provinces in India, was ordered to the frontier. The native army was immediately augmented, a reinforcement of European troops was applied for. The Government of Bombay was requested to dispatch a strong division to Mooltan from the side of Scinde The Government of Fort St. George was solicited to supply by its troops the places of additional regiments which were ordered to be sent to the frontier from Bengal"

111 The exertions of our Indian Government were happily crowned with entire success a second time in the Punjab, and the territory, as an act of the last necessity, has been annexed to the British empire in India This result will prevent the recurrence of such expensive and devastating wars as have prevailed since the death of Runjeet Sing, with whom the British Government had been on terms of amity for 30 years, and will prove, we trust, at no distant period, of mutual advantage to the people and to our Government, by a just administration of the affairs of the country.

112. We have received your letter, dated 5th December 1851, No. 64, reporting on the sketch estimates of the revenues and charges of India for the year 1851-52, and we regret to find that they exhibit a final deficiency, after including the Home charges, of 78,84,678 rupees

113 We have not overlooked the compensating circumstances that, within the period under review, considerable outlays have been made in the prosecution of public works, such as must eventually contribute largely to the improvement of Her Majesty's Indian territories

EXTRAORDINARY CHARGES in SKETCH ESTIMATES for 1851-52

| | Rs | Rs |

| | Rs | 91,35,700 |

We observe that more than 82 lacs have been thus applied, and further, that a sum exceeding 9 lacs is included in the general expenditure for war charges at Aden, and for some miscellaneous objects not of a character likely to recur in succeeding years The aggregate amount of these charges exceeds the sum by which your total income appears to be deficient, as compared with the total expenditure But as the larger portion of the cost of these public works is applicable to such as are in progress only, and which will call for similar outlays in future years, we cannot but regard with much anxiety the existing deficiency, and we feel the importance of impressing in the strongest manner upon your consideration, the necessity of using your most strenuous endeavours to effect, by every practicable economy and retrenchment consistent with the due administration of the public service, such reductions of charge and debt as may conduce to the restoration of a favourable balance between the receipts and expenditure of the Indian finances

APPENDIX

EXTRACT (Paragraphs 8, 16, 17, 26, 27, 36, 49, 50, 51, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 and 71) of a Letter from M Smith, Esq, Sessions Judge in the Saugor and Nurbudda Territories, No 41, dated 6 May 1851.

8 The distance, however, of these territories from the seat of the Sudder Court at Agra, does in truth constitute a formidable obstacle to the free exercise of the right of appeal now possessed under the law by all criminals, and might seem to present sufficient warrant for relaxing the rule under which petitions of appeal are not transmittable by dâk, but must be presented by mookhtear, in favour of the people of districts so remote as these are from the appellate tribunal This subject was alluded to in paragraph 4 of my last criminal report

16. In a particular case which arose, I informed the joint magistrate that I was not aware of an attempt by a beggar coming from a foreign state (Tehree) to sell his child within the limits of Saugor district, without any proof of an intention to sell it into slavery, or for purposes of traffic or other unlawful object, being legally indictable and punishable under the existing law If the party had imported the child for the purpose of traffic into our territory, and there sold or tried to sell it as a slave, the penal provisions of Regulation III 1832 (not altered in that respect by Act V 1843) would doubtless apply, see Construction 955 In the present instance, the impelling motive to sell appeared to have been want, in years of famine such sales have occurred by hundreds, and the criminal courts could of course take no cognizance of the cases, from their very multitude The latitude to which transactions of this nature used to proceed in the very place I now write from, at no remote date, seems correctly set forth in Construction No 887

17. I hope my instruction in this instance was not opposed to the spirit of the law

26 The deputy commissioner's report alludes to the crime of cattle-stealing, as apparently so prevalent in the pergunnah of Mundla Even if the returns should exhibit the truth, there would be much excuse for the inability of the scanty local police body to cope with such an evil in the extensive uncivilized tracts composing that jurisdiction, but Major M'Adam s belief, that many of the cases reported as cattle theft, are in point of fact instances of cattle straying, and loss consequent on the neglect of the owners themselves, who by such report hope to obtain the aid of the police in their recovery, still further alters the case, and leaves little to condemn except the apathy and careless unconcern of the proprietors of the herds

27 With all these deductions, however, cattle-stealing in a wild country, bordering on the Nagpore frontier, is no doubt common, and practised with much impunity The Tehseeldar suggested the utility of requiring all parties selling cattle in the district to furnish themselves with a "mark" from the police, without showing which purchasers were to be warned not to buy, as, however, stolen cattle is probably oftener carried out of our territory for disposal beyond its limits than sold within it, such a check could only be very limited in operation, while I concurred with Major MacAdam in his estimate of two evils as likely to result from such a requirement, 1st The hardship imposed on the people in making them come long distances to the thannah for sanction, whenever they might want to sell their cattle, 2d The opportunities of oppression and corruption which it would give to the police, with reference to the unsophisticated character of the Gond classes

36 In remarking on the large apparent amount of property stolen in the past year (set down as more than doubling the value reported in 1848), which is in strong contrast with the very insignificant amount recovered, the deputy commissioner comments on the great tendency that exists to exaggerate losses of this kind, and how little dependence can be placed in, or implicit credit given to, the estimates furnished by the sufferers This is a fact my own experience, in trying charges of this description, fully confirms, and in a subsequent part of this report, will lead me to observe the bearing of such a dishonest and deceptive tendency on the working of a recently passed Act of the Legislature The instances are many, in which greater or less variation is percentible in the description and valuation of stolen articles, as originally given at the thannah and afterwards recorded in foujdarie, such difference a magistrate will often pass by unnoticed, adopting without question the later and generally enhanced estimate I have taken every opportunity to observe on these occasions, that while such discrepancies of statement, where the stolen property is considerable, may be natural, yet efforts should always be made to reconcile and explain them, in order to avert any suspicion which might arise from the professed recognition, with accused persons, of things said to have been stolen, but which perhaps were not mentioned in the original information of theft

49 As compared with the year preceding, the statements show an increase of crime in 1849, met by a corresponding increase in the number of persons brought to trial, the result of commitments was very successful, and though I have had sometimes to check what I thought irregularities in Mr Best, I am bound to say that his general procedure evinces considerable tact and skill in the preparation as well as a sound comprehension of the merits of a case, and that I have every hope of his turning out a valuable officer The appeals, as usual, were extremely few, compared with the number of cases disposed of, much improvement in the acceleration of criminal trials is visible, indeed, relatively to the extent of the district and distance of some of the thannahs, the reduced average of the past year, less than four days, would seem almost too low to be probably correct Cases, however, commencing with the summons of the magistrate, without the agency of the police, are said to have been quickened by the deputy commissioner "summoning defendant and his witnesses, if he have any, at the same time, instead of summoning the defendant's witnesses after his deposition has been taken," a course thought by Mr Best to "entail much and useless delay"

50 Of the regularity of this amendment, I am of opinion there may be considerable doubts, and I find my predecessor in office commenting on an order passed "that defendant should be summoned with his witnesses," as an informality that ought to be avoided, "since witnesses should be summoned by name, after designation by the defendant, and indication of the facts to which they are to depose" I agree with Mr Brown, thinking that the contrary, though perhaps quicker course, opens a door to error and abuses

51 I have observed on various occasions, that Mr Best is in the habit of questioning prisoners while under accusation of a criminal offence in private, and then grounding his official procedure on what may have been elicited by or spoken at such private inquiry I have great doubt as to the propriety of such a practice I mention an instance in point,

just now before me: A party cited as witness for the prosecution on a charge of "attempt at arson," denies on oath his cognizance of a fact thought to constitute presumptive evidence of the prisoner's guilt, two days after the same witness deposes on oath to his personal acquaintance with such fact previously denied There had, however, been an intermediate private interrogation by the magistrate, who says, "being directed to remain in attendance in the office, he, the witness, on Sunday the 10th, the day following his first examination, informed me, on my examining him in private, that he had not stated the truth, and on the following day gave evidence contradictory of the statement previously made by him on the ninth" Here I think it is very questionable, whether the magistrate (putting aside the question of such private interrogatories being regular or desirable,) could take advantage of what was so informally elicited to ground an ulterior judicial proceeding upon, unfavourable to the party interrogated Without having any object save the furtherance of justice, such an act might wear an appearance of entrapping a man into an admission he could not know would be used against him, and is in my opinion open to serious objection

66. I must take occasion to offer a few remarks on the anticipated evil working, in such a country as this, of Act XVI 1850, "for restitution of the value of stolen property," (in passing which, ought not the provision of a prohibitory nature quoted in the margin* to have been abrogated?) which empowers criminal courts to add to the punishment they are competent to inflict on persons convicted of robbery, theft, knowingly receiving stolen property, and other such crimes, or of being accessary or privy thereto, "the punishment of fine not exceeding the loss appearing to be caused to the several persons who have suffered by such wrong," payable and distributable in whole or part, to or for the benefit of such sufferers.

[*] Clause I, Section 39, Regulation VII of 1803, "no pecuniary compensations nor sums, as damages, shall be adjudged to, or be recoverable by, individuals in any criminal prosecution," &c

67. The words I have underlined cause me alarm, when I read such remarks as Major MacAdam makes in his Report relative to the "little reliance which can be placed on the Reports made of the amount of property stolen," as exemplified in a specific case of evidently exaggerated robbery to which he is alluding, and my own experience of such a tendency to over-represent the true loss fully confirms what that officer and Captain Skene have stated as a result of theirs †

68 This Act I presume to be based on the opinion of the writers of the Code (pages 9 and 10 of Note A), "that every person who is injured by an offence ought to be legally entitled to a compensation for the injury" Also, "we are inclined to think that an arrangement might be adopted under which one trial would do the work of two. We conceive that in every case in which fine is part of the punishment of an offence, it ought to be competent to the tribunal, which has tried the offender acting under proper checks, to award the whole or part of the fine to the sufferer, provided that the latter signifies his willingness to receive what is so awarded in full satisfaction of his civil claim for reparation"

69 Not venturing to call in question the wisdom of this principle, I nevertheless dread the effect of a too often indiscreet application of the act by an inconsiderate or inexperienced magistrate, who, if he implicitly adopts the prosecutor's sworn estimate as the measure of loss "appearing to have been caused," and, consequently, of the mulct he is competent to impose on the offender, must often go very far wide indeed of justice, and (where the award is not inoperative owing to the poverty of the criminal) would run the risk of doing great wrong in carrying out the laudable object of awarding a legal right.

70 Will not, moreover, the very knowledge of such a law, and such a discretionary power conferred by it, increase the dishonest tendency I have noticed, or create it where it did not exist? Nominally, and perhaps really respectable people, I fear, would not think themselves tied to a strict veracity in their story, where the party to be affected by it is one who has injured them, and indeed is an enemy to society. Allowing, too, there be no intentional desire to exaggerate a loss, such a result is surely not improbable in the case of rich persons, who may not actually know what their personal property or amount of cash consisted of, or consequently, what may have been abstracted.

71. I shall watch the operation of this enactment; nor be unwilling to suggest (which might be now premature) if it should seem worthy of recommendation, that Government would see fit to direct suspension of the effect of its provisions in these territories (where the principles and spirit of the Regulations are ordinarily conformed to) as I conceive they can do, under section 15, Regulation VI of 1831.

Extract (Paragraphs 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10 and 11) of Court's Reply, No. 736, dated 3 July 1850.

3 At present the Court do not consider that sufficient reason exists for adopting the suggestion contained in your 8th para, and relaxing the rule which disallows the transmission by dâk to them of petitions of appeals with respect to the Saugor territories.

4. The instruction given by you to the joint magistrate in the particular case of attempted child-selling, mentioned in your 16th para, is held to have been quite correct. There is a clear distinction between the case of a parent, reduced by poverty to part with his child, for the sake of preserving its life and his own, and the case of any other party selling children in the way of trade No harm can be apprehended in cases of the first sort, as the laws do not recognise such transfers, whereas interference with them might be mischievous, and occasion the loss of lives that are now saved by them

† Note—See paragraph 36 of this Report (p. 575)

5 The Court agree with you that the suggestion of the Tehseeldar, noted in your 27th para , in the matter of the prevention of cattle stealing, would lead to much evil, without answering the end proposed

6 The observation made in the close of your 36th para on the importance of reconciling, as far as possible, discrepancies of statement regarding the articles and value of stolen property, is entirely approved

9 Mr. W R Best's practice of summoning defendants and their witnesses at once, as stated in your paras 49 and 50, is informal and objectionable Your 51st para exposes another improper and irregular practice of the same officer, in holding private examinations of prisoners and witnesses, and grounding upon them official proceedings Your own view of both practices is perfectly right, and it is hoped that you will not fail to impress it on Mr Best

10 In reply to your 66th para , I am instructed to refer you to section 20, Regulation I of 1803, under the provisions of which it will appear to you that clause 1, section 39, Regulation VII of 1803, must be held to have been repealed by the recent Act XVI of 1850

11 The Court are of opinion that the operation of this new enactment will require to be watched with great care and attention by all officers entrusted with supervisory powers and they trust that you will favour them with your opinion upon its actual working in your next annual report There is reason to apprehend that unless the powers conferred by the Act on magisterial officers be administered with much caution and discretion, the good fruit which it is calculated to produce, in encouraging the prosecution of theft and in repairing the injuries caused by that crime, will be accompanied by a rank and pernicious growth of false accusations and perjuries

APPENDIX.

Extract Paragraphs 21 and 22 from a Report from J. P. Gubbins, Esq., Judge of Dehlie, No 27, dated 18th March 1850, on the Administration of Civil Justice for the Year 1849.

21 I have also to report, for the information of the Court, the completion of a system by which members of the agricultural community are now, in addition to the usual notice, also informed of suits preferred against them through the subordinate revenue authorities, a duplicate itlanamah being in all such cases forwarded through the collector This arrangement, which I have been able to effect through the assistance of the Commissioner, has already been productive of the best results, and I believe it will have the effect of completely preventing the institution of fraudulent suits, in which, owing to collusion between the plaintiff and the bearer of the notice, ex parte decrees were formerly obtained not unfrequently against parties who, in fact, knew nothing about the matter.

22 There only remains one point to which I would wish to draw the attention of the Court, namely, the apparent hardship to which decreeholders are exposed, in cases where, from there being no ostensible assets available, they are compelled to attach houses or other property, the value of which very much exceeds the actual amount of the decree. In such cases, should the summary objection of an oozurdar be admitted, the decreeholder is compelled under the present rules to pay costs in proportion, not to the amount of his own decree, but to the full value of the whole property attached, which, considering how difficult it is for a decreeholder to discover what bonâ fide claims other people may have upon it,—supposing for instance the case of a husband executing a formal deed of gift to his wife in lieu of her settlements,—appears to me calculated, as indeed I have found it in practice, to occasion unnecessary loss and expense, and might altogether be avoided by rating the costs at the amount of the sum desired to be realized by the sale, instead of the value of the property itself, in all cases when it might appear that the decree holder was not actuated by any desire to annoy the proprietor, but had done all in his power to arrive at a correct knowledge of the circumstances of the property.

9 THE system introduced by you of notifying to agriculturists through the collector, the institution of suits against them, appears to the Court an interesting experiment, which if found to have the beneficial effect anticipated by you, might with advantage be extended The Court will be glad to hear your opinion at the close of the year, how far it has worked well in practice, and what its effect has been in diminishing the number of fraudulent and ex parte decisions

10. The Court observe, that the hardship noticed by you, viz, decree holders being made liable for costs out of proportion to the amount of their decrees, will under the existing rules occasionally occur, they are not now, however, prepared to propose any alteration of the law applicable to the subject

EXTRACT Paragraph 11, from a Report from H W Deane, Esq, Judge of Meerut, No 29, dated 20th March 1850, on the Administration of Civil Justice for the Year 1849

11 A CASE has recently occurred in this district, in respect to which, and to others of the same class, a satisfactory indication of the course to be pursued by the authorities, would seem to be wanted. A native Christian woman, who had assumed the name of a military officer of rank, with whom she formerly cohabited, died in this jurisdiction, intestate and without heirs She left considerable personal property, of which the Civil Court duly took charge under Section 16, Clause 7, Regulation III of 1803 She also left three bungalows at Meerut, and I was informed, on a reference which I made to the Sudder Court, that there is no law which requires a Judge to take possession of real property belonging to the estates of persons dying under the circumstances above mentioned The Judge then not being the real custodian of this kind of property, on whom does it devolve to provide for its temporary care? At the present moment these bungalows are, as far as I am aware, left without any protection whatever

1 YOUR report on the administration of civil justice for the past year 1849, having been laid before the Court, I am directed to inform you in reply to the remark in paragraph 11, that the Court, concurring with you in the opinion of the necessity for a legislative enactment, have addressed the lower Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, with a view to the extension of the provisions of Clause 7, Section 16, Regulation III of 1803, to the real property of persons dying intestate.

26 THERE is however one point connected with the execution of decress, which in my opinion requires amendment. It is a common practice in this district for decreeholders to attach property which they are fully aware is not the property of the defendant, this property is either made over by the Ameen to the person causing the attachment, or to some other person in collusion with him, the property is removed, and on objections being raised and substantiated by the real owner, he cannot, under Construction No 958, dated 9th June 1835, re-acquire possession of his property, without instituting a regular suit for damages against the parties withholding it Now taking into consideration the class of men generally holding the appointment of Koork Ameen, the small amount of their legal fees (which seldom exceeds Rs 20 a month), and the inducement which a dishonest decreeholder is too likely to hold out, not merely to falsify the statement of actual value and quantity of the property attached, but to make over the same to some person in collusion with him, I consider the mode of procedure which the above construction makes it necessary for the oozurdar to adopt, before he can recover his property, causes much hardship, and parties are frequently thus robbed of their property, who either from ignorance or want of means are prevented from instituting a regular suit The only remedy that I can recommend is, that as by paragraph 3 of the same circular, it is declared that the person at whose instance property is distrained or attached must be considered answerable for the safe custody of the property during the period of distraint or attachment, the Koork Ameen should be required to make the same over to him only, and that as the statement of either the value or the quantity of property furnished by an Ameen from his having taken the oath of office, is received as a sworn document, that on objections being substantiated, the Courts be authorised to require the party attaching either to deliver up the property attached or the value of it, and on his failing to do so to fine him for contempt of Court The remedy would be most effectual. The practice complained of is confined to a race of Bohras who swarm in this district, and the sufferers are generally of the poorer classes, whose worldly goods seldom exceed Rs 50 in value.

27 I must also mention that some modification appears to me requisite in clause 2, Section 3, Regulation VII. 1825, as regards the attachment of zubtee crops; by the above clause an ishtehar of 30 days is requisite before the property attached can be brought to sale: in numerous instances the crops are destroyed before the term of ishtehar has elapsed; both decreeholder and defendant suffer The term of the ishtehar should be altered to 10 days or a week,

28 I request the opinion of the Court on the following point: A practice prevailed in this district of filing copies of evidence taken in other cases on stamp paper, and should the same evidence be required in any other case, a petition is filed requesting they may be returned, which was done, authenticated copies on plain paper being put in their place in the original Misl in which they were filed I am of opinion the practice is illegal. The copy of evidence could not be received except on stamp paper, and being once filed they form a part of the record, and are not returnable, nor can these be filed in any other suit I have forbid the practice, and now mention my having done so, that my order may be recalled should it be deemed erroneous

EXTRACT Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of the Court's Reply, No 641, dated 24th May 1850.

3 IT would have been satisfactory, the Court observe, if you had illustrated by a detail of some particular instances, the abuses which you have noticed, in connexion with the execution of decrees. They cannot concur in your proposition that a distrainer refusing to deliver up attached property on the requisition of the Court should be fined for contempt of Court, but recommend you to take care that your subordinates pay prompt attention to the cases on their miscellaneous files, and by a vigilant supervision and severe notice of such malpractices whenever they occur, to check them as much as possible in future.

4 I am desired to point out to you that the modification of Clause 2, Section 3, of Regulation VII of 1825, which you suggest is unnecessary, as under Section 11 of Regulation XXVIII. of 1803, crops under attachment when ripe, should be reaped and stored. The Court are not aware that the crops coming under the denomination of "zubtee" may not be similarly dealt with

5 The Court entirely concurring in the opinion which you have expressed in your concluding paragraph, hold the practice, which you have prohibited, to be irregular.

EXTRACT Paragraphs 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 from a Report from J. Lean, Esq, Officiating Judge of Mooradabad, No 41, dated 24th June 1850, on the Administration of Civil Justice for the year 1849

6 I HAVE been employed as a Civil Judge nearly five years during the last nine years, and have every year been more and more convinced of the utter inefficiency of the means resorted to in our Courts for the discovery of the truth Native evidence under any circumstances and in any Courts is not of much value, and we have diminished its value by our legislating regarding oaths I am not going to discuss the subject of oaths, which has been year after year brought on the tapis, and is probably exhausted; suffice it to say, that I think we should return to the old system as quickly as we can. But native evidence is peculiarly valueless in our civil courts, and for two reasons, the one that before it is given it is concocted by the vakeels, the other that it is not subjected to the test of a searching cross-examination on the part of the presiding Judge Tutoring a witness is not peculiar to the practice of a vakeel, for it is proverbial that legal practitioners in England in drawing up their briefs are somewhat given to the habit, though doubtless not in the same degree, and yet it would be as impossible in the one country as in the other to dispense with some intervener between the client and the Court, for clients could not, in either country, state the facts of their cases in such wise, that the issues to be tried on them could be found; we must then keep our vakeels, and trust that their character will be gradually raised by association with English advocates as common in Calcutta, by the hope of employment as judicial officers, which hope has been, or is to be, held out to them in the Bengal Presidency, by the gradual spreading of education, and by the stricter supervision of the presiding Judges The native judicial officers, before whom, with very few exceptions, all civil suits are originally decided, have not the time to cross-examine the witnesses themselves It is true that we occasionally meet with a question put by them at the end of a deposition, but such supplementary questionings cannot be equally searching with a rigid cross-examination, such as is made, for instance, by a sessions Judge after hearing a witness depose word by word, and what is more, after watching him so depose, something might be done perhaps towards raising the value of native evidence, by more frequent recourse to punishment for perjury, but so difficult is the proof of that crime, that that something would be very little We must then look to some other means of arriving at the truth than mere oral evidence Now I suppose nearly two-thirds of the suits which come before our Courts are founded on, or relate to, deeds of kinds, i. e., bonds, promissory notes, deeds of sale, gift, mortgage, and the like, and it strikes me that the means of deciding those cases would be immediately improved in a very simple way, by extending the benefits of registry, and by altering somewhat the nature of registry itself I would at once declare every Moonsiff to be a register of all deeds, except those relating to land, within his own jurisdiction, and that the fee on the registry of such deed should be only eight annas in place of two rupees. If this were done, I think a large proportion of the deeds in question would be registered, and if they were, it is obvious that the remuneration of the Moonsiffs for registering would be ample on the diminished scale. I would also declare that registry should not involve merely the recognition of the execution of the deed, but the fulfilment of the transaction to which it relates, for instance, on the parties to a bond appearing, I would not only register the bond, but I would note that the bond was delivered by the borrower to the lender on acknowledgment of receipt of the amount, and I would not admit any deed to registry unless the parties would certify to such completeness of transaction This in fact is what is done in practice in some registry offices now, for such notes of receipt and delivery are made in some offices, though not in all, but nevertheless it is not legal. And if this plan were adopted, all that the Courts would have to do on a suit being laid on such a bond, would be to consult the book of registry as to the bond having been registered, and then at once to see if the amount had been repaid or not I would likewise declare that every office of a collector and of a Tehseeldar should be an office of registry, and the only offices, for all deeds relating to land, on a like scale of fees, with a like record of completeness of transaction, and with a like rule that no deed should be received for registry till the parties would certify to completeness of transaction On the deed being thus registered, I would have the procedure, if necessary under the transaction, to follow, which takes place at present in cases of "dakhil kharij" The Tehseeldars in cases of registry, made by them, and acted on by them, certifying the same to the collectors. If this plan were adopted there would be three great advantages, first, that one process would answer the purpose of two processes; second, that the completeness of a transaction to which a deed may relate could never be questioned, or in other words, the courts would have only to adjudicate on the contingencies of such transactions; and third, that there would be a record of every transaction regarding land in the fiscal offices This plan of registry would directly facilitate the discovery of the truth in a large proportion of cases, i e, of cases founded on, and relating to deeds, and would moreover indirectly facilitate the discovery of truth in cases, the decision of which may turn on the credibility of oral evidence, inasmuch as the deciding officers would under it have more time for personally testing such evidence in cross-examination

7. But whether this alteration in the law of registry be made or not, there is an anomaly in the law of our Courts relating to bonds, which should at once be removed by an explanatory construction Clause 3d, Section 6, Regulation VIII 1805, is in these words "The Zillah Courts are prohibited from decreeing the payment or satisfaction of any sum due on a tumfnussookh, or bond, which may be entered into after the promulgation of this regulation, unless the bond shall be proved to have been executed in the presence of two credible witnesses, or the payment of the sum demanded on the bond, or some other valuable consideration for it having been received, shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Court But the restriction contained in this clause shall not extend to any bills of exchange, receipts or notes of hand, in the determination in which the custom of the country shall be abided by" The meaning of these words is obviously this, that execution of the bond being proved by the attesting witnesses, and its delivery being likewise proved by the evidence of the said witnesses or by other evidence, or by the presumption arising from the bond being in the possession of the obligee, payment of the consideration is to be decreed, or in other words, that the general rule of law, that "a contract by deed requires no consideration to support it, the law conclusively presuming that it is made upon a good and sufficient consideration," is to be followed, and that in the event of the execution of the bond not being proved by the evidence of the attesting witnesses, the receipt of the consideration shall be proved. But in practice the existence of the little word, "or," which I have underlined, has been strangely overlooked, and it has therefore been usual for our Courts not only to call upon the obligee to prove execution and delivery of the bond, but also the receipt of the consideration by the obliger This has led to most perplexing investigations being made as to the circumstances which led to the execution of the bond, viz as to accounts in detail, balance on accounts, the restoration of bonds of previous dates, the receipt of cash, or in other words, an investigation on points has been deemed necessary, to preclude the necessity of which being investigated was the very object of the execution of the bond Moreover, the proof of the pleas of the parties relating to this investigation has led to perjury and subornation of perjury to a fearful extent But though the evil is great, the remedy is simple, a few words in the shape of a construction

8 Another grand cause of confusion in our Courts is the law regarding redemption of mortgage The system in vogue amongst the native community, before our rule, was the simple one of the mortgagee receiving the profits of the thing mortgaged in lieu of interest till redemption, and of the mortgage being redeemed on the payment of the amount lent, on the expiration of the term of mortgage, or at the will of the mortgager, as the terms of the deed might run Nothing could be more simple than this procedure, and its simplicity will be evident on consulting the phraseology of such deeds, viz, "profits in place of interest," or "neither my (the mortgager's) profits, nor your (the mortgagee's) interest," or "you, (the mortgagee) will not receive interest, nor I (the mortgager) receive rent," and the like phrases. But our legislators, influenced by a reverence for the usury laws, by which they had assigned a limit of 12 per cent. to interest on all transactions, declared that in all such mortgages, which may have been or should be executed subsequent to a certain date, the terms of the mortgagee should not be regarded, i. e, that in these, as in other mortgages, redemption should be considered to have taken place, when the mortgagee shall have received the principal with 12 per cent. interest thereon, and this declaration has been construed by our Courts to mean, not that the mortgagee in these cases shall have that rate of interest made good to him as in other cases, but that he shall not receive more than that rate, and that the investigation directed by law on the subject shall be confined to this latter point. As then the transaction is no longer simplified by such a deed, and as the mortgagee on such a deed may incur a loss, which the mortgagees on other deeds cannot easily incur, such deeds are now seldom drawn up, i. e, the deeds now drawn up generally contain merely a stipulation that the mortgagee shall receive 12 per cent on the money he lends, to which deeds the rule, that the mortgagee shall be considered redeemed, whenever the principal with interest shall have been realized from the usufruct, literally and entirely applies. These suits are probably the most complex that come before our Courts, and to say nothing of the intricacy of the law relating to them, lead to perjuries without end on the part of the mortgagee, on his swearing to the accounts produced by him according to law, to subornation of perjury on his part to support his perjury, and to all kinds of falsification of accounts. Surely it would be a very simple remedy to revert to the old native system, i. e, to let the parties abide by their contract in all its integrity, or in other words, to place the chance of profit, more or less than 12 per cent as it may be, against the interest. If this were done, I doubt not that parties would revert to their old national custom of writing deeds of mortgage, with the simple conditions above adverted to, and if they did so, the Courts in place of having to make perplexing investigation as to profits as they do now, would have merely to inquire if the principal had been, or could be paid, and in the event of either being the case, to declare the mortgage redeemed if the term have expired, or on the mortgagee expressing a wish to redeem, as the terms of the deed may run. I would urgently suggest legislation on this subject.

9 The principle on which the suits in our Courts are valued with reference to the institution fee, is most imperfect. All suits are valued at their actual value, with the exception of suits for landed property paying revenue, i. e, for such estates entire, or specific shares in such estates, and of suits for rent-free landed property, the former being arbitrarily estimated at one year's revenue, the latter at eighteen times their net annual profit. The estimate of rent-free landed property is probably correct enough, but that of landed property paying revenue is far from being so. At the time the latter was so estimated, it was probably on account of over-assessment, of uncertainty of rights consequent on tenures not being understood, and on there being no record of them, such as was made at the late settlement, of settlements being for short terms, of the conflicting jurisdictions of the Civil Courts, the special commission and the revenue Courts of settlement, and of other causes, correctly estimated, but as things are, the estimate is most incorrect, for it is known that such estates sell for five times and even seven times the respective amounts of revenue which they pay. The Moonsiffs then nominally decide cases relating to landed property up to Rs 300, but really cases up to Rs. 1,500, or even Rs 2,100, and of course the same remark, mutatis mutandis, holds good of the Courts of higher jurisdiction. This inconsistency I suggest should be remedied, not only with reference to itself, but with reference to the interests of Government in the matter of the amount of institution fee, with reference to the injustice of taxing one description of property at a lower rate than others with regard to litigation, and with reference to the absurdity of valuing an estate at one year's revenue, and a portion of that estate, not forming a specific share of it, at its actual selling price, or in other words, at a rate perhaps seven times higher, for such be it observed is the law relating to the valuation of such portions of such estates. If this were done, it would be necessary either to raise the jurisdiction of the present Moonsiffs, or to appoint more Sudder Ameens I would recommend the latter plan, not only because I think the Moonsiffs, generally speaking, should not be entrusted with the decision of suits of higher value than they are at present, but because I think more appointments to the office of Sudder Ameen would operate beneficially, as an incitement to exertion, and a reward for superior ability. If more Sudder Ameens were appointed, be it observed, they might be located in the Mofussil, with jurisdiction over a certain number of Moonsiffships in cases exceeding Rs 300 in value, and this description of jurisdiction would not be anomalous to our present system, for such Sudder Ameens would be to such jurisdictions what our present Sudder Ameens, stationed at the Sudder stations, are to whole districts. It appears that in the Lower Provinces the Government have lately appointed a great number of judicial officers of this grade, and probably if none are appointed in these provinces in like manner, our subordinate judicial officers will complain of the difference of the systems of the two presidencies in that respect

10 There is a defect in the very constitution of our Courts, which I think ought to be remedied, viz. that a Judge, however well acquainted he may be with Mohumedan or Hindoo law, cannot himself legally apply it. In Section 15, Regulation IV. 1793, it is declared, that in suits regarding succession, inheritance, marriage, and caste, and all religious usages and institutions, the Mohumedan laws with respect to Mohumedans, and the Hindoo laws with regard to the Hindoos, are to be considered as the general rules by which the Judges are to form their decisions. In the respective cases, the Mohumedan and Hindoo law officers of the Court are to attend to expound the law. In Section 4, Regulation II. 1798, it is declared, that by Section 15, Regulation IV. 1793, in such suits, it was intended that the law officers of the several Civil Courts should expound the law, and that the Judges should be guided by their exposition in common cases, but not in particular cases wherein they might have reason to doubt the accuracy of such exposition, and that in such cases a further exposition of the law from the officers of the superior Courts was not meant to be precluded These enactments have not been modified in any respect, as to the necessity of a reference being made to law officers in such cases, and it is only in such cases that the application of such laws can be necessary, and it follows therefore that no Judge can himself apply those laws This rule, at the time of the enactments, might have been proper enough, for in those days there were but few means of studying these laws, except in the original languages in which they are written and expounded, and to do that few Judges were then or are now competent But surely now that there are so many compilations from and treatises on the said laws, translated into the English language, and moreover such compilations and treatises originally composed in the English language, the rule is no longer a proper one. In practice, the rule is not observed, and Judges have been in the habit of applying these laws themselves, but their doing so is undoubtedly illegal, and I cannot but think that a special appeal founded on the illegality, would on discussion be necessarily admitted Let then that which is the practice of our Courts be at once legalized It seems doubtful if any civil code will ever be framed by the Indian Law Commissioners, and we must therefore make the best of our present system That system is far from being in the imperfect state in which it is generally said to be We have a simple and efficient law of procedure, in many respects far in advance of that of our own country, for instance, it is only within the last few years that an asserted debtor could not in England at once be incarcerated on the application of an asserting creditor, whereas our law of arrest on that important point has not been thus imperfect for many years Our law of procedure certainly admits of many improvements, and amongst them are those which I am in this letter so feebly advocating. We have, moreover, excellent materials for our substantive law, viz, the statutory enactments on such points, the codes of religious law, i e, Hindoo and Mohumedan laws, as expounded in the compilations and treatises above adverted to, the select decisions of the Sudder Courts, the decisions of our Zillah and the Sudder Courts, as published monthly, involving adjudication on all the various transactions litigated in the different parts of the country, books on English and other laws to assist us with analogies, and though last not least, the various publications which have been published under the orders of Government relating to the land tenures of the country, as ascertained at the late settlement In enumerating these materials, how strange it seems, that probably the most important of them, i e, the Hindoo and Mohumedan laws, are not allowed by law to be applied by our Judges, without a reference to a law officer, whose knowledge of the law he professes is perhaps not superior to that of those Judges, and whose character for honesty is certainly not equally unimpeachable. Again, the rule in question will appear still more absurd, when it is recollected, that it does not apply to the Moonsiffs, for in Clause 2, Section 6, Regulation V. 1831, it is declared, that "in all cases of inheritance or or succession to landed property, the Mohumedan laws with respect to Mohumedans, and the Hindoo laws with respect to the Hindoos, are to regulate the decisions, and the Moonsiffs in all such cases where doubt exists, are to obtain an exposition of the law from the law officers of the Zillah Court," or in other words, the judicial officer of the lowest grade is declared competent to do that which cannot be done by his superiors, even including the Judges of the highest Court in the country I would suggest that the Legislature be applied to to remove this rule, which is at once anomalous and defective

11 The system of allowing the Principal Sudder Ameens to try all original cases above Rs 5,000 is surely anomalous It amounts to a declaration, that he is a more competent judicial officer than a Judge, and yet the Judge hears appeals from him in all cases not exceeding Rs 5,000, or in other words, the Judge is at one moment in a superior position, and at another in an inferior position to him. The system of allowing the Principal Sudder Ameen to originally try cases involving an amount between Rs 5,000 and Rs. 10,000, and not allowing an appeal to the Judge in those cases, is also equally anomalous, for thereby the general rule of our law, that there shall be two appeals allowed in all descriptions of cases, is infringed, seeing that as an appeal can be only made from the Sudder Dewany Adawlut to the Queen in Council, in cases of higher amount than Rs 10,000, there can be only one appeal from the decision of a Principal Sudder Ameen, involving an amount between Rs 10,000 and Rs 5,000, i e, to the Sudder Dewany Adawlut I would suggest that application be made to the Legislature on the two points

12 The question of the conflict between the jurisdictions of the Civil Courts, and the Courts of special Commissioners under Regulation III 1828, peculiarly affects the interests of the inhabitants of the districts forming this Judgeship, as there is much land held rent free in them I have had occasion to advert to this conflict in adjudicating during the year under review, and this seems a proper opportunity to revert to it In some late decisions of the Sudder Dewany Adawlut, it has been laid down, that all that the special Courts have to do, is to decide whether a rent-free tenure is valid or not, and that it is for the Civil Courts to determine who are entitled to benefit by such a tenure being declared valid, on such a dispute occurring, and that too without Government being made a party to the suit. I submit that as the special Courts are directed by law to adjudicate on the claim of Government to assess rent-free lands, as that claim lies against those in possession, it was as much their duty to decide on the point of possession, as on the validity of the tenure, and that further, till the one point was decided, it was impossible to correctly decide the other. I further submit that the Civil Courts cannot interfere in the way in which the

Sudder

Appendix, No. 14.

Sudder Dewany Adawlut say they can, without affecting the interests of Government, and that those interests cannot be legally so affected without Government being made a party to the suit. I will first illustrate the first part of my proposition. B. and C. are entitled in the terms of their title deeds, with their respective lineal descendants, each to half of an estate in perpetual rent-free tenure, but by laxity of investigation as to the point of possession, the estate is decreed by the special Courts perpetually rent free to the lineal descendants of B and C generally. Here by the decision the estate would continue rent free as long as any lineal descendants of B. and C. may be extant, but if the point of possession and amount of shares had been properly investigated, half of the estate would have lapsed to Government on the failure of the lineal descendants of B. or C: or, to put a second case, A sells a rent-free estate, transferrible in the terms of the title deeds, to B, and B is in possession; but the matter of possession not having been properly investigated, the estate is declared by the special Courts to be rent free to A and his heirs. Now if the point of possession had been investigated, and decision in favour of those in possession had followed thereon, the estate on the failure of B. and his heirs would have lapsed to Government, but by the decision A. and his heirs, notwithstanding their rights have been sold, would continue to hold on the failure of B and his heirs: or, to put a third case; the lineal descendants of A, viz B and C, are entitled in the terms of their title deeds to a perpetual interest in a rent-free estate, but the point of possession having been imperfectly investigated, B. is only made by the special Courts a party to the suit. Here on the failure of the lineal descendants of B, C and his lineal descendants would have no claim under the decision, whereas if the point of possession had been properly investigated, they would have got sole possession of that which they, previously to the failure of the lineal descendants of B, had joint possession. I will now illustrate the second part of my proposition with reference to this last case C, after the supposed decision of the special Courts, comes into the Civil Court and sues B, claiming that he and his lineal descendants may be placed in the same position with regard to the estate as B. and his lineal descendants, and that too without suing Government jointly with B. Under the law of the Sudder Dewany Adawlut, a decree might pass in favour of C., but I submit that no such decree should pass, inasmuch as it could not without affecting the interests of a party not before the Court, viz., Government, and that C should be nonsuited, with directions to sue Government as well as B, which he could do under the general regulations, always supposing that he was not barred by the law of limitation, which would generally be the case But on the other hand, if C. had sued B, claiming for himself and his lineal descendants a share of that which had been decreed by the special Courts to B and his lineal descendants, the Courts could then have legally decreed in his favour, inasmuch as in so decreeing they would not affect the interest of Government, seeing that after their decreeing the estate on the failure of the lineal descendants of B in the terms of the decree of the special Court, would still lapse to Government Probably this very important subject may be deemed by the Court worthy of further consideration, the more especially as in one of the cases of the Court which I allude to, one of the Judges at present holding a seat in the Court, dissented from the doctrine of the majority of the Court.

Extract Paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 of the Court's Reply, No 1,315, Dated 5th September 1850

2. With advertence to the suggestion conveyed in your sixth paragraph, for the registry of all deeds except such as relate to land by the Moonsiffs, the Court (without entering into the merits of the suggestion in other respects) observe that at present the Moonsiffs have not leisure enough to undertake the business of registry, in addition to the more proper duties of their office Your proposal to require parties registering a deed to certify the fulfilment of the transaction does not exclude the possibility of frauds in the personation of those soi-disant parties, and therefore there would still be something more left for the Courts to do, on trying a suit on such a deed, than merely to consult the registry books.

3 In your seventh paragraph you speak of an anomaly in the law, as laid down in Clause 3, Section 6, Regulation VIII of 1805, but the terms of that enactment which you quote, and your own remarks upon them show, that the fault which you impugn lies not in the law, but in the mistaken administration of it; and it is in your own power to correct any such error, if you have noticed it in the practice of the Courts subordinate to you, and thereby to put a stop to the mischief which you ascribe to its operation.

4 The Court entirely concur in the view taken by you of the baneful tendency and effects of the law relating to the redemption of mortgages, as stated in your eighth paragraph In their judgment, usury laws are worse than useless, as they cannot be enforced, and only lead to fraud and perjury It is to be hoped that the Government may be induced to take the subject into consideration, and to provide by legislative proceedings a remedy for an evil which has been the result of legislation

5 Passing on to your 9th paragraph, the Court suppose it is unnecessary to refer you to Construction 1340, dated 18th May 1842. It must doubtless be allowed that the rule prescribed by note to Article VIII, Schedule (B) Regulation X. of 1829, for the valuation of assessed and rent-free lands, and definite and indefinite portions of assessed estates, is exceptionable, and has introduced an anomaly in its effect, with respect to the limits of the jurisdiction of the Courts of different grade.

6 In the matter discussed in your 10th paragraph, the Court believe the general rule to be that a reference should be made to the law officer regarding disputed or doubtful points of law, and see no objection to the rule sufficient to require legislative interference.

7 The subject of your 11th paragraph has been lately brought before the legislative, who have refused to alter the existing law touching the jurisdiction of Principal Sudder Ameens in suits exceeding in value Rs 5,000. There is reason in your observation that, as the law now stands, the principle of our legislation that there shall be two appeals allowed in all descriptions of cases is infringed

8. The Court perceive no difficulty in the question which you have brought forward in your 12th paragraph They hold it to be the primary duty of the special Commissioner to declare whether the land claimed as rent free be liable to assessment or not, and that it is not his primary duty to decide whether one particular person has a right to be exempted from assessment, or another Of course the liability of the land to assessment cannot be determined without reference to personal claims, and where the tenure is of a joint nature, or limited in its term, the special Commissioner is bound to decide during whose lives the right of Government to draw revenue from the holding is barred At the same time disputes between coparceners as to the respective shares of each will fall within the province of the Civil Courts

Extract Paragraphs 25 and 26 from a Report from S Fraser, Esq , Judge of Bareilly, No 37, dated 11th May 1850, on the Administration of Civil Justice for the Year 1849

25 The system now in force also, of requiring the Nazir of a Court to hold himself responsible for the conduct of the Muzkooree Peons is, I submit, likely to be attended with inconvenience The engagement necessarily involves the nomination and removal of the Peons at the Nazir's pleasure, but to carry out this view would involve much injustice to individuals, and open a door to much peculation Many of the Peons in this jurisdiction were originally appointed by the Judge, and are old servants receiving from four to six per mensem These may under the present rule be summarily dismissed by the Nazir on the slightest pretence, the appointment of a new Nazir may at any time lead to a total change in the Peons of a Court to the great obstruction of public business, whilst the transfer of a Nazir from one Court to another, which is sometimes expedient, becomes impracticable, owing to the possible inconvenience above adverted to, which may attend the step A great change would undoubtedly have been made in the subordinate Courts had I not discountenanced it, but the Nazir, it cannot be denied, is placed in a position of much difficulty, when he is required to be responsible for a person whom he cannot trust, but whom he is unable to prove undeserving of confidence Formerly the Peons were appointed by the Judge, and each was expected to furnish security for his appearance when required, to the amount of Rs 50, and I am inclined to recommend this system in preference to the one now pursued It may be thought that this does not furnish sufficient security against the misappropriation of money passing through their hands , but it is to be remembered, that when more than Rs 50 are to be realized, two chuprassies are deputed, and a person always accompanies them on behalf of the party interested The risks of abuse are not, therefore, so great as they at first appear to be, and after all, the chief inducement to public honesty must be sought in the value of the appointment.

26 Much irregularity exists in the registry of deeds, under the regulations the register is required to ascertain the due execution of a deed, and then after registry to return it to the party by whom it has been presented, with an endorsement specifying the date and hour of the day on which it has been registered, and the page on which it is entered in the register book (Regulation XX 1812, Section 2, Clauses 1 & 2 ) The question of authenticity is not disposed of by the act of registry, this is left open to be decided in the Court before which it may be brought for adjudication (Regulation XVII. 1803, Section 6), but the registers are not satisfied with carrying out the instruction of the Regulations, they deem it necessary to inquire into the payment of the consideration noted in the deed, and in some cases even the money is paid as a precautionary measure before them This in my judgment is irregular, the registers are always, in the North-western Provinces, Judges of the subordinate Courts, and disputes connected with registered deeds will for the most part come before them, and they are thus liable to be influenced by proceedings with which they are extra-judicially acquainted, and which may not be on the record The registers, I conceive, have nothing to say to the payment and realization of the consideration noted in the deed, and it is expedient they be in no way mixed up with it, it is well known that money is seldom paid before registry has been completed, and consequently falsehood being necessary under the inquiries made to secure the registry, it is by the present system encouraged to the detriment of the public morals.

Appendix, No. 14.

EXTRACT Paragraphs 3 and 4 of the Court's Reply, No. 803, dated 19th June 1850.

3 WITH advertence to the 25th paragraph of your letter, I am desired to refer you to Section 12, Regulation V. of 1804, you will perceive that Nazirs cannot remove the Peons of the establishment, unless they can " show sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Judge, and not without his previous knowledge and sanction." So too the Nazirs can only appoint Peons, " subject to the approbation of the Judge."

4 The practice mentioned by you in the conclusion of your report, as prevailing in the registry offices in your jurisdiction, of making an inquiry into the payment and realization of the consideration noted in deeds presented for registry, is, I am instructed to inform you, quite irregular, and should be strictly prohibited The registers of deeds are required to ascertain " the due execution " of the deeds preferred to them, but have no right or power to meddle with any other points, which it is the province of the Civil Courts to determine.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE, 1850

---

REPORT

From G. T. Beauchamp, Esq , Registrar to the Court of Foujdaree Udalut, to T Pycroft, Esq , Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department

Sir, Madras, 23d August 1851

1. I am directed by the Judges of the Court of Foujdaree Udalut to transmit, for the purpose of being laid before the Right Honourable the Governor in Council, the Criminal Statements for 1850, as specified in the List annexed, together with a series of Tables marked (A ) to (S.), which have been framed therefrom

2 I am also directed to forward, as an Appendix, an Extract from the Proceedings of the Court, dated 4th April 1851, upon a point of general interest, to which the attention of the Court was called by the Session Judge of Tellicherry. The orders of the Court upon other points which appeared to call for remark are appended to the Reports of the Magistrates of Tanjore and Masulipatam, and of the Session Judges of Guntoor, Calicut, and Coimbatore. (Enclosures Nos 62, 66, 86, 87, 90, 101, and 104)

3. Observations upon the inadequacy of the remuneration granted to the Village Police will be found in the 16th para of the Report of the Magistrate of Canara (Enclosure No 110), and in para 2 of the Extract from the Proceedings of the Session Judge of Guntoor dated 20th May 1851 (Enclosure No 84) The subject of cattle trespass, also alluded to by the Session Judge of Guntoor, is under consideration, with other papers on the same subject received from the Session Judges at Tellicherry, Bellary, and Honore, and orders will be hereafter communicated to the Session Judge of Trichinopoly upon the questions referred to in his Annual Report, noted marginally

1 The appointment of a special officer for the suppression of gang robbery in the Southern Division

2 The extension of Section 16, Regulation IX of 1819, to evasion of process by persons charged with offences not bailable

3 The punishment of parties making false and malicious charges of petty offences before heads of police

4. The Judges regret that it has been impracticable to furnish this Report at an earlier date in consequence of the returns from Guntoor, Masulipatam, and Cuddapah having been only received on the 27th May and the 10th and 28th June respectively, and even then it was necessary to return certain of the statements for correction The delay is attributed by the magistrates to the forms heretofore in use having been in some respects modified, in order that they might check each other, and exhibit clearly and uniformly the particulars requisite to enable this office to prepare the tables The modified forms, with detailed instructions for filling them up, were circulated, however, on the 28th October 1850, and as the returns from Bellary, Rajahmundry, and Tinnevelly were received on the 17th and 19th February and 4th March respectively, the Judges do not consider the explanation satisfactory.

5 I am to add that the Sudder Ameens are reported to have discharged their duties satisfactorily

EXTRACT from the MINUTES of CONSULTATION, under date the 26th November 1851

READ the following letter from the Register of the Foujdaree Udalut.

(Here enter 23d August 1851, No 78)

Forwarding the Annual Criminal Reports for 1850

Dy 1st July 1851, Nos. 1, 2.

Para 1. With their letter of the 23d August 1851, No 78, the Court of Foujdaree Udalut submit the reports and statements relative to the administration of Criminal Justice under the Madras Presidency for the year 1850 With their previous letter of the 12th March 1851, No 35, reviewed in Extract Minutes of Consultation, 26th June 1851, the Judges have furnished Statements Nos. 4, 5, 6, showing the nature and extent of work performed by themselves in the Criminal Department From the Returns thus laid before Government, the following Abstract Tables have been framed, exhibiting the results of the present compared with those of the preceding year

Petty offences (A) Table No 1

2 Table of petty offences in all the districts, including the Agency tracts, showing an increase over the past year of 6,118 in the number of persons summoned, and of 1,106 in the number punished

|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Summoned. | Punished. | Summoned. | Punished |
| Assault | 164,317 | 46,795 | 167,063 | 46,381 |
| Cattle-stealing | 1,828 | 650 | 2,308 | 738 |
| Theft | 8,762 | 4,122 | 9,135 | 4,398 |
| Various | 2,905 | 1,394 | 5,424 | 2,550 |
| TOTAL | 177,812 | 52,961 | 183,930 | 54,067 |
| Increase in 1850 | | | 6,118 | 1,106 |

3 The increase in the number summoned was chiefly in the following districts

|---|---|
| Ganjam | 1,200 |
| Vizagapatam | 1,847 |
| Rajahmundry | 715 |
| Nellore | 1,162 |
| North Arcot | 1,220 |
| South Arcot | 1,614 |
| Coimbatore | 936 |
| Madura | 917 |

The disproportion of persons punished to the number summoned in the Rajahmundry district is enormous, 1,422 out of 14,571, or nine per cent It is a great evil that 100 men should be brought up before the police or magistracy, of whom only nine were proved to be offenders There has also been a great disproportion in the districts of Vizagapatam, Ganjam, Malabar, and Canara It has occurred chiefly in the petty offences tried by the district police, the number summoned and punished by those tribunals being respectively 165,685 and 45,829

Crimes and misdemeanors (B) Table No 1

4 Table of crimes and misdemeanors throughout the Presidency, showing an increase of 1,501 cases above those reported in the past year

|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Cases | Persons. | Cases. | Persons |
| Offences reported during the year | 12,329 | 39,157 | 13,830 | 42,444 |
| Offences in which no one of the parties implicated were apprehended | 6,015 | 17,884 | 7,105 | 19,870 |
| Offences perpetrated within the year, the persons concerned in which were apprehended and brought before the police and magistracy | 6,314 | 17,194 | 6,738 | 18,366 |
| Ditto ditto, the persons concerned in which were not apprehended | | 4,079 | | 4,208 |
| | 6,314 | 21,273 | 6,738 | 22,574 |
| Total number of cases of all descriptions brought before the police magistracy and the courts, including cases pending at the beginning of the year, and those primarily cognizable by the courts | 7,212 | 19,105 | 7,619 | 20,383 |
| Convicted and punished | | 3,645 | | 3,598 |
| Per-centage | | 19 | | 17 |

Appendix, No 15

The ratio of convicted and punished to accused was only 17 per cent, so that 83 out of every 100 must have been arraigned on insufficient grounds In some districts, North Arcot and Tinnevelly, it is as low as 10 per cent. It does not, however, appear in what classes of offences, falling under the general term of crimes and misdemeanors, this disproportion has been most marked, whether in those of a flagrant or those of a less serious character, and it is important to the due estimation of the state of crime, properly so called, that this distinction should be drawn In future the per-centage of convicted to apprehended should be given in regard to the heinous offences (Table No 2 C), or those involving grave injury to person or property, so, as regards petty offences, theft is the only one demanding serious notice, and the proportion between those accused of it and convicted, should in like manner be separately exhibited in the Tables.

5 The persons punished for crimes and misdemeanors in 1850, and given above at 3,598, were convicted by the undermentioned authorities

|---|---|
| Malabar | 32 cases. |
| Canara | 30 |
| Cuddapah | 24 |
| Bellary | 20 |
| Salem | 23 |

In Ganjam, Rajahmundry, North Arcot, Coimbatore, Madura and Tinnevelly the number of cases ranged from 12 to 16

8. Compared with 1849 there was a considerable increase in this crime in

| | Increase |

| Cuddapah | 8 |
| Bellary | 11 |
| Coimbatore | 7 |
| Trichinopoly | 6 |
| Malabar | 10 |
| Canara | 10 |

The other offences against the person were below those committed in the preceding year

9 In the offences against property, house-breaking occupies a conspicuous place, being 5,959 out of 11,127, or more than 50 per cent, and showing a large increase (943 cases)

above 1849, but referring to the observations which some of the magistrates have offered in their Reports, the number would appear to be greatly swelled by cases scarcely falling under the designation of house-breaking Mr Bourdillon, Magistrate of North Arcot, writes, "A large proportion of the offences classed as house-breaking, are of an extremely trivial character compared with the idea which we usually associate with that term; the "house," a mere hut, offering scarcely any resistance to the "breaking," and the property stolen only about one or two rupees" Similar remarks are made by the acting magistrate of South Arcot and the acting magistrate of Cuddapah The Foujdaree Udalut should direct the magistrates to classify such trifling cases where the mat-door of a hut has been pushed aside, and property worth but a few annas stolen, with petty thefts, and to range under the head of house-breaking those only where the instrument for breaking a wall has been used, where a house, not a mere mat-hut, has been entered.

10 In the other offences against property there is a decrease of 150 in robbery with aggravating circumstances, but an increase under the remaining heads, large however, in simple robbery 298, and theft 115.

11. The operations of the village police embraced 11,087 cases of petty assault, 1,585 of petty theft, and 6 other offences, making in all 12,678 cases, which were disposed of as follows.

12. There has been a considerable increase in the business performed by the village police in Rajahmundry (a), Nellore (b), North (c) and South (d) Arcot, Chingleput (e), Coimbatore (f), Trichinopoly (g), Tinnevelly (h), and Malabar (i), and a decrease in Guntoor (k), Bellary (l), Tanjore (m), Madura (n), and Canara (o)

13. No cases would appear to have been investigated by the village authorities in Ganjam and Vizagapatam, either in the regulation or in the agency tracts, and the Government wish to know the reason.

23 It is observed that in two districts, Nellore and Tinnevelly, not a single case was investigated by the magistrate, and in some other districts* but very few cases. The Right Honourable the Governor in Council attaches great importance to the heads of the different districts taking due part in the discharge of their magisterial, no less than their revenue functions, and not devolving the former duties wholly upon their subordinates The attention of the judges of the Foujdaree Udalut will be directed to the subject, and they will be desired

In forwarding this Table for the future, the result of the reviews of the proceedings of the Principal Sudder Ameens, and of the appeals from them, should be exhibited separately from those of the Subordinate Judges It is of importance to show clearly the manner in which the Principal Sudder Ameens perform their criminal duties

31 The criminal jurisdiction vested in sudder ameens by section 11, Regulation III of 1833, is reported to have been satisfactorily exercised by them It appears from the preceding Tables that on a review by the Session Courts of the proceedings of these officers, there were only 32 instances out of 1,375 in which their sentences were reversed, and 50 in which the sentences were modified Of 68 appeals, 45 have been affirmed and 23 reversed, and, with reference to these latter cases, the Government would again draw the attention of the Foujdaree Udalut to the hope expressed by the Honourable Court of Directors in paragraph 2 of their judicial despatch, dated 11th June 1851, No 6, that "pains are taken to explain to the sudder ameens in what respect they may have fallen into error, so as gradually to train them up to the performance of this comparatively novel branch of their duty."

36. The number of suicides is given at 398 males, 643 females, 14 children Table (Q.)

Of these latter 13 were by drowning, 1 by poison. They were probably accidental, and should have been classed as such Suicides appear to have occurred more largely in Rajahmundry and Bellary than in the remaining districts.

37 The number of accidental deaths is given at 1,852 males, 1,382 females, 1,359 children

These were most numerous in Rajahmundry, Cuddapah, Bellary, North Arcot, Salem, Coimbatore, Malabar and Canara

38 The following abstract shows the periods during which persons were detained before the police, the magistracy and the courts: Table (R)

The Government observe from the above statement that for petty offences before the police, 51,602 persons were detained for periods running from three days to sixty and upwards, of whom 11,823 were detained above thirty days, and as the number punished altogether was only 45,829, it follows that many were detained who were not offenders Again, it is to be remarked that 12,543 persons were detained from three to upwards of thirty days for crimes and misdemeanors, while the provisions of Clause 4, Section 27, Regulation XI. of 1816, limit the time for inquiry to 48 hours The Judges of the Foujdaree Udalut will be pleased to give their attention to the subject

Appendix, No. 15.

If, as it is to be inferred, the whole population be here taken into account, the proportion of persons summoned for petty offences seems very large The Governor in Council must however again remark that a distinction should be made between offences which are criminal in their nature and essence, and may justly be termed petty crimes, and those which are no crimes, as trifling affrays, the use of abusive language, and the like. To range these trivial acts with crimes such as thefts, only obscures the real state of the administration of criminal justice The Government would wish an abstract table to be furnished for the future, exclusive of such paltry cases, and limited to bonâ fide crimes, distinguished into small and great.

40. The letter of the Register to the Foujdaree Udalut, 23 August 1851, forwarding the Annual Criminal Reports for 1850, transmitted one hundred and sixteen enclosures. Of these, the first twenty-six are the general or abstract statements whence the succeeding nineteen Tables (A ) to (S ), have been compiled As these tables are intended to exhibit in a clear form the principal information contained in the statements, the transmission of these latter documents to Government seems needless and may henceforward be discontinued. The remaining enclosures, seventy-one in number, consist of reports from the Session Judges and magistrates on the state of crime and operations of the police, magistracy, and courts in the respective Zillahs, with extracts from the proceedings of the Foujdaree Udalut, commenting on any reports which seemed to require remark. It would evidently be a great improvement if the information conveyed in these papers were condensed and arranged, and submitted in a convenient shape The Government resolve to draw the attention of the Judges of the Foujdaree Udalut to the "Report of Crime and of the Police Administration of the Zillahs subject to the Bombay Presidency for the year 1849," copy of which has lately been furnished to them In that report a concise review, prefaced by a comparative abstract statement, is given for each Zillah, of the state of crime and causes which have influenced it, and the "general results" are subsequently exhibited. The Right Honourable the Governor in Council desires that a similar report for the districts under this Presidency be drawn up annually by the Foujdaree Udalut, to be printed together with the Criminal Tables. He does not however approve the classification or designation of offences in the Bombay Zillah Abstract Statement, and in the "General Results," and is of opinion that the Abstract Statements to be submitted by the Foujdaree Udalut in their report should be modified so as to correspond with the classification obtaining in the present tables. The petty cases already noticed, should also be excluded from the statement, and be shown separately Two additional tables should likewise be furnished, corresponding with Statements Nos vi (a), vii (b), annexed to the Bombay Report.

e g In the form of Statement and Table of General Results —
1 Assault with homicide
2 Homicide
3 Murder

CIVIL JUSTICE, 1850

REPORT of the SUDDER UDALUT on the ADMINISTRATION of CIVIL JUSTICE under the MADRAS PRESIDENCY, for the Year 1850

FROM G T Beauchamp, Esq , Register to the Court of Sudder Udalut, to T Pycroft, Esq , Secretary to Government in the Judicial Department

Sir, Madras, 8 December 1851

1 I AM directed by the Judges of the Court of Sudder Udalut to submit the accompanying Tables (A ) to (U ), exhibiting the operations of the Civil Courts in this Presidency during 1850, together with the statement entered in the margin * The other statements, which have hitherto been forwarded with the Annual Report, are not now sent, with reference to the orders of Government, dated 26th November 1851, dispensing with the corresponding returns formerly transmitted with the Criminal Report

* Abstract statement, showing the work performed by each Judicial Officer

2 The Judges regret that the delay in the preparation of these Tables has been greater than they anticipated when submitting the report for 1849 They are able, however, to state that the statements have in general been more accurately prepared in the present than in former years , and, with the exception of the heading connected with the Zillah of Honore, the returns from which had to be returned twice, and were finally received corrected only on the 20th November, and the tracts under the Agent at Vizagapatam, the Tables were all filled up before the close of October

3 With reference to the orders of Government, dated 20th March and 28th August 1849, the Judges direct me to report that extracts from the registers of lands held by the native functionaries and ministerial Servants, accompanied by the prescribed certificates, have been submitted by all the Civil Judges

I have, &c

Read the following letter from the Register of the Sudder Udalut.

(Here enter 8th December 1851, No. 142.)

Submitting the Civil Reports for the year 1850

Para 1. The Right Honourable the Governor in Council proceeds to review the Tables submitted by the Court of Sudder Udalut, with their Register's letter, dated 8th December 1851, No 142, explanatory of the administration of Civil Justice under the Madras Presidency during 1850

Table (A.)

2 The number of original suits filed during the year in all the zillahs, exclusive of the agencies, for which there are no returns, amounted to 78,427, the value sued for being, rupees 54,82,053 The suits were in excess of those filed in 1849 by 7,993, and the value of property under litigation greater by rupees 7,67,218 The increase occurred chiefly in the courts of the district moonsiffs (where there had been a decrease in 1849), 4,695 suits, sudder ameens, 1,847, and village moonsiffs, 1,436 The greatest number of suits was filed in Combaconum, 10,311, in the other zillahs the number ranged from 1,915 in Chicacole, to 5,778 in Cuddapah.

| | NUMBER OF SUITS. | AMOUNT |
| | | Rs |
| 1849 - - - - - - - - - | 70,434 | 47,14,835 |
| 1850 - - - - - - - - - | 78,427 | 54,82,053 |
| Increase - - - | 7,993 | 7,67,218 |

Particulars of the above:

| | NUMBER OF SUITS. | AMOUNT. | INCREASE COMPARED WITH 1849. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | Rs. | | Rs. |
| For land - - - - | 4,742 | 9,71,473 | 240 | 2,48,067 |
| Houses or other fixed property | 1,605 | 2,27,592 | 102 | 83,873 |
| Bonds and simple debts - | 64,092 | 37,13,172 | 7,089 | 3,08,841 |
| On other accounts - - | 7,988 | 5,69,816 | 562 | 1,26,437 |
| | 78,427 | 54,82,053 | 7,993 | 7,67,218 |

The number of suits filed for the recovery of sums due on bonds and as simple debts, 64,092, was more than 80 per cent of the entire number, the value of the land under litigation was above one-fourth of the sum at stake on account of bonds and simple debts. The value of the land sued for in the six zillahs named below was 72 per cent. of that under litigation in all the zillahs together —

| | Rs |
|---|---|
| Chittoor - - - - - - - - - | 1,24,117 |
| Combaconum - - - - - - - - | 1,42,202 |

4 The number of original suits decreed (including agency courts) is given at 31,742, or 4,218 more than in 1849 This excess, however, includes the suits (3,598) decided by village moonsiffs, village and district punchayets, which were omitted in last year's return, allowing for this, the actual increase is only 1,341

|---|---|---|
| Village Punchayets - - - - - - (E) | 13 | 7 |
| Village Moonsiffs - - - - - - (F) | 2,862 | 3,588 |
| District Punchayets - - - - - - (G) | 2 | 3 |
| District Moonsiffs - - - - - - (H)* | 21,573 | 21,470 |
| Sudder Ameens - - - - - - (K) | 4,425 | 4,929 |
| Subordinate Judges, Principal Sudder Ameens and Assistants to Agencies - - - (N) | 1,495 | 1,700 |
| Civil Judges - - - - - - - (Q) | 31 | 45 |
| | 30,401 | 31,742 |

* The percentage of original suits decided in favour of plaintiffs to the whole number decreed was 86, and was highest in Cuddapah, 95, and Calicut, 92, and lowest in Tinnevelly, 70, and Rajahmundry, 74 The percentage of appeals decided in favour of the appellants was 44 The percentages in 1849 were respectively 85 and 45

Table (C)

5 The average duration of each suit disposed of in 1850, excluding agencies for which no returns were rendered in the preceding year, was on the whole greater than in 1849, both in original suits and in appeals

| | ORIGINAL SUITS | | | APPEAL SUITS | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Y | M | D | Y. | M | D |
| 1849 - - - - - - - | 0 | 11 | 22 | 0 | 10 | 15 |
| 1850 - - - - - - - | 1 | 1 | 8 | 1 | 0 | 25 |
| Increase - - - | 0 | 1 | 16 | 0 | 2 | 10 |

Looking to the results of 1850, inclusive of the agencies, it is observed that in original suits the duration has been greatest in the Tellicherry zillah, years 3-0-18, in 12 zillahs it was above one year, and below it in 10 others, of which Bellary, Coimbatore, and Kurnool are the most remarkable, the average being little above three months In appeals the average period occupied was greatest in the Ganjam Agency, years 3-1-8, it was above two years in four zillahs, above one in six, and below it in 12, in six of which it was six months and under, the lowest being in Bellary, m 1 d 17

6 Comparing the new judicial system with the system in force prior to its introduction in 1843, the average time required for passing a suit through its several stages to a final judgment in appeal is less in 10 zillahs and greater in 12 The costs are higher in 11 zillahs, the same in three, and less in eight The averages in this Table (C) have been struck on the whole number of suits decreed, the instructions conveyed in Extract Minutes of Consultation, 21st June last, on this and other points, i e the returns from the agencies, p 18, apparently not having reached the Sudder Udalut in time to be acted upon for the year under review.

10. The Right Honourable the Governor in Council desires that for the future, in this and similar* Tables, the suits pending, instituted, referred, and called up, be separately exhibited. He is at a loss to reconcile the decrease, 2,842 in the whole number of suits before before the district moonsiffs' courts, with the increase 4,695, Table (A), in the number filed. The decrease in the number pending at the beginning of the year appears to be 8,034,* and deducting the increase in suits filed, 4,695, there remains a decrease of 3,339, instead of 2,842, which would imply an increase in the number of the suits referred to the extent of the difference or 497, but the total number referred to all courts † was only 1,167 The decrease, 5,413, in the number of suits before district moonsiffs dismissed for default, and increase, 3,212, in the number dismissed under Act XVII of 1848 are considerable, and should have been explained Of the number pending, there were 4,071 suits under, and 2,070 above two years standing Nearly the whole of these last are in the zillahs on the western coast

11 There were 1,781 appeals preferred within the year from the decisions of the district moonsiffs, bearing to the total number of appealable decrees passed, the proportion of 15 per cent The number of appeals from district moonsiffs' courts disposed of within the year was 1,503, of which

|---|---|
| 800 | were affirmed by the appellate courts |
| 391 | reversed or modified |
| 219 | remanded |
| 93 | otherwise disposed of |

The ratio of appeals preferred to decrees passed was greatest in Tellicherry, 31, Tinnevelly 25, and Chicacole 24 per cent. The proportion of decrees reversed or modified on appeal to the whole number of appeals disposed of within the year was highest in those from the Chingleput district moonsiffs 51, Honore 45, and Rajahmundry 42 per cent

Tables (K),(L),(M)

12. These tables show an increase of 1,587 in the number of suits before the Sudder Ameens, and 390 in the number disposed of by them.

| | 18,735 | 20,322 |

Of the suits still pending, 363 are of more than two years' standing, and of these nearly one-third, 108, are in the Mangalore Court

13 The appeals preferred within the year bore to the whole number of appealable decrees passed during the same period the proportion of 23 per cent On examining the manner in which the appeals disposed of within the year were dealt with, it seems that of those from the Coimbatore zillah no less than 14 out of 23 were reversed or modified, the proportion is likewise large in Tinnevelly, 52 per cent, Rajahmundry 51.

2. In

Original Suits European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —R Y Bazett, Esq, acting judge, A Spens, Esq judge, A R Forbes, Esq, assistant judge

2 In the aggregate, the arrears on the files of this zillah are less by 39 than they were at the close of 1848, though there are four individual files showing an increase, viz, those of the principal Sudder Ameen, Sudder Ameen of Dholka, and Moonsiffs of Kupurwunj and Dholka, it being reported in respect to the first that a great many suits comprised in the arrears were instituted so late in the year as to leave little time for getting them ready for trial, and in regard to the others, the excess, which is small, is ascribed to an increase in the number of suits entered during the year Included in the collective arrears are seven suits on the file of the assistant judge, which exceed by five the number at the close of 1848, and the explanation afforded respecting them is, that three, filed in December, could not be got ready for hearing before the year closed, two others were awaiting the expiration of the time allowed to the defendants to give in their answers and adduce proof, and the remaining two were stayed pending the arrival of witnesses

3 On the whole, the Court views the state of business on the files of original suits of 1849, compared with 1848, as satisfactory, seeing that notwithstanding the considerable excess of 2,249 in the total number of suits for disposal, the result of the year's administration is a decrease, as already observed, in the aggregate of the arrears, that all the files, with the exception of those of Gogo, Veerungaum, and Puranteje, the arrears on which are very small, show an increase in the number of suits disposed of, and that there were only two cases delayed longer than a year, the cause of delay being the non-attendance of witnesses residing in foreign territory, on whose account commissioners had to be sent to the political authorities

Appellate File

4 There was a greater number of appeals for disposal in 1849 than in 1848, and the number disposed of exhibits an increase of 290, diminishing the arrears from 507 to 407 included in those shown as disposed of, however, there are 193, which were struck off the file of the judge, to come up before the Sudder Dewanee Adawlut as special appeals, under its circular order of the 27th July 1849, and the interpretation on Regulation VII of 1831 of the 16th idem; and it is to be regretted that so many as 145 appeals comprised in the arrears should still be among those delayed for more than a year The measure of appointing a joint judge for this zillah, sanctioned in the Government letter, No 1,705, of the 16th April last, will have the effect, it is hoped, of speedily clearing these files, and, in anticipation of this, the Court abstain from further remark on the subject

Original Suits

European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —W C Andrews, Esq , judge, A Rogers, Esq , acting assistant judge

5th The work in the court of the principal Sudder Ameen of this zillah shows an increase, but it is owing to the circumstance of the appointment having been vacant for six months in 1848. To this occurrence also is to be ascribed the increase in the aggregate number of cases disposed of in the principal division of the zillah, for if examined individually, the files of the other courts, with the exception of that of Balsar, in which, however, the total number of suits disposed of is only 318, and the increase, compared with the previous year, only 37, exhibit a decrease, not only in the total number of suits disposed of, but also in the number decided on merits

6 Although it is satisfactory that the arrears have been diminished from 722 to 612, it is to be regretted that they were still so heavy on the files of the principal Sudder Ameen, Sudder Ameen, and Moonsiff of Surat The whole of the arrears comprise only three cases of longer standing than a year, and, in respect to one of them, it is explained that the delay was in consequence of the temporary transfer of Mr Rogers to Broach, regarding the other two on the file of the principal Sudder Ameen, it is reported that one was subsequently decided in January last, and the other had to be postponed pending the adjudication of another case Briefly, the returns from the principal division of the zillah show an increase in the number of suits instituted in the total number for disposal, and in the number disposed of, and a decrease in the arrears, which it will be obvious, however, is owing to the increase in the amount of business in the court of the principal Sudder Ameen, under the circumstance alluded to

Appellate Files

7 The state of these files is more satisfactory, for although there is an increase in the number of appeals instituted, which, with the arrears of the previous year, form a considerable excess in the total number for disposal, yet owing to an increase of 240 in the number disposed of, in which is included an increase of 173 in the decisions on merits, the arrears have been reduced from 323 to 135, and there are only five of them of longer standing than a year, respecting which it is reported that one was decided in February last, that two others depended upon a case decided in appeal about that time and would be immediately taken up, and that of the remaining two, one had to be delayed pending the re-hearing of a case remanded to one of the moonsiff's courts, and the other was awaiting the arrival of documentary evidence called for from Broach.

Original Suits
European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —A B Warden Esq , acting senior assistant judge
L Ashburner, Esq , acting second assistant collector in charge, Adawlut, A Rogers, Esq , acting senior assistant judge

8 In the subordinate division of the Surat zillah, the arrears have increased on the files from 696 to 1,068, notwithstanding that the work in the courts of the Sudr Ameen and Moonsiff of Broach and Moonsiff of Jumbooseer exhibit individually an increase One cause, no doubt, of this excess in the arrears is the increased aggregate number of cases for disposal, comprising an increase of 573 in the number of suits instituted, and the acting senior assistant judge in charge adduces as another reason the absence of the Sudr Ameen on special duty from the 11th November to the 14th December, and his further absence on sick leave from the latter date up to the 24th of the month The Court is constrained to believe, however, that by exertion the accumulation might have been prevented

9 There were 37 more cases disposed of than in 1848, the decisions on merits showing an increase of 147 , but beyond this, and the circumstance of there not being a single case on the file of longer standing than a year, there is nothing to commend in the state of business represented by the Broach returns, the arrears being heavy on all the subordinate files, and especially so on the file of the Sudr Ameen, and the exertions to keep them down not appearing to have been over strenuous

Appeal File

10 The state of the appellate file is even more unsatisfactory, for although there were only 169 appeals altogether for disposal, being 47 less than the number in 1848, the arrears have been allowed to swell from eight to 44, the result of a decrease of 83 in the number disposed of, the cause of this, however, is to be found in the interruption to business during two months and a half, when the charge of the Broach Adawlut had to be committed to the third assistant collector at the station, who, of course, had not the power to decide appeals Only one of the appeals in arrear had been delayed longer than a year

Original Suits European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —R Keays, Esq, judge, F Lloyd, Esq, assistant judge

11 The business of the courts of the principal division of the Konkan zillah, inclusive of the arrears remaining from the previous year, and the cases instituted during the twelve months of the year under notice, exhibits an addition of 901 suits to the aggregate number for disposal contrasted with 1848, an increase of 973 in the number disposed of, including an increase of 823 in the number decided on trial, and a decrease of 72 in the arrears, which are still, however, of considerable amount collectively and severally.

12 There is great inequality in the amount of work performed by the subordinate judicial functionaries individually; the file of the Moonsiff of Pauwell showing 1050 decisions on merits, and that of the Moonsiff of Tarapoor only 213, and the work in the other courts ranging at various amounts between these two extremes, the inequality appearing to have been influenced, to some extent, by the disproportion in the number of suits instituted in the different courts, and by the numerous changes which took place among the native judges.

13 Among the arrears there are 15 cases of long postponement, not a very great number in proportion to the general arrears, and the judges are satisfied with the explanations which have been afforded on the subject One of these cases was decided, and two others were appointed for hearing in the early part of the present year, and respecting another of them it is reported that it is still pending, under the circumstances submitted to Government with the Court's letter, No 120, of the 15th January 1848, in the reply to which, No 306 of the 26th January last,* it was mentioned that a reference had been made to the Government of India on the matter

14. The

14 The number of appeals disposed of in 1848 having been unusually high, the number for the past year appears unfavourable by contrast, but the amount of work is still creditable to the European officers, and the arrears have not much increased, owing, it will be seen, to the very considerably reduced number of appeals for disposal compared with 1848 The arrears amounted to 567 on the 1st January 1848, and demanded an effort to reduce them, but that result accomplished, there no longer existed a necessity for the harassing exertions made by the European officers in 1848, and no blame is therefore to be attached to them on account of the present state of the arrears on these files, especially as none of the cases are of longer standing than a year

European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —F Lloyd, Esq, acting assistant and judge, A K Corfield, Esq, acting senior assistant judge

15 The files of the Moonsiffs of Sooverndroog and Scindudroog exhibit an increase in the number of original suits disposed of, but their work still contrasts unfavourably with that of some of their brethren in other zillahs, and if they, showing an increase, appear to fall under the imputation of not having exerted themselves to the utmost, how much more deservedly may it be said of the other subordinate judicial functionaries, who disposed of fewer cases, and whose work shows a decrease compared with 1848, and heavy arrears, especially the Suddur Ameens Collectively the returns exhibit a decrease in the number of suits instituted during the year, with a small increase in the number disposed of, inclusive of an excess of 125 in the decisions on trial, and a diminution of 205 in the arrears On the file of the Suddur Adawlut there are three, and on that of the Moonsiff of Sooverndroog ten cases among the arrears, which have been pending longer than a year, two of them longer than two years, the cause of delay in respect to the whole of which has been reported in detail by the acting senior assistant judge to the satisfaction of the Court

16 As the arrears on the appeal file of this Adawlut still amount to 304 cases, and 82 of them have been postponed for periods exceeding a year, it cannot be said that the state of this branch of the judicial administration of the division is satisfactory It must be confessed, however, that Mr Corfield has been actively and commendably engaged during the past year in diminishing the arrears, he found the returns exhibiting an increase of 328 in the number disposed of, the decisions on trial being 314 in excess In respect to the 82 appeal suits of more than a year's standing, Mr Corfield reports that they are thus numerous "in consequence of the immense number of arrears there were on the file above one year," when he went to Rutnagherree in March 1849

Original Suits

European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —H Brown, Esq , judge, W J Hunter, Esq , acting judge, H Newton, Esq , assistant judge

17 The returns from this zillah exhibit a falling off, to the extent of 390, in the number of original suits disposed of, the greater part of which is to be ascribed to a decrease in the work in the courts of the Sudder Ameens of Poona and Baramutty, in consequence of the absence of the incumbents, or vacancies in the appointments, which occasioned an interruption to business of those courts for nearly a third of the year The files of the Moonsiffs of Khair, Joonere, and Suleligaum also show a decrease, but then their work is exceeded in amount by few of their brethren in other zillahs, and that of one of them—the Moonsiff of Khair—is only exceeded by the labours of Narrain Mahadeo and Jugunath Bulal, city moonsiffs of this zillah, who decided 1,023 and 1,020 cases, respectively, on merits The arrears on the general file are heavy, but a great many of them, viz 957, are cases instituted in December 1849, the return for which month shows a total of 1,151 suits entered for trial at that late period of the year Included in the arrears are 49 cases of longer standing than a year, the disposal of some of which would appear, from the report of the judge on the subject, to have been unnecessarily delayed, and the Court has accordingly noticed the matter, with the view of giving weight to Mr Hunter's expressed dissatisfaction in addressing the officers concerned in respect to the delay.

Appeal File

18 In the disposal of appeals the returns show a startling decrease of 341, but the number actually disposed of, inclusive of the decisions on trial, bears a comparison with the work in the appellate courts in any other zillah, and the arrears amount to only 190, to which they have been reduced from 340, a result which is mainly attributable to the greatly reduced number for adjudication compared with the state of the previous year's file in this respect In explanation of the cause of the decrease in the amount of work, it is reported by Mr H. Newton, the officer who submitted the return, that the court of the judge was closed from the 1st March, the date on which Mr. Brown proceeded on leave, until the 23d of that month, when Mr Hunter took charge, and that the latter gentleman was much engaged for some time in the disposal of eight criminal cases, preferred against a district police officer and others, the investigation of which frequently took up the entire day It will be seen that there are only two cases which have been long delayed, in respect to one of which it is reported that the delay is attributable to the magistrate, who had failed to prepare a criminal case arising out of it, for which purpose the proceedings were forwarded to and retained by him, and in regard to the other, which has since been disposed of, it is stated that it was necessary to adjourn it, pending the decision of another case intimately connected with it

19 On the agent's file there were five original suits disposed of on merits, and on that of the assistant agent 22, together with one dismissed on default, and five adjusted, making a total of 33, which is 25 less than the number disposed of in 1848 The arrears, however, have been reduced from 27 to 17, and include only one case of longer standing than a year, the delay having been occasioned by the return of certain queries transmitted to the Judge of Benares, who required them to be drawn up in the Oordoo language, this was done, and the case was decided on the 9th of January last.

Appeal File

20 On the appeal file there is a decrease of 20 cases disposed of, and an increase of two in the arrears, none of which, however, have been long delayed

21 The agent's return of the civil business of the courts of the Jagheerdars holding sunnuds exhibits a decrease in the number of suits disposed of, together with a decrease of 124 in the arrears, which have been reduced from 254 to 130 The cases of longer standing than a year included among them amount to 14, of which four on the file of the agent of Holkar have been postponed, in consequence of his absence on leave to Indore, and as there are 28 other cases on his file in arrear, the Court addressed the Judge of Ahmednuggur to ascertain whether any steps have been taken for their disposal; and it has been intimated in reply, that the agent resumed his duties on the 16th May last. The sunnuds of four of the Jagheerdars, viz., Balwuntrow Krishu Malundulley, Bapoojee Naik Jondulley, deceased, Appajeerow Moondhey, deceased, and Krishnarow Mahdeo Pansey, deceased, have either already been, or are about to be cancelled, and their business has been transferred to the proper zillah courts, but none of their files show any arrears, excepting that of Bapoojee Naik Jondulley, on which there were four cases, which have been transferred to the Ahmednuggur Adawlut.

Original Suits European officers who presided in the court in 1849 —A. K Corfield, Esq, acting judge, W Birdwood, Esq, judge

22 The number of original suits disposed of in the courts of this zillah is less by 278 than in 1848, and it is only owing to a decrease of 486 in the number of cases filed that the arrears are not heavier than they were at the close of 1848 Viewed with reference to the extent of litigation compared with other zillahs, the arrears are heavy collectively, and on individual files, but especially so on those of the Moonsiff of Marha, and Suddur Ameen of Sholapoor, and as in the latter officer's court there were only 394 suits disposed of on trial, and the highest number disposed of in that way by any of the subordinate judicial functionaries is only 622, the number shown on the file of the Moonsiff of Marah, the state of business represented by the return of original suits cannot be considered satisfactory, nor can it be held to be sufficiently accounted for by the closing of the court of the Sudr Ameen for three months, in consequence of several changes in the appointment, and the shutting of the Barsee Court for a month and a quarter, occasioned by sickness, the only reasons assigned It is further unsatisfactory that there are 39 cases of longer standing than one year, and 11 which have been delayed beyond two, the delay of which is imputed to the necessity of making references on each of them to certain authorities, domestic and foreign. These remarks have been communicated to the zillah judge, with the expression of the assurance the Court feels that under his vigilant superintendence the courts of his zillah will be more industrious than they have been during the past year

Appellate Files

23 There is an increase of 42 in the number of appeals disposed of, but it is not followed by a diminution of the arrears, which are four in excess, attributed to an excess of 51 in the number of appeals instituted. The whole of the arrears amount to only 24, and none of them are of long standing.

24 A decrease in the number of suits instituted on the files of the Sudder Ameens of Seroor and Nassick, and Moonsiffs of Rahoory, Newasa, Nassick, Rahata, and Nuggur, is referred to as the cause of a falling off in the number disposed of by these officers; and an additional reason assigned in the case of the courts of the Moonsiffs of Rahata and Nuggur is, that they were closed, the latter from the 1st November to the 11th December, and the former from the 7th March to the 16th April There is also a decrease in the amount of work performed in the courts of the Moonsiffs of Sungumnair, Sinnur, and Jamkair, and this leaves only the courts of the principal Sudder Ameen and Moonsiffs of Patoda and Chandore as exhibiting an increase The judges are not disposed to accept the first cause as sufficient to explain the falling off in the amount of work on the files referred to, seeing that the arrears on each of them are heavy, though at the same time they are ready to admit that the work on some, especially the files of the Moonsiff of Nuggur, who has usually a heavy amount of work to dispose of, and of the Sudder Ameen of Seroor, is very creditable in respect to amount The general result is a decrease of 1,951 suits disposed of

25 There is not a single subordinate file on which the arrears are not comparatively heavy, their aggregate showing an increase of 442, an increase in the balance on the files of the principal Sudder Ameen and Moonsiff of Patoda being ascribed to a greater number of suits instituted The Sudder Ameen of Seroor, and Moonsiffs of Sungumnair, Chandore Newasa, and Sinnur, have urged that most of the suits in arrear on their files were filed at the close of the year, but on referring to the monthly return for December, it is found that only 611 suits were entered in that month in their courts, while their arrears amount to 1,365 Respecting the aggregate arrears, it is so far satisfactory that there are only 20 cases among them of longer standing than a year, and that only two of these have been attended with any unnecessary delay, which the zillah judge has not failed to notice with proper reprehension

26 On the appellate files the arrears have increased from 41 to 162, and the number disposed of shows a great decrease of 663, which the acting judge attributes to the withdrawal of the temporary assistance which the appointment of a joint judge afforded; but another cause no less operative would appear to have been the frequent changes which took place among the European officers during the past year, the falling off in the number disposed of on the judge's file being very considerable There is not a single case of long standing among the arrears, which is satisfactory

S Bagshaw, Esq, assistant judge, W H Havelock, Esq, second assistant collector in charge, Adawlut

27. In this zillah the Sudr Ameen of Malligaum, and Moonsiff of Yawul and Dhoolia, appear to have exerted themselves to dispose of a heavy amount of business, and all the files show an increase of work performed, excepting the Moonsiff of Baglan's, which shows a small decrease in the total number of suits disposed of There is a great disproportion, however in the amount of work done in some of the courts, which is most apparent in that of the Moonsiff of Nundoorbar, in which the number of suits entered and the number disposed of, bear little proportion to the business, say of the Moonsiff of Dhoolia, who disposed of 1,570 suits on trial, and 2,069 altogether. The general file shows an increase of 894 cases disposed of, but in consequence of an increase of 1,145 in the number of suits for adjudication collectively, the arrears are heavier by 251 than those for 1848, they include, however, only one case of longer standing than a year, which is a satisfactory feature of the year's judicial administration in this zillah

Appellate Files

28. The Appellate Files exhibit an increase of 58 in the number disposed of, and a diminution of 41 in the arrears, which in the aggregate amount to only 65 cases, another satisfactory feature of the administration of civil justice in this quarter, though the total amount of business is not considerable The case among the arrears of longer standing than a year is reported to be the one referred to in the Government Letter, No 1,933, of the 17th May 1849, and correspondence preceding it, the summons to the respondent in which, issued through the resident at Hydrabad, had not been returned at the date of the judge's report.

29. The state of business on the file of this zillah would be every way satisfactory, as the decisions on trial are more numerous by 919, and the total number disposed of by 1,223, whilst the arrears are reduced from 1,396 to 1,304, were it not that the arrears are still heavy in the aggregate, as well as individually, excepting on the file of the Moonsiff of Roan, the work in whose court, however, falls short in amount of that of most of the other courts There are 24 cases among the arrears which have been delayed longer than a year, of these 14 at the date of the judge's report were awaiting the attendance of parties and witnesses and the production of documents, &c , seven were suits that had been previously decided, but were returned in appeal for reinvestigation, two were awaiting the expiration of the time allowed at the request of the parties; and one was then under investigation

Appellate Files.

30 On the appeal files the total number of cases disposed of is less by 185, and the arrears have increased from 161 to 247, in explanation of which the zillah judge states, that, notwithstanding his having been left without an assistant for more than half the year, he disposed of 33 appeals more than in 1848, and is not answerable, therefore, for the increase of arrears The returns show that the judge disposed of 375 cases himself, and that there are no appeals among the arrears of longer standing than a year

31. The arrears on the original suits' file have increased from four cases to six, which the political agent attributes to the recent lapse of the Tasgaom estate to Government, five of the cases in arrear having originated therein None of the arrears are of longer standing than a year, one of them having been instituted on the 2d of April, four on the 28th November, and one on the 11th December, and it is reported that they will all be disposed of in due course.

Appeal File

On the appeal file the business has been very light, there having been only two cases decided on trial, and one adjusted, and there are no arrears

32 The number of original suits disposed of in the Colaba courts, viz the agent's and moonsiff's, show an increase of 183, and the arrears are less by 90 than the ywere for 1848. The agent takes occasion in his report to mention, in terms of commendation, the care and assiduity of the moonsiff in the discharge of the duties of his court, and the praise appears merited, as that officer's file shows an increase of 177 decisions on trial, the total number disposed of in this way being 968, which is very creditable, and there is not a single case among his arrears of longer standing than a year, in which respect the state of the file of the agent himself is satisfactory, as there is only one case on it, which has been delayed beyond a year

Appellate File.

33 The number of appeals for disposal, inclusive of the arrears of 1848 and the cases instituted in 1849, exhibits an increase of 62, and the number disposed of an increase of 43, but the arrears are heavier by 19 The agent reports that he was only enabled to dispose of more cases during the past year by setting apart certain days for this duty exclusively, a measure he found it necessary to adopt in consequence of the varied nature of his duties, he also reports that he disposed of 60 disputed claims to attached property, each of which cost him as much time as would an appeal. The arrears on this file amount to 54 cases, the whole of which were entered during the year

General Original Suit File

34 The general result of the past year's judicial administration of this presidency, as exhibited in the above abstract statement, is on the whole satisfactory In 1848 there was a decrease of 2,018 in the number of original suits instituted, and in 1849 there is an increase shown of 3,361 In the former year a decrease of 6,501 occurred in the number disposed of, while in the latter there is an increase of 3,134, the increase in the number decided on merits being 3,153, and although the arrears have increased from 12,959 to a total of 13,313, the increase, viz 354, bears a very small proportion, about a ninth, to the increase in the number of suits instituted Again, the arrears for 1848 comprised as many as 390 cases which had been delayed longer than a year, but the number of such postponed cases for 1849 is reduced to 193, or about 1 in 69 of the collective amount of arrears, which is not a high proportion, compared with the usual state of the files in this respect Most of the zillahs show an increase in the average number of cases decided on trial, the only exceptions being those noted in the margin, and perhaps this average might be increased if the jurisdictions of the several subordinate functionaries were more nicely adjusted, so as to ensure a more accurate division of labour among them, the work to be performed in some courts being considerably lighter than in others

Poonah, Sholapoor, Ahmednuggur.

General Appeal File

35. An analysis of the general appellate file shows a decrease of 465 in the number instituted, a decrease of 896 in the number disposed of, the falling off in the decisions on trial being 1,401, and a decrease of 391 in the arrears. During the past year the measure of erecting Khandesh into a separate zillah was carried into effect, and was productive of immediate good as regards the branch of the judicial administration in that zillah, and if it has failed of equal success in the Ahmednuggur division, it is owing to the fortuitous circumstances already mentioned The decrease in the number of appeals disposed of is the aggregate result of individual decreases in the Adawluts noted in the margin, moderated by increases on the remaining files

Broach, Tannah, Poonah, Ahmednuggur, Dharwar

Revenue Courts

36 The general original suit file of the Revenue Courts (vide Statement No 3) shows a total of 1,533 instituted, being an increase of 139 over 1848, a total of 1,511 disposed of, or 68 in excess, and an increase of arrears from 408 to 430, included among which are 32 cases of longer standing than a year The arrears in the appellate files of these courts (see Statement No 4), have increased from 87 to 102, which is chiefly owing to the greater number of cases instituted, as the number disposed of exhibits an increase Among the arrears there are 22 cases which have been postponed longer than a year.

37 Compared with 1848, the number of appeals filed in the Suddur Dewanee Adawlut shows an increase of 57, and an excess of 44 in the total number for disposal, the difference in the former being attributable to the operation of the law under the interpretation of the 16th July 1849, on Regulation VII of 1831, declaring that special appeals only lie to this court, in consequence of which numerous appeals were handed up to it from the files of the different zillah Adawluts In the disposal of work, a comparison between the two years exhibits a difference of four against 1849 in the number of cases disposed of, including those dismissed on default and settled by adjustment, but a difference of two in favour of it in the number of decisions on investigation

38 The result of this small decrease in the number disposed of, and the more than proportionate increase in the number for disposal, is an increase of 48 in the arrears The court during the year was constituted of Messrs. A. Bell, B Hutt, (who proceeded to Europe on the 1st May) J Warden, P W Le Geyt, and G Grant, and the following is an abstract of the appeals these gentlemen decided severally and conjointly.

REMARKS

In addition to the work performed by the judges and session judges as herein shown, the number of criminal cases confirmed and reviewed on petitions by them during the period embraced in this statement is as follows:

| Names of European Officers. | Confirmed | Reviewed on Prisoners' Petitions |
|---|---|---|
| W. J Hunter, Esq - - - | 4 | 10 |
| R Y Bazett, Esq - - - | 4 | 5 |
| C G Prendergast, Esq - - | 2 | 2 |
| J W Woodcock, Esq - - | 1 | 2 |
| TOTAL - - - | 11 | 19 |

Mr D C Leighton was acting assistant judge and session judge from 1 January to 13 February 1849

Mr H P St G Tucker, as assistant judge and session judge from 14 February to 31 December 1849

The assistant judge, Mr Tucker, was absent from the Sudur station on leave from 20 August to 1 October 1849

In last year Mr Hunter, the judge and session judge, was absent from the Sudur station as follows —From 6 January to 4 February 1849 on circuit to Dholl, from 16 March transferred to Poona as acting judge and session judge of that place, and acting agent for sirdars in the Deccan

Mr Bazett was acting judge and session judge from 23 March to 8 June 1849

Mr Prendergast was acting judge and session judge from 11 June to 2 October 1849

Mr Woodcock was acting joint judge and session judge from 1 to 13 January 1849, and acting judge and session judge from 20 October to 31 December 1849

(a) Two cases against prisoner (Luxumon Aya Wullud Nagaya) entered as disposed of in the return, for the month of September 1849, have since been readmitted, and consequently they have been omitted in the statement

In addition to the number of criminal cases shown as disposed of in this return, one case from the magisterial department was reviewed by Mr Hunter while holding sessions at Dhoolia, and five cases by Mr Bazett, from 14 June up to 31 December 1849

Orders in the English department, or outward English letters, are not entered in the accounts of miscellaneous business

(b) This includes three cases from the assistant session judge sent up for confirmation, and ten cases appealed to the session judge

(c) This includes 28 inquiries into petitions of persons claiming to sue or defend as paupers, and 59 cases of persons claiming to be declared heirs or executors to persons deceased

(d) This does not include 165 cases transferred to the judge's file on Mr Coxson's departure to assume charge of his appointment as first assistant to the commissioner of Sattara, nor one transferred previous to that

RESOLUTION.

Resolved, That the following letter be addressed to the Register of the Sudder Dewanee Adawlut, in reply to his letter, dated the 31st July last, No 1,975, submitting the returns of civil business transacted by the several judicial authorities under this presidency during the year 1849

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT

To the Register of the Sudder Dewanee Adawlut.

Sir,

I AM directed by the Right Honourable the Governor in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 3d July last, No 1,975, submitting the returns of civil business transacted by the several judicial authorities under this presidency during the year 1849.

Ahmedabad

2 The results presented by the returns from Ahmedabad are favourable to the civil administration of that zillah during the year reported on. They show an increase in the aggregate number, both of original suits and appeals disposed of The arrears, however, although less, are very heavy, and his Lordship in Council hopes that the expectation of the Court of seeing these arrears speedily cleared away by the assistance of the joint judge sanctioned for this zillah will be realized

Suits

3 The file of original suits from Surat does not suggest any remarks from Government. His Lordship in Council has observed with satisfaction the great reduction in the arrears of appeals

Broach.

4 The Broach files are unsatisfactory, they exhibit a great increase in arrears, both of original suits and appeals the number of cases disposed of, as shown in the file of the former, although little in excess compared with that given in the returns of the previous year, is still considerably less than the decisions of the year preceding it. This result is not creditable to the several functionaries of this division of the Surat zillah, and his Lordship in Council desires that they may be so informed

Tannah

5 The amount of work performed in the Tannah zillah shows an excess of original suits disposed of, but it should be borne in mind that this excess is over the returns of the previous year, which exhibited a considerable decrease of decisions compared with the returns for 1847 As respects the appeal file, his Lordship in Council concur with the Court, that because there were fewer cases for disposal during the year, " there no longer existed a necessity for the harassing exertions made by the European officers in 1848," seeing that the arrears have increased

6 Adverting to the 13th para., I am desired to observe that Government have recently received from Calcutta forms used by the Mofussil courts under that presidency in issuing process for execution within the jurisdiction of Her Majesty's courts The Honourable Company's solicitor has been requested to report as to the expediency of introducing similar forms at this presidency When his opinion has been received, Government will address the Sudder Adawlut on the subject.

Rutnagherry

7 The great increase in the decisions of appeals, especially on merits, as observable in the returns from this collectorate, is very creditable to Mr Corfield. By the further continued exertions of the senior assistant judge, Government hopes that the arrears now pending will be speedily reduced

Poonah

8 The files of the Poonah zillah are not satisfactory; they show a diminution in the amount of work performed, especially with regard to original suits Government approve of the Court having addressed to the judge the communication alluded to in the 17th para. of your letter The reduction by nearly one-half of the appeals in arrear is however favourable

9 The Poonah agent's file also exhibits a decrease in decisions both of original suits and appeals, had the exertions of the agent and his assistant during the year reported on equalled their exertions during the previous year, there would have remained no arrears.

Deckan Jagheerdars

10 The reduction by nearly one-half of the arrears on the files of the Deckan Jagheerdars is satisfactory The falling off in the decisions would appear to have been owing to the same cause which was apparent on inspecting the returns of the previous year, viz, the reduction of their courts

11 His Lordship in Council concurs with the Court in considering the returns of original suits from the Sholapoor zillah unsatisfactory, and approves of the communication made to the judge to the effect stated in the 22d para of your letter It is further to be remarked with regard to this file, that the number of decisions has decreased since 1847 by nearly one-third The appeal file does not call for any remarks from Government

Ahmednuggur

12 The returns from Ahmednuggur present a very unfavourable contrast as exhibiting a considerable decrease in decisions, and increase in arrears, notwithstanding there were fewer suits instituted, and fewer appeals preferred The causes assigned may perhaps be partly admissible, but his Lordship in Council desires that the Court will impress on the several functionaries of this zillah the necessity for greater exertions on their part for the future.

13 With the exception of an increase in arrears of original suits, the files from the Candesh zillah are satisfactory This increase, however, is not owing to any laxity on the part of the functionaries in the performance of their work, for the decisions show an excess in the aggregate, but to a more than proportionate increase in the number of suits filed With regard to the letter quoted in the 28th para of your letter, I am desired to state, that a further reference will be made to the Resident at Hydrabad, to expedite the return of the summons therein referred to Candesh

14 The arrears of original suits on the files of the Dharwar zillah are still heavy It is, however, satisfactory to observe, that the cause is not attributable to any want of exertion on the part of the deciding authorities, as the amount of their work shows an excess by nearly one-sixth, compared with the returns of the previous year, and by nearly one-half contrasted with those of 1836, from which year the decisions have been on the increase. The decrease in decisions, and increase in arrears on the appellate file are to be regretted, but Government are of opinion, that under the explanation afforded by the judge, he is exonerated from all blame in this respect Dharwar

15 The state of the files of the political agent in the Southern Mahratta Country calls for no comments from Government, the cause of the increase in arrears of original suits having been accounted for by him satisfactorily Southern Mahratta Country political agent

16 The contrast presented by the returns from Colaba is, on the whole, satisfactory His Lordship in Council considers both the agent and the moonsiff of this state fully entitled to the commendations expressed by the Court. Colaba

17 Under the circumstances stated in the 37th and succeeding paras of your letter, no comments would appear to be necessary on the file of the Sudder Adawlut Sudder Adawlut

18 The state of the files of original suits in the aggregate are, on the whole, satisfactory They show an increase in the number of cases disposed of over the returns of the previous year, but on a contrast with those of the year preceding it, the work performed during the year reported on would appear to be less by about four per cent The increase in arrears may be fairly attributed to the increase in the number of suits instituted, and the reduction by more than one-half of cases remaining undisposed of for longer than a year is favourable General results.

19 With respect to the suggestion contained in the latter part of the 34th para of your letter, for better adjusting the division of work among the subordinate functionaries, I am instructed to state that his Lordship in Council will be happy to have before him any plan the Court may propose to adopt for ensuring this object

20 The general appellate file contrasts very unfavourably, as exhibiting a falling off in decisions in the aggregate at about 15 per cent, and on merits at about 25 per cent

21. Adverting to the remarks contained in the 35th para. of your letter, I am desired to observe, that however fortuitous the causes may have been, Government still regret to gather from those remarks, that the relief afforded to the Ahmedunggur zillah by separating Candesh from it has apparently not been attended with immediate advantage

5 The latter five statements, though not required by the Government letter above quoted, are submitted in compliance with previous orders, which are not stated to be superseded, and I am desired to add, that this being the first year of the introduction of the new form of criminal returns, considerable difficulty has been encountered in reducing the mode of preparing them in the offices of the subordinate authorities to uniformity, which has occasioned much delay

Appendix, No 15

1. The above exhibits an excess of 2,631 in the total number of crimes in 1850, compared with 1849, but it is satisfactory to observe that the increase is mostly confined to trivial offences, and that there is a decrease under,

1. Murder.
2 Gang robbery with murder.
3 Gang robbery with violence less than murder
4 Robbery with murder
5. Arson
6 Adultery.

The head of "Assault with wounding," which in the aggregate shows a decrease, is in excess in the Ahmedabad magistracy, owing, the magistrate states, to the prevailing practice among the people of that part of the country of going armed on all occasions, which practice he recommends to be suppressed, but the Court, I am desired to state, see no good reason for changing the opinion on the subject expressed in its letter, No 12, of the 3d January last

2 A considerable decrease in gang robbery, in the Kaira magistracy, is ascribed to the vigilance of the police, and an increase under the same head, in the Surat magistracy, is stated to be owing to distress occasioned by a failure of the rains The returns furnished by the magistrate of Belgaum show a remarkable decrease in gang robbery and murder, there having been 26 of the latter and 26 of the former in 1849, and only 9 of the latter and 6 of the former in 1850 In the Dharwar magistracy, a decrease of crime is attributed to the employment afforded to the tribe of Wudurs in constructing numerous tanks and other public works undertaken during the past year, especially in the Southern Talookas, this class of people being said to be prone to plunder when unemployed

3 The sums lost by robbery, and those recovered through the instrumentality of the police, together with the amount destroyed by arson in the several divisions of the presidency, are set down as follows —

| | LOST BY ROBBERY | RECOVERED | LOST BY ARSON |
|---|---|---|---|
| Ahmedabad | 90,082 | 6,178 | 3,299 |
| Kaira | 36,140 | 3,016 | 5,562 |
| Broach | 27,138 | 4,748 | 4,831 |
| Surat | 49,528 | 5,966 | 1,865 |
| Tannah | 48,965 | 8,072 | 2,858 |
| Rutnagherry | 15,798 | 3,762 | 750 |
| Poona | 33,928 | 25,124 | 209 |
| Ahmednuggur | 29,235 | 10,638 | 1,296 |
| Nassick | 15,126 | 1,658 | 185 |
| Sholapore | 32,932 | 4,193 | 280 |
| Belgaum | 48,144 | 28,529 | 1,028 |
| Dharwar | 43,330 | 5,240 | 1,670 |
| Khandeish | 71,971 | 42,988 | 201 |
| Colaba | 6,028 | 448 | — |
| TOTAL | 558,345 | 150,560 | 24,034 |

4 The above exhibits great disproportion in the amounts stolen in the several divisions as well as in the sums recovered In respect to the heavy amount stolen in the Khandeish magistracy (more than a moiety of which has been recovered), the excess, compared with 1849, is reported to be owing to two extensive gang robberies (in one of which 21,428 rupees was carried off, and 17,955 rupees in the other) committed by plunderers by profession from the Marwar Country The amount of stolen property recovered in the Poonah magistracy is larger in proportion than elsewhere, and reflects great credit on the exertions of the police

5 As regards the loss by arson, which is now, and always has been, heaviest in Guzerat, it is conjectured by one of the magistrates of that province (the magistrate of Surat) that most of the cases reported were merely accidental fires. He also reports that the town of Bardolee suffered severely from fire, but that there was no suspicion of its having been the work of an incendiary

6 The supposed number of offenders is reported be 96,591, and the number apprehended 78,366 Of the offenders brought to trial, the number who could read and write is stated at 8,123, and the number tried for second offences 2,503. The number of supposed offenders in the Dharwar magistracy alone is set down at 4,300, which, the magistrate observes, forms a vast body of criminals, but he explains, that under existing orders, every person against whom a complaint has been made is apprehended, and shown as engaged in the offence imputed to him, and that it happens that many persons are included in the list of criminals who, in fact, are innocent, and the crime with which they are charged has never been committed

7. On the subject of the general state of the police, the magistrate of Ahmedabad notices the inadequate remuneration of mookies or police patels, and promises to return to the subject on the completion of certain inquiries he is making He reports that strict injunctions have been issued throughout his charge to muster suspicious characters every night, and he recommends that extended powers be given to police amildars, being of opinion that they might safely be trusted to decide cases requiring heavier punishment than those they are now in the habit of disposing of, but he proposes that the sentences passed by them should be subject to the confirmation of the magistrate and assistant magistrate

8 The magistrate of Broach refers to a report he made to the Judicial Commissioner, in which he stated that he could confidently speak well of the stipendiary police of his charge as a body, but that he was unable to say anything favourable of the wutania or village hereditary police To the former, aided by detachments of the Guycrat provincial battalion and Guzerat irregular horse, he considers is owing the present peaceable condition of that part of the country, but the latter, he states, is unfortunately so badly remunerated by grants of land, &c, and are, at the same time, so hampered with wretched families and poorer brethren, that the village bheel, kolie, and tulavio establishments, are held in far more dread than esteem, and require quite as much looking after on the part of the patels and patrolling bodies, as do the worst characters in the country The report containing these and other remarks on the subject of the police of Broach is now before the Judicial Commissioner, and the Court has every reliance that the subject will receive that functionary's attention

9 The magistrate of Tannah again refers to the reduction of his police corps as an evil; but he considers that the capture of the remnants of the kolie gangs affords proof of the efficiency of the police system of his charge In the Rutnagherry division of the Konkun, the only stipendiary police, (if we except the magistrate observes, the Government peons, who do duty in both the revenue and police departments) is the Rutnagherry Rangers, which the magistrate considers is too reduced in number, and too burthened with onerous duties, to be able to render the efficient aid it otherwise would The system of night watch by the villagers is reported to be kept up throughout this division, but it is added that much cannot be expected as watchmen from men who are obliged to labour all day long for a livelihood. The magistrate also reports that he cannot discover that any organized police ever existed in the Peishwa's time in any portion of the Konkun

10 It is a general complaint in the Kaira magistracy (it is stated by the magistrate), that the numerical strength of the police is insufficient, and in some villages the inhabitants have entertained watchmen at their own cost, for the protection of their property These watchmen, it appears, sometimes fail to make good the losses from robberies which they are bound to do by their agreements, on which point the magistrate observes "I am not aware of there being any regulation authorising a magistrate to enforce such private arrangements, the only remedy the parties have appears to me to be by civil action" He further states, that if parties of the kolie police corps were more numerously stationed throughout the country, it would be the means of diminishing crime greatly

11 The magistrate of Sholapore, in observing that crime has not diminished in his charge, remarks, that its frontier position, and the absence of an organized village police, afford great facilities for the commission of offences The Ahmednuggur magistracy is reported to have exhibited great tranquillity during the year under report, there having been no unusual degree of insecurity to life from violence or sickness, and all the necessaries of life having been procurable at fair average rates. In the subdivision of Nassick, the magistrate observes that crime was more against the individual than against the community.

12 The new police system in the Belgaum magistracy is spoken of in terms of approbation by the magistrate, who states that he has no hesitation whatever in saying that it is already very efficient, and has given satisfaction to everybody, excepting a few shetsundies, who express discontent And this may fairly be attributed to the long time which has elapsed since remuneration to the scale fixed for the minimum has been promised, and never to this time fulfilled.

13 Taking the number apprehended of the supposed number of offenders as a criterion to judge by, the police is more efficient in the Belgaum, Nassick, Poona, Rutnagherry, Tannah, and Surat divisions than in any of the other divisions of the presidency, especially in the Ahmedabad and one or two other of the divisions in Guzerat, but it has become a trite remark, which is not the less true, however, that the number of supposed offenders, as reported to the authorities by the sufferers, is never to be depended on

14. As regards the statistics exhibited by the Gaol Hospital Returns, it will be seen that the rate of mortality exceeds 6 per cent in only the Broach, Surat, Tannah, Ahmednuggar, and Ahmedabad gaols The rates in each of the gaol hospitals are as follows —

|---|---|---|---|
| Ahmedabad gaol | - - - - - - | 7 421 | per cent. |
| Kaira ,, | - - - - - - | 4 166 | ditto |
| Surat ,, | - - - - - - | 20 814 | ditto |
| Broach ,, | - - - - - - | 25 563 | ditto |
| Tannah ,, | - - - - - - | 8 784 | ditto |
| Rutnagherry ,, | - - - - - - | 2 839 | ditto |
| Poona ,, | - - - - - - | 2 258 | ditto |
| Sholapoor ,, | - - - - - - | 5 759 | ditto |
| Ahmednuggur | - - - - - - | 7 323 | ditto |
| Nassick ,, | - - - - - - | 2 272 | ditto |
| Khandesh ,, | - - - - - - | 5 323 | ditto |
| Dharwar ,, | - - - - - - | 3 143 | ditto |
| Colaba ,, | - - - - - - | 5 970 | ditto |

15 The average mortality of six per cent. is exceeded in the Broach, Surat, Tannah, Ahmedabad, and Ahmednuggur gaols Out of a total of 26 deaths in the last-mentioned gaol, 10 occurred from cholera. In the Broach gaol there were 34 deaths, of which 13 were from cholera and diarrhœa, and there were 25 out of 46 from the same diseases in the Surat gaol, and 8 from dysentery In the Tannah gaol there were 7 deaths from cholera, 9 from diarrhœa, 11 from intermittent fever, and 16 from ulcers, out of a total of 73 In the Dharwar gaol, besides 21 deaths in the gaol hospital, giving a rate of 3 143, there were 21 deaths from cholera among the prisoners, which increases the rate to a little more than 6½ per cent, but they were not shown in the hospital return, because the cases were not medically treated, most of the convicts attacked suppressing all knowledge of it until too late

16. On the whole, the results shown by this report are considered favourable, inasmuch as crime in general has not materially increased, whilst the most serious offences have diminished. The Court would also direct the attention of Government to the favourable result of the reform, as far as it has gone, of the village police in Belgaum, as it affects crime in that district, and would observe that there appears to be no reason to believe that equally good results would not follow similar measures in other zillas

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

RESOLUTION.

Resolved, That the following letter be written to the Sudder Foujdaree Adawlut, in reply to their register's letter of the 26th January last, No 263, forwarding the returns of crime in the several zillahs under this presidency, for the year 1850.

No. 1,981 of 1852.

To the Register of the Sudder Foujdaree Adawlut.

Sir,

No 5,295. I am directed by the Right Honourable the Governor in Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 26th January last, No 263, submitting the returns of crime in the several zillahs under this presidency, for the year 1850

2 These returns do not call for any lengthened remarks. In the aggregate they show an increase in the number of offenders and offences, as also in the amount of property lost by robbery

3. Although the excess in the number of cases is confined specially to those of minor description, yet the more heinous crimes, taken separately, as will appear from the annexed statement, exhibit an increase, principally under the heads of unaggravated gang robberies, and robberies with or without violence.

| ——— | Increase. | Decrease |
|---|---|---|
| Heinous crimes, assaults, with homicide | 11 | — |
| Ditto - - - with wounding or other violence | - - - | 4 |
| Arson | - - - | 107 |
| Child-stealing | 7 | — |
| Forgery, or counterfeiting the coin | 8 | — |
| Homicide | 6 | — |
| Murder | - - - | 19 |
| Perjury | 12 | — |
| Rape | 15 | — |
| Receiving stolen goods | 47 | — |
| Gang robbery, with murder | - - - | 5 |
| Ditto - - - with violence | - - - | 17 |
| Unaggravated robbery | 25 | — |
| Robbery, with murder | - - - | 4 |
| Ditto - with violence | 124 | — |
| Ditto - unaggravated | 667 | — |
| Theft, with murder | 3 | — |
| Treason, rebellion, and | 14 | — |
| Thuggee | 1 | — |
| | 940 | 156 |
| | 156 | — |
| Increase - - - | 784 | — |
| Minor thefts, adultery | - - - | 12 |
| Assaults, simple | 458 | — |
| Thefts, simple | 1,130 | — |
| Miscellaneous | 271 | — |
| | 1,859 | 12 |
| | 12 | — |
| Increase - - - | 1,847 | — |
| Aggregate heinous crimes | 900 | 156 |
| Minor offences | 1,859 | 12 |
| | 2,799 | 168 |
| | 168 | — |
| Increase - - - | 2,631 | — |

4 The crimes against person also show an increase, but those against life a small decrease. Of the stolen property a little more than one-fourth only has been recovered

5 In para. 1 of your remarks it is stated that the excess in the crime of assault in the Ahmedabad magistracy is attributed to the prevailing practice among the people of that part of the country of going armed on all occasions. This practice the magistrate recommends should be suppressed.

6 But on this point the Right Honourable the Governor in Council is inclined to agree with the Court The time may arrive hereafter, but it has not yet arrived, when the state of the country would warrant the proposal being entertained

7 Government are in daily expectation of receiving the sanction of the Government of India for the introduction of the plan of reform for the police of this presidency, when the remarks in paras 7 to 12 of your letter will engage attention

8 The statements of work performed by the several judicial authorities give satisfactory results The decisions on trials are in excess, with trifling exceptions, as regards the number of prisoners "acquitted after investigation" before the village police, and of those "otherwise disposed of" by the magistrates and assistant magistrates The following table will show these results in the aggregate, as compared with the returns for 1849.

| 1849 - - - | 1,085 | 74,321 | 75,406 | 22,310 | 19,833 | 31,172 | 1,024 | - | 1,067 | 75,406 |
| 1850 - - - | 1,067 | 78,588 | 79,655 | 22,863 | 20,882 | 33,859 | 965 | 1 | 1,085 | 79,655 |
| Increase - - | – | 4,267 | 4,249 | 553 | 1,049 | 2,687 | - | 1 | 18 | 4,249 |
| Decrease - - | 18 | – | – | – | – | – | 59 | – | – | – |

9 The aggregate of mortality among the prisoners in gaols amounts to above seven and a half per cent., being one and a half per cent in excess of the rate, demanding no special explanation But this excess would seem to have been occasioned principally by the greater number of deaths in the Surat and Broach gaols, in which the mortality amounted to 20 and 25 per cent respectively

10 I am, in conclusion, desired to draw the Court's attention, with reference to para. 12 of this Report, to my letter No 4,657, dated 28th November 1848 (para. 6), and request to be informed whether the magistrate did not consider that the passage in question authorised the fulfilment by him of any pledge to the purport stated which the superintendent, under the magistrate's order, may have given If this were not the case, why did not the magistrate refer to Government for explicit instructions?

Appendix, No 18.

Gentlemen, India Board, 18 March 1835

The Court of Directors and this Board have, on more than one occasion, intimated to the local Government their wish that the people of India might be relieved from the transit duties, but that measure has not hitherto been adopted

The report lately made by Mr Trevelyan upon the inland customs and town duties of the Bengal Presidency enables us to estimate the whole extent of the injury which these duties bring upon trade, and at the same time to calculate the immediate effect which their abolition would produce upon the revenue

To that report I request that you will direct the attention of the Court

It would be impossible for me to state in a letter the substance of that able document, which contains a full exposition of facts, and a luminous commentary upon them, but it may be convenient that I should place before the Court some of the more important particulars

It is unnecessary for me to observe upon the extreme importance to India of encouraging the cotton manufacture, which has of late years been so nearly superseded by the importation of British cottons.

While the cotton manufactures of England are imported into India on payment of a duty of 2 ½ per cent, the cotton manufactures of India are subjected to a duty on the raw material of 5 per cent, to a further duty on yarn of 7 ½ per cent., to an additional duty upon the manufactured article of 2 ½ per cent, and finally, to another duty of 2 ½ per cent if the cloth should be dyed after the rowannah has been taken out for it as white cloth

Thus altogether the cotton goods of India pay 17 ½ per cent

We have been endeavouring to improve the leather manufactures of India, but our efforts are to no inconsiderable extent counteracted by the duties which have been suffered to remain

The raw hide pays 5 per cent., on being manufactured into leather it pays 5 per cent more, and when the leather is made into boots and shoes, a further duty is imposed of 5 per cent Thus, in all, there is a duty of 15 per cent

We desire that at the earliest period consistent with the safety of the West Indian colonies, the sugar of India may be admitted on payment of the same duty which may be imposed upon West Indian sugar, but in what manner do we continue to treat our own sugar? On being imported into a town it pays 5 per cent in customs, and 5 per cent in town duty, and when manufactured, it pays, on exportation from the same town, 5 per cent more, in all, 15 per cent

It is unnecessary to multiply instances The effect of these and similar duties is virtually to prohibit the manufacture in towns of all articles not absolutely required for their own consumption, to confine manufactures to the place where the raw material is produced, and by such restrictions, much more than by any tax actually levied, to depress the productive industry of the people

Not less than 235 separate articles are subjected to inland duties The tariff includes almost everything of personal or domestic use, and its operation, combined with the system of search, is of the most vexatious and offensive character, without materially benefiting the revenue.

The power of search, if really exercised, by every custom-house officer, would put a stop to internal trade by the delay it must necessarily occasion It is not exercised except for the purpose of extortion The salary of the officers employed is too small to secure their honesty The system gives advantages to the great capitalist over the small trader The small trader cannot afford the necessary bribes. The capitalist employs an agent to negotiate the undisturbed passage of his goods

The effect upon national morals is yet more serious than the effect upon national wealth Every merchant, every manufacturer, and every traveller is, as it were, compelled, for the security of his property, or the protection of his personal comfort, and not unfrequently for that of the feelings of the females of his family, to enter into unlawful collusion with the officers of Government

It is a system which demoralizes our own people, and which appears to excite the aversion of all the foreign traders of Asia

All the maritime imports of the Presidency of Bengal, having once paid the import duty, may, by law, be taken duty free throughout the interior But the practice is widely different Exposed like other articles to the power of search, they are, in fact, subjected to whatever duty the custom-house officers may impose in redemption of the delay they may inflict This was not always so Under the government of Lord Cornwallis the intercourse was free, these duties were imposed at a subsequent period of financial difficulty, and I am disposed to think, that the best thing we can do for the relief of present financial difficulty is to remove them

You will find on investigation that the revenue actually produced by duties strictly internal is far from considerable, and certainly not such as to be deemed a compensation, if, indeed, anything could be so, for the vexation occasioned by the system of the transit duties, and for their injurious effect upon the morals and industry of the people

Duties levied upon the import and export of goods across the land and sea frontiers are totally distinct from duties levied in the interior It is from the last branch of duties that the evils to which I have adverted are derived

Both

Both branches produced in the year 1830-31 the following sums —

|---|---|
| In the Lower Provinces - - - - - - - | Rs. 13,90,696 |
| „ Western - - - - - - - - | 28,43,776 |
| „ Delhi Territory - - - - - - - | 5,07,054 |
| | 47,41,526 |

In order to show the receipt from duties strictly internal, the following deductions must be made from the above total produce —

| | Rs |
|---|---|
| Duty levied on goods which crossed the Seharunpore frontier - | 72,093 |
| Ditto - - - ditto - - - - Delhi frontier - - | 7,05,602 |
| Ditto - - - ditto - - - - Agra frontier - - | 13,03,475 |
| Ditto - - - ditto - - - - Bundlecund frontier - | 3,00,000 |
| Ditto - - - ditto - - - - Allahabad frontier - - | 85,421 |
| Ditto - - - ditto - - - - Mirzapore frontier - - | 1,43,092 |
| Ditto - - - ditto - - - - Calcutta export frontier - | 6,75,224 |
| Bonded Rowannahs - - - - - - - - - | 1,11,078 |
| Drawbacks - - - - - - - - - - - | 2,49,406 |
| | 36,45,391 |

To which may be added the extra duty levied on salt at Allahabad, as that duty forms part of a tax it is necessary to maintain, and which is managed by separate officers That extra duty amounted in 1830-31 to 4,15,009 rupees, making a total receipt of 40,60,400, which, deducted from the total sum stated above, leaves 6,81,126 rupees as the amount of duties strictly internal

The expense of collecting these duties appears to have amounted to 4,06,986 rupees, making their net produce only 2,74,140 rupees

The report contains suggestions for the improvement of the mode of collecting the public dues from the Meerut and Agra salt manufactures, and of realizing the extra duty on salt at Allahabad, and the forest revenue.

It is not improbable that the deficit above stated to arise by the abolition of the internal duties may be more than covered by these suggested improvements, but I admit that I look to the compensation for this apparent loss, not so much in these or any other improved modes of collecting the revenue, as in the freedom of internal trade, and in the impulse which that freedom will give to productive industry

It is from these sources alone that we can reasonably expect the recovery of the land revenue, now diminishing, and a profitable export of the raw produce and manufactures of India, results essential to the maintenance of our public credit.

It is probable that the funds for the purposes to which the town duties are now applied could be much more advantageously raised, where necessary, in a different manner

These duties, partial in their operation, tend to repel commerce from the very marts to which it would most naturally direct itself

I am far from thinking that, concurrently with the abolition of the internal duties, it may not be necessary to revise and strengthen the custom-house establishments upon the land frontier, which fortunately, in its whole extent, presents unusual facilities for the enforcement of a strict system for the prevention of illicit trade.

The River Jumna, the Delhi canal, the Nujjuffghur lake, the Rewah hills, the Sona hills, and the River Chumbul, all contribute their obstacles, and enable us to form a preventive line of demarcation between countries of great extent, which, differing materially from each other in their products, afford almost unlimited means of commercial intercourse

The levying of duties on the export of the produce of India by sea is subject for separate consideration My impression is, that in the increased facility of remittance, and in the general benefit their removal would confer upon trade, we should even financially be gainers by their abolition

We are in a position in which we cannot remain. We cannot proceed much farther in reductions of expense, otherwise than by a minute and watchful attention to all the details of our establishments, by which, ultimately, I trust we may effect a large saving, but at the present moment we cannot by any sudden stroke materially diminish our charges

To increase taxation is impossible, it already presses but too heavily upon the people, aggravated as it seems to be by a deficiency of circulating medium.

To remain without an effort to redeem ourselves from the financial difficulties which the recent measure of the Legislature has either occasioned or increased would be at once unworthy and ruinous We have but one course, that of relieving the people from undue pressure by giving freedom to internal trade.

It is in the improved condition of the country, and in that alone, that we can find the resources which will preserve us from bankruptcy

We may at once by our own authority give entire liberty to the internal communications of 60 millions of people Industrious, possessing fertile country, traversed in its whole extent by a navigable river, inaccessible to foreign war, and protected in their property by an impartial administration of the laws, the inhabitants of Bengal would thus obtain, by the enlightened policy of their government, more extensive means of public prosperity than are enjoyed by any other nation in the world But I trust that no lengthened period would elapse before, by the influence of our example, we should induce the neighbouring states within and beyond the Indus to adopt similar measures

I look forward, sanguinely perhaps, but yet confidently, to the time when the whole Peninsula of India will, without detriment to the independence of any state within its limits, be, as regards the commercial intercourse of its population, one great empire

But before we can proceed to advise other nations to reform their system of internal taxation, we must at least reform our own, and make that perfect which appears at present to be inferior to the system of every state in Asia, with the single exception of Lahore

I am very desirous that the Court should take immediate steps with a view to the commencement of this great work, and I request that you will move them to direct the Government of Bengal to repeal at once all the strictly internal duties, to which I have particularly drawn your attention

It is very desirable that this should be the first act of Lord Heytesbury's government I feel convinced that it would materially assist his Lordship in all his future measures, not merely by its direct operation upon the prosperity of the people, but by the satisfaction which it would give to the whole country

I have confined myself in this letter to recommending the immediate abolition of the transit duties in Bengal, only because I am not yet in possession of the full information I require with respect to the nature and operation of similar duties in the Presidencies of Fort St George and Bombay, but the principle applies to all India, and I regret every hour which passes over the head of this recognised abuse

Sir, East India House, 2 April 1835

I AM commanded by the Court of Directors to communicate, through you, to the Board of Commissioners for the Affairs of India, that the letter of the President of the Board of the 18th ultimo to the chairman and deputy-chairman, relative to the subject of transit duties in India, has been laid before them, and that, in their opinion, it would not under present circumstances, be expedient to take the question out of the hands of the Government of India.

The President of the Board remarks, that the Indian Government is well aware of the opinion entertained by the home authorities of the injurious effects which attend the levying of this impost, and their desire to see it abolished, whenever it can be considered safe to do so The Court think it would be premature and inexpedient to go farther than this, by giving peremptory instructions on such a subject to the local Government

Moreover, the Court are not yet in possession of the document particularly referred to in the letter of the President (the paper drawn up by Mr Trevelyan), though it is mentioned in a minute of the Governor-general, dated 15th July 1834

A still stronger reason, in their opinion, for suspending active interference here, at the present moment, is the information they have received, that the Supreme Government, under a strong sense of the evils to which the Court have formerly called their attention, have actually taken up the subject, and have resolved to explore it fully, and to adopt whatever course may appear the most expedient for the removal of any existing evils incidental to the system under which the transit duties are at present collected

By a letter from the Supreme Government recently received, the Court find it has been resolved, "That the entire question of the customs and duties shall be taken up immediately by the Council of India, that in aid of this design a committee shall be formed, consisting of an officer from each Presidency, and that the necessary communications have been made to the Presidencies of Fort St George and Bombay"

In these circumstances it does not appear to the Court that it would be safe or expedient to do more than to convey, without delay, their authority to the Indian Government to carry into immediate effect whatever measures may appear to them, after full inquiry, most fit to be adopted, to deliver the internal traffic of India from any inconveniences or obstructions to which it may be exposed under the present system of taxing it by means of Custom-house or transit duties

Sir, India Board, 4 April 1835

I AM directed by the Commissioners for the Affairs of India to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 2d instant, in which, referring to the letter of their President dated the 18th ultimo, you communicate the sentiments of the Court of Directors of the East India Company with respect to the transit duties in India, and the course which it is expedient for the home authorities to adopt

The Board request that the Court will, without delay, prepare instructions for conveying their authority to the Governor-general of India in Council to take immediate measures for delivering the internal traffic of the British territories from all obstructions to which it is exposed under the present system of taxation by means of town duties and transit duties, and to enter into any engagements with the native powers for the purpose of extending beyond the British frontiers entire freedom of commercial intercourse.

GENERAL Separate Department, No. 1 of 1836.

To the Honourable the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

Honourable Sirs,

OUR last letter to your Honourable Court in this department was No. 5 of 1835, dated 9th December.

Vide Public Letter, No 27 of 1835, from the Government of India, dated 2d September, pp 204 and 213

1 A Your Honourable Court were made acquainted, in our letter under date 2d September 1835, with the appointment of the committee for the revision of the Customs and Post-office regulations, with which were forwarded the instructions issued by us to that committee

Cons 30th March, No 9

2 We have now the honour to transmit copies of the correspondence which has been carried on between ourselves and that committee, including the first reports furnished by that body on the state of the Customs collections and of the Post-office management in all the Presidencies

Cons 10 Feb 1836, No 1 to 11
Cons 2d March, No 4 and 5

3 While the committee were pursuing, as detailed in the accompanying documents, the course of their inquiries and investigations, the Governor of Agra, the Honourable A Ross, was induced, on a representation from the Board of Revenue of that Presidency, to abolish the Bareilly, Cawnpore, and Furruckabad Custom-houses Upon this being reported to us, we expressed our disapprobation of these measures having been adopted without reference to the authority of the Supreme Government, and at the same time called upon the Customs Committee to report, without delay, on the expediency of effecting a corresponding measure in the Bengal provinces, and on the fittest substitute to be provided, so that this might be done without incurring a loss of revenue. The Honourable the Governor of Agra in the meantime followed up his measures for the abolition of internal custom-houses, so as to confine the levy of duty to merchandise crossing the preventive line established near the frontier of the Western Provinces, by doing away with the custom-houses of Ghazeepore and Benares, and continuing the Jumna frontier line along the frontier boundary of Mirzapore. The Allahabad Custom-house was reserved, on the recommendation of the Western Revenue Board, in consequence of the additional preventive duty on salt leviable there, valuable in itself, and important towards maintaining prices of that article in the frontier districts of the Lower Provinces.

4 Reflecting on the operation of these measures, and their effect, particularly in relieving one division of the territory, heretofore subject to our Customs laws, from internal imposts, while in another immediately contiguous these laws remained in full operation, and finding that the expected report from the Customs Committee was delayed, the Governor-general in Council was led to conclude that the Supreme Government had, by the above-stated acts of the Honourable the Governor of Agra, been placed in the alternative of either cancelling them by an order reinstating the abolished custom-houses, or of assimilating the system, by adopting similar measures of abolition with respect to the internal custom-houses of Bengal

Cons 2d Mar 1836, No 6 and 7

5 We beg to refer your Honourable Court to the minute by the Governor-general, Sir C T. Metcalfe, wherein he has stated his reasons for recommending the adoption of the latter alternative without further delay, and with the views contained in which the majority of the Council coincided Mr Shakespear, however, recorded a minute of dissent to the measure, which is submitted to your Honourable Court, with the accompanying enclosures

Cons 2d Mar 1836, No 8
Pro 2d March, No 2 to 4

6 We called upon the Customs Committee, and the Honourable the Governor of Bengal was directed, at the time of issuing public notification of the above decision of Government, to call upon the Board of Customs to report on the means available for the realization of an amount of revenue equivalent to that thus sacrificed in the then existing Presidencies of Fort William and Agra The Customs Committee having engaged that their next report, which we hope shortly to receive, shall contain the financial results of their investigations, we forbear for the present to furnish your Honourable Court with an estimate of the net loss induced by the measures above detailed.

Sir, 20 January 1836

It being generally understood that several custom-houses in the Agra Presidency have been abolished, and that a similar measure is in contemplation regarding the town duties, I am directed to request that the Honourable the Governor will be pleased to report, for the information of the Governor-general in Council, what measures of the character described have already been adopted, and I am further desired to convey the request of the Governor-general in Council, that no measures entailing a reduction of the public revenue be carried into effect without the previous sanction of the Government of India

(No. 3)

From J G. Deedes, Secretary, to C Macsween, Esq, Secretary to Government of Agra, dated Allahabad, 2 October 1835

Sir,

The orders of Government, No 884, dated 19th of February last, required the Board to report the result of the system lately established for the prevention of smuggling on the north-west frontier, and your letter, No 524, dated 15th of January last, informed the Board that the question of the abolition of the Bareilly Custom-house was reserved for future consideration

2 Under these circumstances, it seemed needless to trouble the Government with a perusal of the Furruckabad report, alluded to in para 2 of my letter, No. 48, dated 30th December last, until the Board should be enabled to submit such a figured statement of the result of the arrangements lately introduced on the frontier as should confirm the report of the local authorities as to the efficiency of the present system, and justify their again urging on the consideration of Government the expediency of the immediate abolition of the inland custom-houses above Allahabad

3 No 1 of the enclosures which I am now desired to submit is Mr G H. Smith's report on the result of the arrangement for the prevention of smuggling, with original enclosures from his assistants, from which it will be seen that with exception of the head-load system, which still requires constant attention, the contraband trade in salt is considered to have been very effectually put down

4 Enclosure No 2 is the annual report of collections at the Delhi Custom-house for the past official year, with annexed statement of collections during the same period on the whole frontier, from the hills to the neighbourhood of Muttra (including Bareilly, as being mainly affected by the new arrangements), compared with the collections of the year 1833-34, and also with the average receipts of the three, five, and ten preceding years The annexed statement, as abstracted, must be considered extremely satisfactory.

5 No 3 is a similar statement from Agra, and in explanation of the apparently small increase of revenue, even as compared with the preceding year, I am directed to remind the Government that Mr George Blunt's preventive arrangements were not completed till near the end of the cold weather, that a most important section of the Agra line (from Koosee to Muttra) has been transferred to the Horul jurisdiction, that the season has been unfavourable to the manufacture of salt, and that carriage both by land and water has generally been at rates which cannot but have had a very great influence on the trade The movement of troops in Rajpootana* explains the former, the extraordinary impulse given to the cotton trade, the latter circumstance The Board consider themselves justified in anticipating a considerable increase of revenue from the Agra Custom-house during the current year It must be remembered also that the Bundlecund line is still open, and that some time must elapse before a stop can be put effectually to the manufacture of salt under Nemucksay leases, within the British territories, and it is not till these arrangements shall be completed that the effect of the preventive system will be fairly tried In Zillahs Jounpoor and Azimghur very extensive salt works are still kept up

6 It will be seen from the Bareilly statement (Enclosure A), that of 1,38,963 rupees collected in 1834–35 at Bareilly, and included by Mr G H Smith in his total of 15,49,541, no less a sum than 99,546 rupees was collected on the single article of sugar in various shapes and as the whole of Rohilcund and the Dooab is now entirely free from chowkies, it is fair to presume that all the goor and sugar so manifested has been exported, and would have paid duty on the western frontier if the Bareilly Custom-house had not been in existence It is also proper to remark that very extensive forgeries of Bareilly rowannahs have been lately detected by the European patrol now employed on the frontier, under cover of which large dispatches of sugar are supposed to have crossed the line early in the season It has been also surmised, and apparently with reason, from the number of Bareilly sugar rowannahs, of several months' date, presented for endorsement at the commencement of this season, that many of these passes had been originally taken out to cover dispatches which had succeeded in crossing the line without endorsement, and were now being used a second time On the whole, the Board believe that if the Bareilly Custom-house had been abolished a year ago, the receipts on the Delhi and Agra line would have been increased to the full amount of this year's collections at Bareilly, and they will not therefore make any deduction from the Delhi statement on account of the Bareilly collections included in it.

7 It is proper to state in this place, that in consequence of the loud complaints of the people living within and in the immediate neighbourhood of the preventive line, and the representations of the local authorities, one of whom (the Commissioner of Delhi) expressed his apprehension of the most serious disturbances, if relief was not promptly given, the Board, on the dates noted in the margin, issued instructions, copies of which are annexed, limiting the interference of the custom authorities on the Agra and Delhi frontier for the levy of duty to the staples noted in the margin,† except within the limits of the two Coss Chowkees of the sudder custom-houses of Delhi and Agra

3d October, No. 32
13th January, No 7
13th January, No 4 and 5

8 The effect of these orders has been as entirely satisfactory as the Board could have anticipated, and in looking at the amount of actual collections, the value of the relief granted

* Extract from Mr Blunt's Letter, dated 3 February 1835.

This decrease collection in January 1835, though not entirely, may in some measure be attributed to the great want of boats for dispatch to Ghazeepoor, the scarcity of which has raised the freight from eight annas per pullah of salt to 19 annas granted to the community, and its probable ultimate effect on commerce and production, will doubtless be kept in view.

9 The custom revenue, then, for 1834-35, realized on the frontier, and on 13 staples only, from the hills to the junction of the Chumbul and the Jumna, amounts in round numbers to 27,65,123 rupees, and the Board have every reason to anticipate a progressive increase when the energies of the country shall be set free by the abolition of the inland custom-houses, when the experiment of reducing the duty on Sambre salt to one rupee shall have been fairly tried, and the preventive line shall have been established through Bundelcund, &c * The Government are aware that this latter most important part of the arrangement is delayed by the protracted negotiations of the Governor-general's agent in Bundelcund with the owners of the few villages in which it is desired to establish custom posts

10 From the Chumbul to Mirzapoor the western frontier may be said to be almost unprotected, and there is every reason to believe that a large quantity of Sambre salt, brought overland, continues to cross the Jumna, and is imported into the Dooab, the Oude territory, and to within the limit of the prohibited district, in exchange for which, the sugar of Oude, and grain, sugar, and other products of the Dooab and of Oude, are exported to the westward by the way of Chilletaiah and the other ghauts on the Jumna A glance at the Furruckabad, Cawnpoor, and Allahabad statements for 1834-35 will show how small is the actual amount of duty now levied on this trade at either or any of those custom-houses; a large proportion of the whole may very fairly be added to the frontier revenue, as having been levied on imports and exports crossing the western line Of the receipts of the Mirzapoor Custom-house during the past year, amounting to 2,46,116 sicca rupees, upwards of two lacs of rupees, as per margin, may be reckoned as duty levied from the foreign trade, and the special duty on salt, levied in 1834-35, at Allahabad, amounts to 4,08,290 rupees

10 Enclosure No 10 is a statement of the gross custom revenue of the year from all the custom-houses under the Board's superintendence as compared with the average collections of the preceding 10 years, a separate statement being given of the Allahabad special duty rowannahs. The result of the year is certainly satisfactory, and the Board hope to be pardoned for again soliciting the consideration of Government to the expediency, if not the justice, of abolishing the inland custom-houses above Allahabad, and I am directed to request that the subject may again be brought to the particular notice of his Honor the Governor

12 In addition to what has been already remarked (para 5) regarding this custom-house, I am directed respectfully to refer the Honourable the Governor to my letter, No 48, dated 30th December last, and to the annexed statement of the collections of the past year, showing that of a total of 1,38,963 rupees, no less a sum than 1,15,976 rupees would have been levied on the north-western frontier, and at Allahabad or Mirzapoor Custom-house, if that of Bareilly had not been existence The present cost of the establishment is 21,612 rupees per annum *

* This includes Rs 833 5 4 portion of collector's salary debited to Custom department

13 The result of very diligent inquiries has convinced the Board that no trade is carried on between the British dominions and the Oude state which could repay the actual cost of the preventive establishment Besides which, the Board are satisfied that the establishment of an effective line on the west frontier of Oude, and the consequent cessation of free import there, would cause a positive diminution in the receipts of the British customs, for there is no article of commerce produced in Oude which is not also produced in Rohilcund and the Dooab The whole of the import from Oude, therefore, merely passes through the British territory in transit to the south-west, and pays on the south-west frontier, or if any

* Note.—The determination of Government, lately communicated to the Board, No 3,077, dated 29th August, to establish the part of the line on the British side of the Jumna, has set this question at rest, though it will involve a very large increase of outlay, and great annoyance to the river trade in general, which must be subjected to search, and to the British subjects in particular along a considerable extent of country part of it comes into consumption, that portion only sets free an equal and probably more valuable portion of the home produce for foreign export in the same direction in which alone an effectual demand exists The whole, or an equivalent for the whole, of the Oude import is thus brought under contribution already, without any added expense of protection or collection

14. On the other hand, were a preventive line established on the Ganges, none of that portion of Oude produce which falls into consumption, and which, from its inferior value, could not afford to pay duty, would be imported at all; and of the more valuable produce, taking into consideration the unavoidable exertion, harassment and delay of the best regulated frontier cordon, and the necessity for advancing immediately the whole amount of the duty, it may be fairly expected that a great diminution of import into the British territory, from Oude, would take place The Board believe the trade would be abandoned altogether, and that the custom receipts would be proportionably reduced. This would probably in time find its level, by an increased home production for exportation, but the whole cost of the line would always remain an useless burthen Similar results to the above the Board believe to arise, though in a much smaller degree, from the maintenance of the present custom-houses, and they are of opinion that the abolition of the inland custom-houses would increase the trade between the Oude province and the states west of the Jumna, and add very considerably to the collections on the British western frontier The hill provinces certainly yield no extent of produce that will bear taxation, their most valuable articles, spices, drugs, and condiments, which are exported to the south-west, already pay on that line, and fincal and borax, which are altogether articles of sea-borne commerce, on their way to the port, and the general poverty of these provinces is such that it must be an object with Government to relieve them. The Board hope that a sufficient case has been made out for the immediate abolition of the establishment.

15 Since the abandonment of the indigo trade in the Western Provinces, the collections at Futtehghur have not exceeded 85,000 per annum, indeed, the average gross collections of the past 11 years amount to no more than 1,08,582 rupees. The annexed statement for the past year shows that of a total of 85,194 rupees, no less than 53,777 rupees would in all probability have been collected on the frontier, or at Allahabad or Mirzapoor, if the Furruckabad Custom-house had not been in existence. The cost of the establishment, including the salary of the deputy-collector, amounts to 30,156 rupees per annum, and every argument for the abolition of the custom-house of Bareilly applies equally to Futtehghur. It could not but be attended with the happiest effects, and has been most strongly advocated by the local authorities, and I am directed to submit the Board's very earnest recommendation that final orders may be issued on the subject The Board trust that the necessity of providing for the present deputy-collector may not induce the Government to continue an establishment which they are convinced is extremely injurious to the country, and they would suggest that Mr. Kinlock should for the present continue in charge of the town duty establishment, until he may be otherwise provided for. Mr Kinlock would, the Board believe, by an improved arrangement, be able to prevent his own salary from being a burthen on the public resources

16 The Board consider the abolition of the custom-house, or rather its removal to Calpee, to be of little less importance than the abolition of Bareilly and Futtehghur The collections for the last 11 years average 2,53,735 rupees per annum, one-third of which, and frequently, as in the present year, a much larger proportion, is levied on cotton alone The annexed statement shows how large a portion of the collections of the past year would have been levied on the frontier, or at Mirzapore; and as the trade between the British territories and Oude yields no custom revenue at all, the Board beg respectfully to suggest the expediency of the abolition of the present custom-house, and the formation of an establishment on a different footing at Calpee, under the superintendence of an officer, who may be also entrusted with the formation of the upper division of the Bundelcund line.

17 The interior of the country, from Allahabad upward, will then be entirely free, and the frontier experiment will be fairly tried, which it cannot be until this shall be the case.

18 Having reviewed the whole of what now exists, the Board would take the present opportunity of putting on record at one view the object to which they hope ultimately to obtain the sanction of Government

19 Government have already approved, and taken steps to forward the execution, of their plan for carrying on the south-west preventive line across the province of Bundelcund to the range of hills east of Kallinger, and along that range south of Mirzapore, and following the course of the Billion Nullah, viâ Shah Gung, to Chunar This line being established, the Board consider that the introduction of foreign contraband along the whole western and southern frontier of the Agra Presidency will be effectually precluded; and as, in their opinion, sound policy is opposed to the establishment of any line on the western frontier of Oude, the whole of the territory of Upper India, including that dependency, will be free from the harassment and interference of custom duties.

20 The object which remains to be attained is the security of the special duty on salt, and the effective suppression of the extensive contraband trade carried on in that article, from the Agra Presidency into Benares, and Behar, and the districts of Azimghur and Goruckpore, in the vicinity of which salt is still manufactured in very large quantities

21. The modes, so far as the Board are informed this traffic has been carried on, are these:—

1st Direct import by land through Bundelcund, and across the Dooab into Oude, and thence eastward

2d Direct smuggling from the depôts of Jhoosee and Sirsa, situate on the right and left banks of the Ganges, to the eastward of Allahabad.

3d Landing salt, exported by water from Agra for the eastern markets, at intermediate places on the route to Allahabad, and carrying it across the Dooab, and through Oude to the eastward

22 The first of these courses will be effectually closed by the completion of the southern preventive line, which will restore to Agra the traffic naturally belonging to its geographical and commercial position For the prevention of the second and third other measures must be adopted

23 The Board have been for some time convinced that the position of Allahabad is not favourable for a custom-house. It is without trade, capital, or connexions, precluded by its situation, between two rivers, of difficult trajeet, from facility of communication with the country on either side, and from the means of obtaining information, and it is in advance of, and cut off from, the line over which it professedly holds surveillance I have above referred to the depôts of Jhoosee and Sirsa, both situated below Allahabad, and the latter 20 miles distant from it, and from both of which an unchecked system of smuggling, under pretence of bonding for a market, has been carried on for many years.

24 Some time since, as Government are aware, the Board obtained authority, with a view to check this evil, to levy the special duty before passing the custom-house at Allahabad, and allowing the merchants to bond for a market at Allahabad itself, yet not a single cargo of salt has since been bonded, and the Board have reason to believe that whatever quantity may have been prevented from passing as heretofore has been landed at places higher up the river, and carried partly across as before, through Oude, and the rest down the right bank of the Jumna, towards Mirzapoor The Board would therefore propose to abolish the Allahabad Custom-house as useless They would make the Mirzapoor Custom-house really effective, by appointing an active officer to the sole and separate charge. They would form an efficient line in advance, i e to the westward of Mirzapoor, cutting the south frontier line just to the eastward of the Cutterah Pass, and passing northward, through the districts of Benares and Jounpoor, to the westward of the latter, thence along the east frontier of Oude, through the Azimgurh and Goruckpoor districts, till it should reach the country of Nepal

25 The whole extent of this line would not exceed 130 miles, it would effectually check both the evasion of the special duty on salt produced in the south-western states, and also the contraband import of salt of a good quality manufactured in Oude itself, and introduced in considerable quantities through Jounpoor, Azimgurh and Goruckpore, into Tirhoot, and Benares, and Behar.

26 The two lines would thus draw together at Mirzapoor, from which, as a base, they might be most efficiently superintended, and which would thus become the key of the northern, western, and Deckhun trade An enactment similar to that of section 50, Regulation X of 1819, would enable the custom master to keep the line in his front clear, and Allahabad would probably become the depôt of such salt, intended for the eastern market, as was not landed in Mirzapoor itself As this line would effectually bring under contribution that trade in luxuries between Benares, and Jounpoor, and Lucknow, so much of which at present contrives to escape, the custom-houses at Benares and Ghazeepoor might be abolished, and the expense of the establishments would go far to defray the cost of the line, and of the deputies it would be necessary to employ at Jounpoor and on the frontier of Goruckpore, and with a great increase of freedom of trade, a far more effectual check to smuggling would be established.

Note by the Governor, dated 2 December 1835

The secretary to the Sudder Board of Revenue, in his letter dated the 2d October, reports that the chokees, on the proposed preventive south-west frontier line, having been established between Khalsee in the Dhoon, and the junction of the Chumbul with the Jumna, the Board consider that portion of the new line to be now effectively guarded The frontier line below the junction of the rivers mentioned is still imperfectly protected, the new chowkeys on that portion of the proposed new line not having yet been established.

It further appears from the letter under consideration, that the custom revenue collected in the past year, 1834-35, at the custom-houses under the Board's superintendence, amounted to 43,25,290 rupees, which is more than the average collections of the preceding 10 years by 10,10,405 rupees Deducting from this last sum the estimated amount collected at the custom-houses of Bareilly, Futtehghur, and Cawnpore, on inland trade, viz , 1,53,909 rupees, the increase of the custom revenue in the past year ascribable to the frontier line above the junction of the Chumbul with the Jumna was 8,56,496 rupees

It is to be noted also, that the small amount of revenue collected on the inland trade at the custom-houses above mentioned is of no avail to the State, it being less than the cost of those custom-houses, and it is the opinion* of the Board, that if those custom-houses were effective in preventing free importation from Oude, they would cause a positive diminution in our receipts from the trade which now pays on passing our south-west frontier

On these considerations I can have no hesitation in sanctioning the immediate abolition of the Bareilly, Futtehghur, and Cawnpore Custom-houses, as recommended by the Sudder Board

I think with the Board, that the custom-house at Allahabad should also be abolished after the new preventive frontier line below the junction of the Chumbul and the Jumna shall be completed, and the custom-house at Mirzapore rendered effective

In the last paragraph of his letter Mr Deedes states it to be the opinion of the Board, that the custom-houses at Benares and Ghazeepore might likewise be abolished, if chokees were established on a line passing northward from the Cuttereeah Pass on the new south frontier line, along the east frontier of Oude to the boundary of Nypal. The Board's opinion may be requested as to the expediency of abolishing these two custom-houses, should the above line of chokees not be sanctioned The objects which the Board have in view in proposing its establishment are, to check the evasion of the additional duty leviable under Regulation XVI of 1829, on salt passing out of the Allahabad district into that of Benares, and to prevent the contraband import of salt manufactured in Oude through Juanpore, Azemghur, and Goruckpore, into Tirhoot and Behar It does not appear to me to be necessary for the attainment of either of these objects The first might be secured (even after the abolition of the Allahabad Custom-house) without incurring any expense by levying on the south-west frontier line the amount of the additional duty on salt, viz , 4,08,000 rupees, now realized at Allahabad , or if this would be objectionable, on the ground that it might diminish the consumption of imported salt in the provinces above Allahabad, the additional duty might be relinquished, the amount of revenue which that duty now yields being already more than equalled by the increased produce of the import duties collected on the south-west frontier, the other object might also be secured by a much less expense than would be incurred by the proposed line, merely by strengthening the salt chowkees already established in Tirhoot and Behar, if they are not now sufficiently strong for the purpose

From the seventh paragraph of Mr Deedes' letter it appears, that besides the new line of chokees established on the south-west frontier, there is a cordon of chokees round the Sudder custom-houses at Dehlee and Agra, in conformity with Section X. of Regulation IX. of 1810 I do not think the enactment cited requires that these chowkees should be maintained, nor do I think they should be maintained merely for the purpose of subjecting to duty the dutiable articles exempted from the stoppage on the frontier line, under the Board's instructions to the collector of customs at Dehlee, dated the 3d October and 13th January last

From the ninth paragraph of Mr. Deedes' letter it appears, that the Board consider it very desirable to have all the new preventive chokees on the Jumna placed on the Bundlecund side of that river I concur with the Board in this opinion. The establishment on the Doab side of the chokees required for the extent of the river which forms the boundary of the jageers of Jaloon and Bownee will be attended with the disadvantage, that in order to prevent goods which have not paid import duty being put on board boats at the ghauts in those jageers, and landed on the Doab side of the river above or below the line of chokees on that side, it will be necessary to authorise those chokees to stop all boats passing up and down the river, and thus to subject the whole river trade to interruption It is certainly very desirable that this should be avoided if possible I should think the Jageerdars might be induced to sell the villages belonging to them which are situated on the bank of the Jumna, or to allow our chokees to be placed at all the ghats of the river within their jageers, and when the dispute which now exists between them shall be settled, the Governor's agent in Bundlecund may be instructed to negotiate with them for the attainment of either of these objects

The present opportunity may be taken to request the Board to furnish a statement of the gross and net revenue derived from the town duties in the provinces under their superintendence, and to report their opinion in regard to the expediency of abolishing those duties. They are objectionable on the ground, that the inlets into the towns in which they are levied being numerous, they cannot be collected without a very large and expensive establishment of peons, whose illegal exactions, which it is impossible to prevent, far exceed the amount of the authorised duties, and are extremely oppressive. My own opinion is, that they are a great hindrance to the prosperity not only of the towns subjected to them, but also of the districts in which those towns are situated, and that they should be abolished if the net revenue derived from them is not very much greater than the increase of the custom duties on foreign trade likely to be obtained by the establishment of the new preventive line of chokees on the frontier

From Mr. Secretary Macsween to J. G Deedes, Esq, Secretary to the Sudder Board of Revenue for the Agra Presidency

Sir,

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No 90, dated 2d October last, and to communicate the following observations and orders

2. The Honourable the Governor sanctions the immediate abolition of the Bareilly, Futtyghur, and Cawnpore Custom-houses, and the Sudder Board is requested to make the necessary arrangements for carrying this order into effect Instructions respecting Mr Kinlock will be issued hereafter, in the meantime his services may be employed as suggested in para 15 of your letter

3 The Governor will be disposed to sanction the abolition of the custom-house at Allahabad after the new preventive frontier line below the junction of the Chumbul and the Jumna shall have been completed, and the custom-house at Mirzapore rendered effective.

4 From the last paragraph of your letter it appears to be the opinion of the Board, that the custom-houses at Benares and Ghazeepore might also be abolished, if a line of chokees were established from the Cutteiah Pass, on the south frontier line, along the eastern borders of Oude, to the boundary of Nypal The Governor desires to know whether the Board would consider it expedient to maintain those custom-houses if the above line of chokees should not be established, and what are the advantages which in that case would be derived from maintaining them

5 With reference to para 7 of your letter, the Governor does not think that section II, Regulation IX 1810, requires chowkees to be maintained round the Sudder custom-houses of Agra and Dehlee, nor does he think they should be maintained merely for the purpose of subjecting to impost the dutiable articles exempted from stoppage on the frontier line under the Board's instructions to the collector of customs at Dehlee, dated the 3d October 1834, and 13th January last

6 The Governor concurs in the opinion stated in the 9th paragraph of your letter, that it is very desirable to have all the new chokees on the Jumna placed on the Bundlecund side of that river, and his Honor will endeavour to effect that object, when the existing dispute between the Regent of Jalour and her feudatory, which now prevents its attainment, shall be adjusted.

7 I am directed to request the Board to furnish a statement of the gross and net revenue derived from the town duties in the provinces under their superintendence, and to report their opinion in regard to the expediency of abolishing those duties

From Mr Secretary Macsween to J G Deedes, Esq, Secretary to the Sudder Board of Revenue, Agra Presidency, dated 9th January 1836

Sir,

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No 103, dated the 22d ultimo, on the subject of the abolition of certain custom-houses, &c, and to communicate as follows —

2 As the collections of Benares do not amount to half those of Ghazeepore, and the reasons assigned by the Board for the abolition of the latter apparently apply with equal force to the former, the Honourable the Governor will suspend his orders respecting both till the receipt of the further report regarding Benares, promised in para 5 of your communication

3 If the special duty on salt could be levied without loss at Mirzapoor, it would be expedient at once to abolish the Allahabad Custom-house The Board are requested to state their opinion on the subject, and to report what establishments of chowkies it would be necessary to form on the left bank of the Ganges to carry the measure into effect

From Mr Secretary Deedes to C Macsween, Esq, Secretary to the Government of Agra, Separate Department, Allahabad, dated 22 December 1835

Sir,

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No 4,192, dated 9th instant, and to request you will state, for the information of the Honourable the Governor, that orders were issued on the 18th instant for the abolition of the custom-houses of Bareilly, Futtehgurh, and Cawnpoor. The English records, blank rowannahs, stationery, &c of the latter establishment having been transferred to Mr. Bowring's charge at Humeerpoor, that officer is making progress in the formation of the line through Bundlecund, or rather as yet down the Dooab Mr. Loyd, assistant to the magistrate, and collector of Humeerpoor, has been directed to afford his assistance in the Sudder office, and trades crossing the Jumna can now obtain passes from the new Humeerpoor Custom-house, in which the old custom-houses of Banda and Calpee, with their establishments, have been absorbed

2 Mr Todd has joined his appointment at Mirzapore, and the Board have issued such instructions to him, and to the commissioner of the 5th division, as they hope will ensure the speedy completion of the arrangements which have been approved. On the formation of the line through Bundlecund, and by Burghur to Mirzapoor, the Board will immediately recommend that the functions of the Allahabad Custom-house be restricted to the levy of the specifical duty on salt. The stoppage of the salt-boats passing down the Jumna will entail no great injury on any parties, and all interruption or interference with the internal or transit trade, or with boats ascending the Jumna, will be strictly prohibited The collector's salary, and that of a small establishment for this especial duty, may well be borne by that branch of the revenue, which may be estimated at from 4,00,000 to 5,00,000 rupees per annum

3 With reference to para 5, by the orders under acknowledgment, I am directed to request that annexed copy of a letter this day addressed to the collectors of customs at Agra and Delhi, in extension of the Board's former orders of 3d October 1834, and 13th January last, may be submitted for the perusal of the Honourable the Governor.

4 As the Mirzapoor Custom-house may now be said to be efficient as far as concerns the river trade, I am directed to submit the Board's recommendation that the custom-house of Ghazeepoor may be immediately abolished. It will be seen on reference to annexed statement of collections in 1834-35, and first six months of 1835-36, that with very trifling exceptions the whole of the articles * yielding any considerable amount of duty are such as would be brought under contribution at other custom-houses, did that of Ghazeepoor not exist The continuance of the establishment appears to the Board to be on every account objectionable, and to promise no possible advantage, and I am directed to add, that while the collections of all the other custom-houses under the Board's control exhibit a very considerable increase during the first six months of the present official year, as compared with the corresponding period of the last year, that of Ghazeepore and Mirzapore are at a decrease. the latter of 5,054 rupees only, the former, as per margin, Rs 9,413 0. 9 Regarding the abolition of the Benares Custom-house, and the proposed establishment of a line of chokees from the Kutrah Pass, on the southern frontier line, along the eastern borders of Oude to the boundary of Nepaul, the Board propose again to address Government, after Mr. Bird's projected visit to the 5th division shall enable them to offer their opinion on the subject with more confidence than they are at this moment prepared to do It will be seen from the annexed statement that a considerable portion of the total revenue of the Benares Custom-house is realized from gold and silver, cloths, brocades, &c

From J G Deedes, Esq, Secretary to the Sudder Board of Revenue, Allahabad, to C Macsween, Esq, Secretary to the Government of Agra, Separate Department, Allahabad, dated the 22d January 1836

Sir,

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No 105, dated the 9th instant, and, in reply to para 2, to request you will state, for the information of the Honourable the Governor of Agra, that the Board do themselves consider the reasons assigned in my letter of the 22d ultimo, for the abolition of the Ghazeepore Custom-house, to apply with equal force to the custom-house at Benares, with the single exception of the duty realized at the two Coss Chowkees, on the embroidered goods, and gold and silver lace, and tissues manufactured in the latter city.

2 The sum realized, as remarked in para. 5 of my letter, No 103, is large, and the article a most fit subject for taxation, but the realization of a revenue of less than 50,000 is certainly no sufficient reason for maintaining a river and city custom-house, at a charge of 13,000 rupees per annum, with unlimited powers of search, and it will be observed that the abolition of this custom-house with that of Ghazeepore formed a part of the proposition mooted in the concluding paras of my letter, No. 90, dated 2d October last

3 On the remaining articles enumerated in the statement which accompanied my letter of the 22d ultimo, I am directed to remark that—

| Article | Amount in 1834-5 | —— |
|---|---|---|
| Piece goods, cotton and silk mixed - - - - | 20,972 9 – | - - Much of this duty has probably been levied on the consumption of the city, and a large proportion would probably have been levied on the export of the fabric across the north-western frontier line |
| Shawls - - - - | 1,456 4 – | - - Should have paid on the north-western frontier |
| Sugar - - - - | 21,073 6 – | - - Would all have been realized on crossing the western line |
| Saltpetre - - - - | 248 15 – | - - Would have paid in Calcutta. |
| Indigo - - - - | 751 4 – | - - Would have paid in Calcutta |
| Oil and oil-seeds - - | 6,662 5 – | - - All not required for consumption of the city would be taxed on exportation |
| Raw silk - - - - | 1,057 12 – | - - All exported by sea or to Mooltan |
| Gunnies - - - - | 1,224 4 – | - - Should not be taxed at all |

4 In explanation of the Board having forborne to include this custom-house in their recommendation of the 22d ultimo, I am desired to submit, that the bringing under the contribution the trade between Benares, Jounpoor, and Lucknow had formed a part of the scheme submitted in the concluding para of my letter of 2d October, No 90, and until that suggestion should be disposed of, they hesitated to recommend the immediate relinquishment of the revenue at present derived from that trade Should, however, the Honourable the Governor concur with the Board in considering that such a custom-house as that of Benares ought not to be maintained for the realization of a duty of less than half a lakh of rupees on a single article of commerce, there can be no doubt of the propriety of the immediate abolition of the establishment

5 With reference to para 3 of your letter under acknowledgment, the Board observe that the abolition of the Allahabad Custom-house, and the levying the special duty on salt at Mirzapore, formed a part of the same scheme of a cross line from that city to the frontier of Nepal, suggested in their letter No 90 On this subject I am directed to promise a further report at an early date, but the two questions being distinct, the Board was unwilling unnecessarily to delay the present communication

Sir,

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No 4, dated the 22d instant, and in reply, to state that the Honourable the Governor concurs with the Board in opinion that a custom-house should not be maintained at Benares for the realization of the small amount of duty leviable on the embroidered goods exported from that city to Lucknow.

2 For the reasons therefore urged in the present communication, and in that to which it refers, dated the 22d ultimo, the Honourable the Governor is pleased to sanction the abolition of the custom-house at that station, as well as of the one at Ghazeepore The Board will accordingly issue the necessary instructions for carrying this measure into effect without delay.

From H T Prinsep, Esq, Secretary to Government in the General Department, to C. Macsween, Esq, Secretary to the Government of Agra, dated the 6th February 1836.

Sir,

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 9th January, and of your subsequent letter of the 27th January, both relating to the abolition of several custom-houses in the territories under the Presidency of Agra

2 The Governor-general in Council observes with regret that such extensive measures, involving a reduction of the resources which the State requires for the payment of its unavoidable expenses, have been adopted without previous communication with the Supreme Government

3 In some instances the consequent loss of revenue, to some extent more or less considerable, has been avowed with respect to the larger amount of revenue apparently sacrificed, it is assumed, but not proved, that it will not be really lost. The Governor-general in Council cannot, however, forget that, by a precipitate and unauthorised reduction of custom stations in the same provinces, two or three years ago, a very heavy loss of revenue was sustained, and further, that the Hureeana line of custom stations, which was abolished on an assumption that there would be no loss of revenue, has of necessity been since re-established, because its removal was found to cause a very serious loss The Governor-general in Council is far from being satisfied that there will not be considerable loss from the measures now adopted by the Honourable the Governor of Agra, but he deems it useless to go minutely into this question, as he does not propose, under existing circumstances, to order the restoration of such custom-houses as have been actually abolished He directs, however, that wherever the measure has not been carried into effect, it may be suspended until further instructions

4 These measures may be good The Governor-general in Council is satisfied that the Honourable the Governor fully believes them to be so. They may be such as the Supreme Government would have adopted, with the whole question of customs revenue under consideration. But how is it consistent, I am desired to ask, with the supremacy and responsibility of the Government of India, that such measures should be adopted by the subordinate governments, at their own will, without sanction or reference, when it has been fixed by the Legislature that the most trifling salary cannot be created without the permission of the Supreme Government, how could it possibly have been intended that masses of revenue should be abandoned, and a whole system of customs be abolished, without reference to that superior authority?

5 Admitting the eventual propriety of the measures, there was no necessity for precipitancy On the supposition that they would be sanctioned by the Supreme Government, a few days' delay could not have been objected to. On the contrary supposition, their unauthorised accomplishment would have been on every ground objectionable

6 Any such change at the present moment was ill-timed, because the Supreme Government had suspended all measures on its own part for the reform of customs, and had referred the whole question for the consideration of a committee assembled from all the Presidencies, whose report may be soon expected It was extremely inexpedient, under such circumstances, that the Government of Agra should take on itself to anticipate the result of the investigations of that committee, to which so much importance was attached by the late Governor-general in Council

7 The proceedings of the Honourable the Governor have placed the Supreme Government and the Governor of Bengal in this predicament they must either abolish the custom-

houses in Bengal, without waiting for the report of the committee, whose investigations were to determine the question, or they must retain the custom-houses, pending the receipt of the committee's report, as hitherto intended thus maintaining different systems in the Presidencies of Bengal and Agra, until now subject to the same, or they must reinstate the custom-houses of the Agra Presidency, which, in the expectation of being able ultimately to abolish them, is obviously undesirable, on account of the appearance of vacillation which would attach to it, as well as on other grounds

8 The Governor-general in Council trusts that the Honourable the Governor will perceive that his measures have been premature, and ought not to have been adopted without reference to the Supreme Government

Our Governor-General of India in Council

Political Department, 1 February (No 2), 1837

1 Your letter in the separate Revenue Department, dated 2 March (No 1), of 1836, bringing to our notice your proceedings respecting the abolition of the inland customs duties, will be replied to in that department, with respect to the merits of the measure

2 But without any reference whatever to the judgment which we may hereafter pronounce on the merits of the measure itself, we feel it necessary to notice with decided displeasure the conduct of Mr Ross, the late Governor of Agra, in taking the first step in this measure, and abolishing the custom-houses of Bareilly, Cawnpore, and Furruckabad, without a reference to the Supreme Government.

3 On this subject, we find the following observations in your secretary's letter to the secretary of the Governor of Agra, dated 6th February 1836

"The Governor-general in Council observes with regret, that such extensive measures, involving a reduction of the resources which the State requires for the payment of its unavoidable expenses, have been adopted without previous communication with the Supreme Government

"In some instances, the consequent loss of revenue, to some extent more or less considerable, has been avowed with respect to the larger amount of revenue apparently sacrificed, it is assumed, but not proved, that it will not be really lost The Governor-general in Council cannot however forget, that by a precipitate and unauthorised reduction of custom stations in the same provinces, two or three years ago, a very heavy loss of revenue was sustained, and further, that the Hureana line of custom stations, which was abolished on an assumption that there would be no loss of revenue, has of necessity been since re-established, because its removal was found to cause a very serious loss The Governor-general in Council is far from being satisfied that there will not be considerable loss from the measures now adopted by the Honourable the Governor of Agra, but he deems it useless to go minutely into this question, as he does not propose, under existing circumstances, to order the restoration of such custom-houses as have been actually abolished. He directs, however, that wherever the measure has not been carried into effect, it may be suspended until further instructions

"These measures may be good, the Governor-general in Council is satisfied that the Honourable the Governor fully believes them to be so They may be such as the Supreme Government would have adopted, with the whole question of customs revenue under consideration, but how is it consistent, I am desired to ask, with the supremacy and responsibility of the Government of India, that such measures should be adopted by the subordinate Governments at their own will without sanction or reference, when it has been fixed by the Legislature that the most trifling salary cannot be created without the permission of the Supreme Government? How can it possibly have been intended that masses of revenue should be abandoned, and a whole system of customs be abolished, without reference to that superior authority?

"Admitting the eventual propriety of the measures, there was no necessity for precipitancy On the supposition that they would be sanctioned by the Supreme Government, a few days' delay could not have been objected to, on the contrary supposition, their unauthorised accomplishment would have been on every ground objectionable

"Any such change at the present moment was ill timed, because the Supreme Government had suspended all measures on its own part for the reform of customs, and had referred the whole question for the consideration of a committee assembled from all the presidencies, whose report may be soon expected It was extremely inexpedient, under such circumstances, that the Government of Agra should take on itself to anticipate the result of the investigations of that committee, to which so much importance was attached by the late Governor-general in Council

"The proceedings of the Honourable the Governor have placed the Supreme Government and the Governor of Bengal in this predicament they must either abolish the custom-houses in Bengal, without waiting for the report of the committee whose investigations were to determine the question, or they must retain the custom-houses pending the receipt of the committee's report, as hitherto intended, thus maintaining different systems in the Presidencies of Bengal and Agra, until now subject to the same, or they must reinstate the custom-houses of the Agra Presidency, which, in the expectation of being able ultimately to abolish them, is obviously undesirable, on account of the appearance of vacillation which would attach to it, as well as on other grounds

"The Governor-general in Council trusts that the Honourable the Governor will perceive that his measures have been premature, and ought not to have been adopted without reference to the Supreme Government."

4 We concur generally in the spirit and tenor of the observations, and such is our sense of the extreme want of judgment manifested by Mr. Ross on this occasion, that, supposing he still continued to exercise the functions of Government in the Presidency of Agra, we should have come to the resolution of cancelling his appointment

5 Even if Mr Ross had been unacquainted with the proceedings of your Government, with respect to the abolition of the transit duties as a general question, the measure of a partial abolition of them within the limits of his administration, adopted without your previous knowledge or consent, would still have been unsusceptible of any satisfactory explanation, but having so lately been a member of that Government, and aware, as he must consequently have been, that the subject was under your anxious consideration, Mr. Ross's precipitate and injudicious adoption of that measure is altogether indefensible

6 By the Act of 5 & 6 Will. 4, c 52, and our letter in this department of 30th September 1835 (No 46), the affairs of the Residency of Agra are now administered by a Lieutenant-governor, and the power of appointing to that office is vested in the Governor-general of India in Council, subject of course to our general powers of control In the exercise of those powers, we deem it necessary to direct that the administration of the Government of Agra be never again, under any circumstances, delegated to Mr. Ross.

Read, a Letter from the Honourable the Court of Directors, dated the 1st February (No 2) of 1837, noticing with displeasure the conduct of Mr Ross, the late Governor of Agra, in abolishing the Custom-houses of Bareilly, Cawnpore, and Furruckabad, without reference to the Supreme Government

With reference to the foregoing letter, Mr Ross has been pleased to record the following Minute

No 2 Minute by the Honourable Mr Ross

Despatch of the Honourable Court of Directors on the abolition of the inland custom-houses

In reference to the censure passed upon me in this despatch, I beg leave to place on record the following observations

The Honourable Court have not pronounced any opinion as to the merits of the measure which has subjected me to this censure, and they expressly say that it is solely my conduct in having taken the first step in the measure, without previously obtaining the consent of the Supreme Government, which they have felt it necessary to notice with their displeasure

I cannot take to myself so much blame on this account as the Honourable Court have imputed to me, my predecessor in the government of the Agra Presidency, Sir Charles Metcalfe,

Appendix, No 18.

Metcalfe, of his own authority, abolished an inland custom-house in that presidency, on its being represented to him that the amount of collections at that custom-house on the trade carried on within the frontier, was little more that sufficient to defray the expense of its establishments,* and his having done so was not objected by the Supreme Government as an exercise of power beyond his competency. Representations to the like effect, regarding the other inland custom-houses within the Agra Presidency, were afterwards made to me, and as I had every reason to consider those representations as trustworthy as that which had been acted on by my predecessors, I abolished the custom-houses to which they related, having a precedent to support my opinion, that it was within my competency to abolish them, my act, in fact, differed in no respect from the act of my predecessor, except in being likely to be more extensively beneficial. I cannot but think, therefore, that the censure passed upon me is more severe than just, and I doubt not that the Honourable Court will admit that I have reason to think so, when they are informed that the effects of the error they have imputed to me were more likely to be beneficial than injurious, and that the charge they have brought against me of extreme want of judgment, is founded wholly on my having followed a precedent furnished by one whose judgment they themselves have thought worthy of being fully relied upon.

As to the merit of the step taken by me in the measure in question, it must be judged of by its effects. I immediately relieved the whole of the North-western Provinces from the transit duties which obstructed their internal trade, and prevented the improvement of their agriculture,† and it very soon led to the Lower Provinces being also relieved from those duties, and to the abolition besides of the town duties throughout the whole of the Bengal Presidency, and doubtless it will hasten the abolition of the very oppressive systems of internal duties which exist in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay. These are results which every one in this country taking an interest in its prosperity anxiously and impatiently wished for; and much as I regret having incurred the displeasure of the Court, I cannot but derive very great satisfaction from having made the first effective movement towards their realization.

Act No XIV. of 1836.

Passed by the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council, on the 30th May 1836.

1. IT is hereby enacted, that from the 1st June next, such parts of Regulations IX and X, 1810, Regulation XV, 1825, and of any other regulations of the Bengal Presidency, as prescribe the levy of transit or inland customs duties, or of town duties, and likewise the schedules of duties and provisions of any kind contained in these or any other regulations for fixing the amount of duty to be levied upon goods imported into, or exported from, the said presidency by sea, shall be repealed. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the levy of duties at the rates now in force at the custom-houses and chokies established on the line of the Jumna, or on any frontier line, upon goods crossing that line for import into, or export from, the territory of the East India Company by land, nor to affect the regulations in force for imposing and levying duties on salt, the produce of Western and Central India.

* The inland custom-house at Meerut, was abolished by Sir Charles Metcalfe, in February 1835, and the Court of Directors, in a despatch dated the 10th August 1836, recently received, have expressed their approbation of the measure in the following terms:

"From the inquiries instituted by the Board of Revenue, it appears that out of 1,30,322 rupees, the amount of collections at the Meerut custom-house, from January to October 1834, the sum of 1,21,559 rupees would have been otherwise collected at the frontier custom houses on the Jumna, leaving the trifling difference of 8,762 rupees levied on goods imported for consumption into the city and cantonments of Meerut from the surrounding country, an amount barely sufficient to cover the expense of the establishment. Under these circumstances, we entirely approve the abolition of the custom-house as a measure beneficial to the people, by removing an unnecessary check upon internal commerce, and at the same time not likely to be productive of any injurious effect upon the revenue."

† It cannot be shown that the abolition of the transit duties in the Agra Presidency, imposed any real necessity for abolishing them in the Presidency of Bengal. It must therefore have been a conviction of the merits of the measure that induced the Supreme Government to extend it to that presidency.

2 And it is hereby enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied on goods imported by sea into Calcutta, or into any other place within the provinces of Bengal and Orissa, according to the rates specified in Schedule (A ) annexed to this Act, and with the exceptions specified therein, and the said schedule, with the notes attached thereto, shall be taken to be a part of this Act

3 And it is hereby further enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied upon country goods exported by sea from any port of Bengal or Orissa, according to the rates specified in Schedule (B ) annexed to this Act, with the exceptions therein specified, and the said schedule, with the notes attached thereto, shall also be taken to be a part of this Act.

4 And it is hereby enacted, that no goods or articles whatsoever, entered in either of the said schedules as liable to duty, shall be exempted from the payment of such duty, or of any part thereof, except under special order from the Governor of Bengal Provided, however, that it shall and may be lawful for the collector of customs, or other officer in charge of a custom-house, to pass free of duty, as heretofore, any baggage in actual use, at his discretion, and in case of any person applying to have goods passed as such, the collector, acting under the orders of the Board of Customs, Salt, and Opium shall determine whether they be baggage in actual use, or goods subject to duty under the rules of this Act

5 And it is hereby enacted, that the rules and regulations now established for the levy of duties of customs on goods imported into, or exported from, Calcutta and other ports of the Presidency of Fort William, in Bengal, shall continue to be in force, and shall be observed and applied for the levy of the import and export duties imposed by this Act, unless repealed or altered, or repugnant to the provisions thereof

6 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor of the Presidency of Fort William, in Bengal, by an order printed in the "Calcutta Gazette," to fix a place in any river or port in Bengal, or Orissa, beyond which place it shall not be lawful for any inward-bound vessel, save and except such dhoonies and country craft as are referred to in section XXII of this Act, to pass, until the master or commander shall have delivered to the pilot on board, for the purpose of being forwarded by the public dawk, or otherwise, as may be ordered by the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium, a manifest made out in the form prescribed by Section 45, Regulation IX., 1810 And it is hereby enacted, that if the manifest so delivered by the master and commander shall not contain a full and true specification of all the goods imported in the vessel, the master or person in charge thereof shall be liable to a fine of 1,000 rupees, and any goods or packages that may be found on board in excess of the manifest so delivered, or differing in quality or kind, or in marks and numbers, from the specification contained therein, shall be liable to be seized and confiscated, or to be charged with such increased duties as may be determined by the Board of Customs, Salt and Opium, and if any inward-bound vessel shall remain outside, or below the place so fixed by the Governor of Bengal, the master or commander shall in like manner deliver to the pilot, so soon as the vessel shall anchor, a manifest as above prescribed, and if any vessel entering a port for which there is a custom-house established, shall lie at anchor therein for the space of twenty-four hours, the master and commander whereof shall neglect to deliver the said manifest to the pilot on board, he shall for such neglect be liable to forfeit the sum of 1,000 rupees, and no entry or port clearance shall be given for such vessel until the fine is paid

7 And it is hereby enacted, that no vessel shall be allowed to break bulk until the manifest described in the preceding section of this Act, and another copy thereof to be presented at the time of applying for entry inwards, shall have been received by the collector of customs, and order shall have been given by the said collector for the discharge of the cargo, and the said collector may further refuse to give such order, if he shall see fit, until any port clearances, cockets, or other papers, known to be granted at the places from which the vessel is stated to have come, shall likewise be delivered to him

8 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be competent to the collector of customs at any port of Bengal or Orissa, at his discretion, to send one or more officers of customs on board of any vessel at any time, and the custom-house officer so sent shall remain on board of such vessel by day and by night, until the vessel shall leave the port, or until it be otherwise ordered by the collector of customs

9 And it is hereby enacted, that any master or person in charge of such vessel who shall refuse to receive a custom-house officer on board when so deputed as above provided, or shall not afford such officer suitable shelter and sleeping accommodation while on board, shall be liable to fine, not exceeding the sum of 500 rupees for each day during which such officer shall not be received and provided with suitable shelter and accommodation, which fine shall be adjudged by, and at the discretion of, the Board of Customs, Salt, and Opium, at Calcutta, and the vessel by the master or person in charge of which such fine shall have been incurred, shall not be moved until the same shall be paid.

10 And it is hereby enacted, that whenever a collector of customs shall see cause to direct that any vessel shall be searched, he shall issue his warrant or written order for the same, addressed to the custom-house officer on board, or to any other officer under his authority, and, upon production of such order, the officer bearing it shall be competent to require any cabins, lockers, or bulkheads to be opened in his presence, and, if not opened upon his requisition, to break the same open, and any goods that may be found concealed, and that shall not be duly accounted for to the satisfaction of the collector of customs, shall be confiscated, and any master or person in charge of a vessel who shall resist such officer, or refuse to allow the vessel to be searched when so ordered by the collector of customs, shall be liable upon conviction for every such offence to a fine of 1,000 rupees, to be adjudged by any magistrate or justice of the peace of the place

11 And it is hereby enacted, that no goods shall be allowed to leave any vessel, or to be put on board thereof, until entry of the vessel shall have been duly made in the custom-house of the port, and order shall have been given for discharge of the cargo thereof, as above provided, and it shall be the duty of the custom-house officer on board, and of all officers of customs, to seize as contraband any goods which shall have been removed or put on board of any vessel, in contravention of the above provision, or which any attempt shall have been made to remove from, or to put on board of, any vessel in contravention of the above provision And after entry of the vessel at the custom-house in due form, such part of the cargo as may not be intended and declared for re-exportation in the same vessel, shall be sent to land And export cargo shall be laden on board thereof according to the rules and practice now in force, and if an attempt be made to land or put on board goods or merchandize in contravention thereof, the goods or merchandize shall be liable to seizure and confiscation

12 Provided, however, and it is hereby enacted, that no goods shall be allowed to leave any vessel under the said rules, unless the same be duly manifested, and any goods found on board in excess of the manifest, or not corresponding with the specification and description therein contained, shall be seized by the custom-house officer on board, in order that they may be dealt with as prescribed in section II of this Act, and if goods entered in the manifest shall not be found on board the vessel, or if the quantity found be short, and the deficiency be not duly accounted for, or if goods sent out of the vessel be not landed at the custom-house, or at such other ghaut or place as the collector of customs shall have prescribed or permitted there to be passed in due form, the master or commander shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding 500 rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value, and for twice the amount of duty chargeable on the goods deficient and unaccounted for, if capable of being assessed therewith Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the collector of customs from permitting the master or commander of any vessel to amend obvious errors, or to supply omissions from accident or inadvertence by furnishing an amended or supplemental manifest, but the receiving of such shall always be discretionary

13 And it is hereby enacted, that any custom-house officer whatsoever who shall demand or accept any gratuity not authorised by any existing regulation or order of Government in consideration of doing or omitting to do any act in his official capacity, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of 500 rupees, and any person who shall offer a bribe to any custom-house officer, in order to induce such officer to act in a manner inconsistent with his duty, shall forfeit a like sum, and these penalties shall be adjudged on conviction before any magistrate or justice of the peace of the town, district, or place where the custom-house may be established by such magistrate, and, in default of payment, any person so convicted shall be commited to the civil gaol of the city or district until the fine be paid, or for a period not exceeding six months

14. And it is hereby enacted, that when goods shall be seized as contraband and liable to confiscation, the collector of customs shall investigate the case, and, according to his judgment, shall either release the goods or adjudge them to confiscation, and whenever he shall declare goods to be confiscated, he shall report his proceedings for confirmation and final adjudication by the Board of Customs, Salt, and Opium Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Governor of Bengal from ordering the release of goods seized, or from remitting any penalty whatsoever that may be incurred for contravention of the customs laws

15. And it is hereby further enacted, that 20 days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, shall be allowed for the discharge of the import cargo of vessels not exceeding 600 tons burthen, and thirty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, for the discharge of the import cargo of vessels exceeding that burthen, and the said periods shall be calculated from the day of the tidewaiter or other custom-house officer first going on board And if the whole cargo be not discharged by the expiration of the above-stated periods respectively, the master or commander shall be charged with the tidewaiter's or other officer's wages, and other expenses, for any further period that he or they may be detained on board And if the owners, importers, or consignees do not bring their goods to land within the period above fixed, it shall be the duty of the master or commander so to do And if any goods remain on board after the time fixed as above for the discharge of the import cargo, the collector may order the same to be landed and warehoused for the security of the duties chargeable, and of any freight and primage and other demands that may be due thereon, giving his receipt to the master for the same Provided always, that in all cases it shall be lawful for the collector or other officer in charge of the custom-house, with the consent of the master of the vessel, to cause any packages to be brought on shore, and to be deposited in the Government warehouse for the security of the duties and charges thereon, although 20 days may not have expired from the entry of such vessel, and in case goods so landed and warehoused, or any goods brought to land from any vessel, be not claimed and cleared from the custom-house within three months from the date of landing, it shall be competent to the collector to sell the same on account of the duties, freight, and other charges incurred and due thereon

16 And it is hereby enacted, that a further period of 15 days, Sundays and holidays excluded, shall be allowed for putting on board export cargo, if the vessel shall not exceed 600 tons burthen, and 20 days if exceeding that burthen, when the lading and unlading thereof shall be continuous, and the master or commander shall in such case not be charged with the wages and expenses of the custom-house officer on board until after the expiration of such additional periods respectively. And if a vessel having discharged its import cargo shall be laid up, the custom-house officer on board shall be withdrawn so soon as he shall certify that no goods remain on board excepting necessary stores and articles for use, and when a vessel so laid up shall be entered at the custom-house for receipt of export cargo, a custom-house officer shall be sent on board, and if the said last-mentioned officer shall certify that no goods are on board, saving as above excepted, 20 days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays as above, shall be allowed from the date of such certificate for the lading outwards of a vessel not exceeding 600 tons, and 30 days for vessels exceeding that burthen, after which periods respectively the master and commander shall be charged with the wages and expenses of the custom-house officer on board to the date of the vessel's sailing from the port

17. And it is hereby enacted, that if any person in charge of a vessel shall have become liable to any penalty, fine, or demand, on account of any act or omission relating to customs, the collector of customs shall be competent, subject to the orders of the Board of Customs, Salt, and Opium, to refuse port clearance to such vessel until the fine shall be discharged

18 And it is hereby enacted, that upon any goods passed through the custom-house for shipment, the application for which shall be presented after port clearance shall have been taken out, double the prescribed duty shall, in all cases, be levied, and, if the goods be free, five per cent upon the market value shall be levied thereon

19 And it is hereby enacted, that when a vessel having cleared out from any port shall put back from stress of weather, or it shall, for any damage or from other cause, be necessary that the cargo of a vessel that has cleared out shall be unshipped or relanded, a custom-house officer shall be sent to watch the vessel and take charge of the cargo during such relanding or removal from on board, and the goods on board such vessel shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported, free of duty, by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export, unless the goods shall be lodged in such place as shall be allowed by the collector of customs, and shall remain while on land, or while on board any other vessels under the special charge of the officers of customs, until the time of re-export, and all charges attending such custody shall be borne by the exporter, or by the applicant, for this advantage Provided, however, that in all cases of return to port after port clearance, on account of damage or for stress of weather, it shall be lawful for the owner, or for the master and commander, to re-enter the vessel and land the cargo under the rules for the importation of goods, and the export duty shall in that case be refunded, and the amount paid in drawback be reclaimed, and the goods be placed in all respects as before being passed for exportation, and if goods, on account of which drawback has been paid, be not found on board the vessel, the master shall forfeit the entire value thereof, unless he account for them to the satisfaction of the collector of customs

20 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods shall be relanded before the lading of any vessel is complete and port clearance has been granted, the duty levied upon such goods shall be returned to the exporter, but no refund shall be made of duty paid on the export of any goods after port clearance shall have been granted for the vessel on which the goods were exported, except the vessel shall have put back for stress of weather or for damage, and the goods shall have been relanded under the rule contained in section XIX. of this Act

21 And it is hereby further enacted, that vessels owned by natives of Arabia, and coming from the ports thereof, and likewise the vessels of any country or port of Asia not subject to the dominions of the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, excepting dhoonies and small craft from the Maldive and Nicobar Islands as hereinunder provided, shall be deemed foreign vessels.

22. And it is hereby enacted, that dhoonies, country craft, and other small vessels, not brought into the port of Calcutta by pilots, shall be required to anchor and moor in such part of the River Hooghly as shall be marked out by the collector of customs, with the sanction of the Board of Customs, Salt, and Opium, and if any such vessel shall anchor in any other part of the river than as so marked out, and the master, or person in charge thereof, shall not immediately, upon being ordered so to do, move his vessel to the place marked out, he shall be liable to a fine of 100 rupees, to be adjudged by the collector of customs, and the vessel, or any part of its equipment or cargo may be seized and sold in satisfaction of such fine, and goods shall be landed from such vessels, and put on board for export according to such rules, and at such places, as shall be prescribed by the collector of customs, and vessels of this description coming from the Maldives or from the Nicobar Islands shall be considered as British vessels

And in settling for the duties on exports by sea, credit shall be given for payment of inland customs duty, and drawback shall be allowed of any excess of duty paid upon production of ruwanas, under the following conditions, until 1 April 1837

1 That the goods shall be identified, and destination to the port of export proved in the usual manner

2 That the ruwanas shall bear date before the 1st April 1836, and the goods shall not have been protected thereby, or by the original thereof, more than two years.

And after the said 1st April 1837 credit shall not be given, nor shall drawback be allowed, of any inland customs or land frontier duty paid at any custom-house or chokee of the Jumma frontier line, or of Benares, except only upon the article of cotton wool, covered by ruwanas, taken out at the custom-houses of the Western Provinces, and proved to have been destined for export by sea when passed out of those provinces.

SEPARATE Revenue Department, 7 June (No. 5) 1837.

Our Governor-General of India in Council.

1. We now reply to the letters and paragraphs noted in the margin, which bring to our notice the proceedings connected with the abolition of the transit and town duties throughout the districts subject to the Governments of Bengal and Agra, and the enactment of Act No XIV of 1836, effecting various alterations in the rates of duties levied upon sea-borne commerce

Public Letter, dated 2d September 1835, paras 204 to 213
Separate ditto, dated 2d March (No 1) 1836
Ditto, ditto, dated 2d March (No 2) 1836, paras 23 to 36.
Ditto, ditto, dated 6 July (No 4) 1836

2 That portion of the paragraphs under reply which relates to the post-office arrangements will be noticed in the public department

3 In consequence of a resolution of the Supreme Government passed in July 1834, a committee was appointed, consisting of civil servants of all the presidencies, "for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the system in force for levying exports, imports, and transit duties under the three presidencies" This committee was composed of the following gentlemen —

|---|---|
| Mr G J Siddons, Bengal, c sMr. H M Parker, Bengal, c sMr. C E Trevelyan, Bengal, c s | Honorary Members |

Mr Parker was subsequently relieved from the duties of the committee as an honorary member, in consequence of his representation that the weight of his official occupations would prevent his devoting a sufficient share of attention to the business.

4. To each of the members from the presidencies of Madras and Bombay an extra salary of 1,000 rupees per month was assigned, and of 500 rupees per month to Lieutenant Taylor, who was appointed to act as secretary to the committee

5 The first meeting of the committee was held at Calcutta in May 1835, and their first report to Government, which contained a detailed view of the actual system under which the customs, transit and town duties were levied in the several presidencies, with an outline of the changes which had taken place since our acquisition of the territories composing them, was dated the 27th January 1836

6 In the same month the Supreme Government received information that the Governor of Agra had abolished the custom-houses of Bareilly, Futtehghur, and Cawnpore, and subsequently those of Benares and Ghazeepore, as well as the chokies attached to the Allahabad custom-house The conduct of the Governor of Agra in thus assuming the right of summarily deciding a question then under the anxious consideration of the Council of India, has been already noticed in our political despatch of the 1st February (No 2) 1837 It is here only necessary to advert to it in connexion with its effects upon the measures which were then under your deliberation.

7 The extinction of the internal custom-houses of the Agra Presidency involved of course the virtual abolition of the internal customs which were levied by their agency It was apparent that a different system could not be allowed to prevail in two presidencies so closely connected as those of Bengal and Agra, and even then on the point of being re-united There were thus only two alternatives for your selection, either to rescind the orders of the Governor of Agra, and re-establish the abolished custom-houses, or to pursue the same course of policy by abolishing also the internal custom-houses of the Bengal Presidency.

8 The first course was open to serious objections It would have been manifestly unwise to restore a system which you were not fully determined to maintain, and unsettle the minds of the people by exhibiting so prominently a want of unity of principle or of stability of purpose on the part of their rulers

9. Under the embarrassing circumstances in which you were placed, we think that you judged rightly in determining upon the abolition of the inland custom-houses of Bengal The measure itself is in entire accordance with our previously expressed views on the subject, and our only regret is, that you were precipitated into its adoption without having been enabled to form any available plan for compensating the loss of revenue, which was the necessary consequence of the relinquishment of the transit duties

10 The measure thus adopted was carried into effect by a public notification, dated the 1st March 1836, and by a subsequent notification, dated the 20th April, the town duties were also abolished from the 1st May 1836

11 It was the intention of the committee, to whom the general question of customs duties had been referred, to submit for your approbation a plan applicable to the whole of the territory under your Government, understanding, as they state in their letter of the

Appendix, No 18.

12th March 1836, that they were bound by the tenor of their instructions "to regard the whole of India in the light of one empire, the interests of all parts of which were to be considered, not with the view of applying separate remedial measures to each, and of leaving the line of demarcation which partitions each presidency into a distinct country, whose fiscal system has reference to itself alone, as strongly defined as ever, but with the intent of blending and reconciling them, so as, if possible, to reduce the custom laws of all the presidencies into something like simplicity and uniformity, without losing sight of the financial interest of the State."

12. The reports of the committee embodying the measure by which these desirable objects were to be effected have not yet been laid before us. Those measures are, however, further indicated in another passage of the same letter as including the abolition of the internal customs in every part of British India, and the substitution of an uniform export and import duty.

13 The relinquishment of the transit and town duties throughout the Presidencies of Bengal and Agra, rendered it necessary to avoid all delay in looking elsewhere for some compensation for the loss of those branches of revenue The only available source for this purpose was to be found in the external trade of Bengal, and you accordingly resolved, without waiting for the propositions to be submitted by the committee, which were not yet matured, to impose such additional burthens on the sea-borne commerce, as might, at least in some measure, make up the deficiency which you anticipated in your revenues.

14 The actual loss occasioned by the relinquishment of the town and transit duties is variously estimated by different authorities The committee, in the letter previously quoted, express their "conviction that the deficit arising from the entire abolition of the internal custom-houses in the Bengal and Agra Presidencies will be very small," and their "strong persuasion that there will be no deficit at all" Mr. Ross, in a minute dated the 23d May 1836, endeavours to show that the alteration of system has actually caused a profit to the revenue of 1,93,986 rupees, and that a very large increase in this amount may be anticipated. The Board of Customs, in their letter dated the 21st March 1836 (without however including the amount of actual or prospective increase in the receipts on the Agra frontier line), assume a deficiency of 13,00,000 rupees, to which they add one lac as the expense of the necessary increase of establishment at the Calcutta custom-house

15 We are not in possession of the means of entering into a critical analysis of the calculations which have led to these different results. Assuming, however, as you have done, the least favourable view of the change to be that which approaches the nearest to the truth, the amount of deficiency is not so great, but that we may reasonably calculate on its being speedily compensated by means of the impetus which the withdrawal of the vexatious and harassing restrictions imposed by the town and transit duties on the internal trade of the country must give to general commerce.

16 The Governor-general, in his minute dated the 14th April 1836, after stating the amount of deficit at 14,00,000 rupees, observes, "We are not, I am clearly of opinion, bound to supply the whole of this amount out of direct additions to the duties of sea customs We may fairly take into account the improvement of income which has been already proved to be secured by the establishment of the more effective preventive line on the north-western frontier, we may allow something for the promises which are largely, and apparently upon good grounds, made of further improvements from the same source, and I think that we are also justified in taking into account the impulse which will be given to internal industry by a removal of one of the greatest impediments by which it has ever been oppressed, and for an increased production in all other sources of revenue from the improved means of payment, which a relief from these exactions must give to the whole country. Some further allowance may justly also be made for improvement on the customs duties by increased consumption, and by a mode of collection more effective and less vexatious in its operation than that which has hitherto been followed"

17 Acting on these views, the Governor-general proposed for adoption a revised scale of export and import duties, the effect of which, taking the registered value of the trade of 1834-35 as the basis of the calculation, would be to increase the sea customs' revenue to the extent of six lacs and a quarter per annum This scale, after being submitted to further revision in communication with the mercantile community of Calcutta, in the course of which alterations were adopted calculated to produce a further increase of the customs revenue to the extent of nearly two lacs of rupees per annum, was finally passed as Schedules A. and B to Act No XIV. of 1836

18 The rates which you have adopted appear to have been fixed after the most careful inquiry, and we see nothing to object to in the general principles by which your decisions have been regulated

19 Sugar, which was previously subjected to a duty of 2½ per cent on exportation to Great Britain (which rate was in the first proposed schedule of duties increased to 3 per cent) has been entirely relieved from export duty. This concession to the wishes of the Chamber of Commerce was apparently made with the view of diminishing the inequality which then existed in the rates of duty levied in this country on sugar, the produce of the East and West Indies The beneficial change which the wisdom of Parliament has since effected in that respect, may be considered to furnish a reason for the re-imposition of the duty.

It is, however, of extreme importance that every assistance should be given to the improvement of the yet undeveloped resources of India, and we should be unwilling to hazard even the slight check which so small a duty might give to the expenditure of capital in the improvement of this grand staple of the country, more especially when we consider that all the encouragement which it may receive will be surely, though indirectly, felt in the improvement of the internal condition of the country, and that any apparent loss will not fail to be compensated to you through other channels

20 The same considerations apply equally to the article of cotton, but as the rate of duty is only fixed provisionally, pending the acquisition of further information on the subject, it is unnecessary for us to enter upon the question at present

21 We are disposed to concur generally in the views entertained by your Governor-general on the injurious tendency of export duties. They are at present only to be justified by the actual necessity of the case in a financial point of view We desire, however, that you will watch their operation with the utmost vigilance, and that you will not fail to apply a remedy to all cases where they may be found to be manifestly injurious to the interests of commerce

22 The whole measure must in fact be regarded as provisional, and open to any alteration which further inquiry and consideration may show to be expedient. In the letter from Mr Secretary Prinsep to the Board of Customs, dated the 18th May 1836, it is observed that "the Governor-general in Council is fully sensible that the provisions of this Act are very imperfect, and that nothing short of a full and precise code of customs law for imports and exports, framed either on the principles of the draft prepared in 1823-24, or on those of the customs law of England, will effectually answer the purpose in view. The urgency, however, of the necessity of providing a present remedy for the consequences of the abandonment of the former system, has been the principal inducement with the Governor-general of India in Council to wait the preparation and adaptation to existing circumstances of the extended code referred to."

23 The abolition of transit duties in Bengal presented much fewer difficulties than those which you will have to encounter in extending the benefits of the measure to the other presidencies The amount of deficit arising from the relinquishment of the town and transit duties was much less in comparison with the extent of territory over which they were levied, and the capacity of the maritime commerce of Calcutta to support compensating burthens was much greater, certainly, than that of Madras, and probably than that of Bombay

24 The net amount of inland customs and town duties under the Madras Presidency is about 30 lacs of rupees Of this amount, however, about 10 lacs are properly assignable to sea customs, leaving still a deficiency of 20 lacs, an amount which could never be compensated by any addition to the already heavily taxed commerce of that presidency

25 Under the Presidency of Bombay the net amount of transit and town duties is estimated to exceed 18 lacs of rupees, and it is believed that nearly this amount might be raised by increased duties on the maritime commerce of that presidency It must be recollected that some portion of this amount is derived from salt, an article which is now heavily taxed in every other part of British India, and which is expressly excepted from the operation of the abolition of the transit duties in the western provinces of Bengal It may therefore be worthy of consideration, whether some portion of the general deficit may not be supplied by continuing in some other form the duty now derived by the Bombay Government from that article

26 Under the most favourable view of the case, we apprehend that we must look for the recovery of a considerable portion of the deficiency to the effects of the impulse which must necessarily be given to internal industry and external commerce by the removal of those impediments which have hitherto pressed upon them, and for the full development of these effects, the lapse of some years will probably be necessary.

27 We have only to express our earnest hope that the Customs Committee, to whom the task of devising the means by which the benefits already secured to Bengal may be extended to the other presidencies has been entrusted, may be enabled to bring their labours to a speedy termination.

28 You will of course keep us fully informed of the further measures which you may adopt on this important subject And we desire that as soon as a sufficient period shall have elapsed to enable you to judge of the results of the change of system, you will furnish us with statements in as detailed a form as possible of its effects both on the revenues and on the internal and external commerce of the country.

29 Since the foregoing paragraphs were prepared, we have received your letters of the 19th October (No 6) 1836, and the 4th January (No 1) 1837

30 In paragraph 13, of the first letter, you state that you trust we shall, when fully informed of the real character of the taxation prevailing in the interior of both the other presidencies, be sensible of the necessity of some considerable change, and shall be disposed to enlarge the discretion left to you in respect to the abandonment of existing sources of the public income, and to approve such partial measures, not involving any extensive sacrifice of income, or likely to interfere with other financial arrangements, as in the meantime you may be led to adopt

31 In paragraph 20, of the letter of 4th January 1837, you express a hope, that by furnishing us with a statement of the further proceedings of the committee for revising the customs and post-office laws of India, you should place before us such an anticipated view of the tendency and character of these measures, as would be of material assistance in enabling us to decide how far to give our sanction to the reforms contemplated, by granting to you the solicited latitude of discretion in respect to the abandonment of sources of revenue which you may deem odious, oppressive, and injurious to a degree to warrant and require their discontinuance

32 You inform us that you had not determined how far to sanction the principles on which the Customs Committee proposed to afford relief, or to the details comprehended in that plan, but as you do not appear to object to that part of the scheme which would confine the relief to the maritime districts of Madras, while the whole of the interior of the Bengal and Agra provinces, as well as of the districts in Bombay, would be exempted from transit and town duties, it becomes necessary for us to record our dissent from such a system of partial relief

33 If financial considerations will not enable you to afford to the whole of the districts of Madras and Bombay the same measure of relief which has been given to the provinces of Bengal and Agra, we are clearly of opinion that justice and sound policy require that the relief in the two subordinate presidencies should be extended to articles of consumption or of commerce, and not to districts We may indeed observe that the committee scheme would involve similar anomalies in legislation to those depicted in their report of the 27th January 1836, by which the manufacturers of the Madras districts were successively driven from the towns into the villages, and again from the villages into the towns The scheme, in fact, would hold out a premium for the transfer of a large portion of the population and capital of the country from the interior to the maritime districts, in which moreover the Government would not be able, in consequence of the greater extension of the permanent settlement in the latter districts, to derive adequate compensation for the diminished cultivation of the Sirkar lands situated in the interior of the Peninsula, which such a transfer of population would occasion

34 Trusting that these objections to the Committee's plan will be fully weighed when you proceed to apply the proper remedies to the evils which are allowed on all hands to press so heavily on the resources and industry of the inhabitants of the Peninsula, we do not hesitate to give the required sanction to the contemplated reforms with respect to certain sources of revenue which you may think expedient to abandon

Passed by the Right Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council, on the 5th August 1843

An Act for regulating the levy of Customs Duties, and the manufacture of Salt in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal

1 It is hereby enacted, that Regulation XVI 1829, Act II 1838, and so much of Regulation IX 1810, and of any other Regulation and Act, as affects the collection of customs duties, or the manufacture of salt in the North-western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal, shall be repealed from the 1st day of September 1843.

2 And it is further enacted, that from and after the day above-mentioned, the following and no other duties of customs shall be leviable upon the import and export of articles into and from the North-western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal, that is to say

On the import of salt, of all descriptions, two rupees per maund, and a further duty of one rupee per maund on the transmission thereof to the eastward of Allahabad

On the import of cotton, uncleaned, four annas per maund, cleaned, eight annas per maund

On the export of misree, kund, chenee, and all clayed and refined sugar, eight annas per maund, goor, râb, sheerah, and all unclayed and unrefined saccharine produce, three annas per maund

The import of sugar into any part of the said provinces is, and shall remain prohibited

3 And it is further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Government of the said provinces, from time to time, to make and issue such orders as may be deemed expedient for the collection of the aforesaid duties, in such manner, and upon such line or lines, and at such places on or near such line or lines as may seem fit, and all such orders shall have the same force as if they formed a part of this Act from the date notified in the Gazette, wherein they shall be published

4 And it is further enacted, that from and after the 1st day of September 1843, the manufacture of alimentary salt throughout the North-western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal, without the express sanction of the Government, is prohibited, and that any person engaging in the manufacture of such salt, or preparing or causing to be prepared works for the manufacture of such salt, without such sanction, and all zemindars or other proprietors of land, or their agents, conniving at such illicit manufacture, shall, on conviction by the magistrate, within the limits of whose district the offence may have occurred, be punished by a fine not exceeding 500 rupees, and on non-payment of such fine, by imprisonment not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour, and that all works at which such manufacture shall have been conducted, or which are designed for such manufacture, shall be destroyed, and any salt which may be manufactured or stored thereat shall be seized and confiscated

5. And it is further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the collectors of customs, and the collectors of land revenue within their jurisdictions, to destroy all works for the manufacture of salt, and to seize the salt stored thereat, and to apprehend the persons concerned in the manufacture thereof, and make them over for trial to the magistrate within the limits of whose district the offence may have occurred

6 It is further enacted, that all sugar imported into the said provinces, and all articles imported or exported without payment of the duties imposed by this Act, or in contravention of the orders which may be made and issued under the provisions thereof, and all boats, carriages and conveyances, and all animals used in transporting the same, shall be liable to be seized and confiscated in the manner hereinafter mentioned

7 And it is further enacted, that all persons evading or attempting to evade the payment of the duties imposed by this Act, and all persons aiding or abetting such attempts or evasions, or in any manner acting in contravention of this Act, or of any order made and issued under the provisions thereof, and all zemindars and other proprietors of land, or their agents, who shall wilfully connive at such attempts or evasions, or aid such acts, shall, on conviction by the magistrate within the limits of whose district the offence may have occurred, be punished by a fine not exceeding 500 rupees, and on non-payment thereof by imprisonment not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour

8 And it is further enacted, that it shall be lawful for all officers of the customs department to search any carriages and conveyances, and any packages, upon reasonable grounds of suspicion that such carriages, conveyances, or packages contain any articles made subject to duty, or prohibited to be imported by this Act, and to detain all such articles as may be liable to confiscation under the provisions thereof

9 And it is hereby enacted, that whenever any articles or goods shall be seized or detained under the provisions of this Act, the collector or deputy collector of land revenue or customs, within whose jurisdiction such seizure or detention shall occur, shall, with all practicable expedition, report the case for the determination of the commissioner of revenue, and it shall be lawful for such commissioner to declare such articles or goods to be confiscated, or to impose such lesser penalty in lieu thereof, as to him may seem fit

10 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for all officers in the customs department to apprehend any person upon reasonable grounds of suspicion that such person is liable to punishment under this Act, and to make him over for trial with all practicable expedition to the magistrate within whose jurisdiction the offence may occur

11 Provided always, that any officer of the customs department who shall without reasonable grounds of suspicion search any carriage or conveyance, or any package, shall, upon conviction thereof before the magistrate within whose jurisdiction the offence may have been committed, be punished with fine not exceeding 250 rupees, which fine shall be paid over to the party aggrieved, and on non-payment of such fine, with imprisonment not exceeding three months, and provided also, that any officer of the customs department who shall, under colour of this Act, apprehend any person without reasonable grounds of suspicion that such person is liable to punishment under this Act, shall upon conviction before the magistrate within whose jurisdiction the offence may have been committed, be punished with fine not exceeding 500 rupees, which fine shall be paid over to the party aggrieved, and on non-payment of such fine, with imprisonment not exceeding six months

12 And it is hereby enacted, that all magistrates, or persons exercising the powers of magistrate, shall be competent to receive and determine all charges against persons thus made over to them for trial on account of offences against this Act, and that all sentences passed in pursuance of this Act, shall be open to appeal under such rules as may from time to time be laid down for the cognizance of appeals in ordinary cases

13 And it is hereby enacted, that all officers of police, and all officers of the government engaged in the collection of the land revenue, are empowered and required to aid and assist the officers of the customs department in the execution of this Act.

14. And it is further enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall apply or be deemed to apply to the Saugor and Nerbudda territories, or to the district of Ajmere

SEPARATE Revenue Department, 6th March (No. 2) 1844

Our Governor-General of India in Council.

ENACTMENT of Act XIV of 1843, for Regulating the levy of Salt and Customs Duties in the North-western Provinces

Par 1 IN your Legislative Letter, dated the 5th August last (No. 16), you inform us that you have passed an Act (No XIV. of 1843), "for Regulating the levy of Customs Duties, and the manufacture of Salt in the North-western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal."

2 In our despatch in this department, dated the 17th December (No. 4) 1839, paragraph 5, we observed that "the state of confusion into which the management of this branch of revenue had been allowed to fall, was by no means creditable to the local Government. Duties had been discontinued and again collected without any sufficient authority, and the whole system of the administration of the department had been reconstructed on principles altogether new, and wholly at variance with the Regulation of 1810, which still remained in full force" We added, "that this state of things could be no longer allowed to continue, and that whatever system you might finally determine on adopting must be properly established on a legal footing"

3 By the Act now submitted, the manufacture of salt throughout the North-western Provinces is prohibited, except with the express sanction of Government, and the duty on its importation is fixed at two rupees per maund, with an additional duty of one rupee on its transmission to the eastward of Allahabad Customs duties are to be levied on the import of cotton, and on the export of sugar across the frontier, and goods of every other description are to be allowed to pass free

4 We approve generally of the principle of the plan, so far as it adds to the freedom of trade, by restricting the levy of duty to a small number of articles, the bulkiness of which will render its evasion difficult, and from the same cause, as it diminishes the annoyance to which travellers and merchants are subjected by the liability of their goods to be stopped and examined by the customs officers.

5 The draft Act was transmitted by the Governor-general to the Vice-President in Council, with a letter dated at Agra, the 3rd May 1843. By a resolution dated the 29th July, the rule requiring a previous publication of two months before the passing of any Act was suspended, and on the 5th August, the draft was made law, and took effect from the 1st September 1843

6 Your letter under reply is not accompanied by any statements, showing upon what articles, and at what rates customs duties were at the time levied on the north-west frontier, nor the amount of revenue which was realized. The articles legally subject to taxation, and the legal rates of duty, were those enumerated in Regulation IX, of 1810, but, as observed in the despatch before referred to, so many changes have been made under the authority of the local Government, and of the Western Board of Revenue, that we are quite uninformed of the actual state of things immediately previous to the passing of the Act under discussion For the same reason, we are unable to judge of the probable financial operation of the scheme You state that the duties on 121 articles are abolished, and that the average receipts on 48 of these formed an aggregate of only 1,500 rupees per annum, but the amount produced by the others is not stated, nor the amount which is expected to be realized from the duties on salt, cotton, and sugar imposed by the Act.

7 Under Regulation IX. of 1810, cotton wool is subjected to a duty of 12 annas per maund of 96 Calcutta sicca weight By the present Act, the duty is reduced to four annas per maund on uncleaned, and eight annas per maund on cleaned cotton. It is not, however, stated whether the cotton which has thus paid duty on importation, is to be entitled to the privilege of drawback on exportation from Calcutta, which, by the rate appended to Schedule (B ) of Act XIV of 1836, is granted to "cotton wool covered by ruwanas taken out at the customs-houses of the Western Provinces, and proved to have been destined for export by sea, when passed out of those provinces"

8 We find from the Report on the Customs Revenues, submitted by the Sudder Board of Revenue, N W Provinces, to the Lieutenant-governor, on the 4th October 1842, that the duty paid on the import of cotton was in that year 3,60,371 rupees, and on its export 2,05,042 rupees As we are not informed of the rate at which duty was levied, nor of the amount which was subsequently refunded as drawback on exportation from Calcutta, we are unable to form any judgment of the effects of the change on the revenue derived from this article

9 We presume, that as the duty on importation is levied on the Jumna line of chokeys, the cotton grown in Bundelkund, and other portions of British territory beyond that line, will be subject to duty, while that produced in the Dooab will be free from taxation. This circumstance should have been adverted to while the measure was under your consideration, and your reasons for maintaining the distinction should have been stated, it probably, however, could not have been abolished without an entire change in the disposition of the line of chokeys on which the duty is collected.

10 The duty leviable under Regulation IX of 1810, on "sugar, jagry, goor, and syrup," was 5 per cent ad valorem As this was a transit duty, it was leviable whenever the article was brought within the limits of a custom-house, and was therefore payable on passing out of our territory, as well as on coming into it, but whether this rate of duty was actually collected on the north-western frontier line, at the date of the enactment under notice, or whether it had been modified by any orders of the local government, we are left uninformed

11 By the present Act, duties are levied at the following rates —"On the export of misree, kund, chenee, and all clayed and refined sugar, eight annas per maund, goor, ral, sheerah, and all unclayed and unrefined saccharine produce, three annas per maund."

12 The collector of Calcutta customs, in his report for 1841–42, states the price of sugar at from 12 to 15 rupees per bazaar maund. Assuming 10 rupees per maund as the value of sugar in the North-western Provinces, the duty now leviable on refined or clayed sugar would be almost the same as that to which it was subjected by Regulation IX of 1810, and a reduction of more than one-half is made in the rate chargeable on unrefined sugar, the only difference being, that instead of being levied in the shape of a per-centage on the value, it is converted into a fixed rate on the quantity

13 In 1841–42, the amount of duty collected on the importation of sugar into the North-west Provinces was 99,235 rupees, and on its exportation 3,53,111 rupees The object of the prohibition in the new Act is not stated, but it may have possibly been determined on, with the view of claiming for the sugar of the North-western Provinces, when exported from Calcutta, the right of being admitted into the United Kingdom at the reduced rate of duty

14 By Regulation XVI of 1829, the duty on Lahoree, Sambhur, and the better descriptions of salt, was fixed at one rupee and eight annas per maund, and on the inferior descriptions at one rupee By the new law, all descriptions of salt are for the future to be taxed at two rupees per maund

15 The effect of this change, as a financial measure, must depend mainly upon the efficiency of the means at your disposal to prevent the illicit introduction of salt without the payment of duty

16 You state that the "additional powers given to the customs department, and the increased strength which will be given to the customs establishment, will, it is to be hoped, prevent any increase of smuggling on the north-west frontier" Of this result we are somewhat doubtful The Governor-general says, that "the collector of Delhi entertains no apprehension of not being able to enforce the collection of the increased duty (on salt) by the additional means placed at his disposal" Mr Smith, the collector of customs at Agra, remarks, that although the north-west frontier line "has been found adequate to prevent smuggling when eight annas was to be gained at the risk of losing 10 annas, the case will be entirely altered when the profit is raised from eight annas to one rupee eight annas on each maund smuggled across the line" It may be apprehended that the increase of the duty on salt passing the frontier will give an impetus to the contraband trade, which it will be found difficult to check, even with an augmented preventive establishment, and it would further appear that the increased duty is to take effect immediately, while the measures to be adopted for strengthening the frontier line of chokeys are still under consideration

17 By the new Act, the manufacture of salt throughout the North-western Provinces, "without the express sanction of the Government, is prohibited" With reference to the provisions of Act II of 1838, which authorise any person to manufacture salt in the North-western Provinces, on giving "notice in writing to the collector of the district in which the place of manufacture may be situated of his intention to manufacture salt therein," we should have been glad to have been informed of the number and value of the salt works established under the authority of that Act (for we presume that such works were in existence, as we find in the report before referred to an item of 2,567 rupees, under the head of "miscellaneous salt collections under Act II. of 1838"), and whether the sudden withdrawal of the right to manufacture salt may not involve the Government in claims to compensation for losses caused by its cessation.

18 From the report before referred to, we find that the total customs collections of the North-west Provinces amounted, in 1841–42, to 46,95,779 rupees, of which sum no less a proportion than 36,55,611 rupees was produced by the duties on salt, cotton, and sugar The difference, being 10,40,168 rupees, consists, we presume, of the collections on those articles which are now exempted from taxation, with the exception of such portion of it as may have accrued from fees on rowannahs, and other miscellaneous receipts, which will continue to be collected. This sum, therefore, together with the export duties on cotton, and the import duties on sugar, making an aggregate amount of upwards of 13 lacs of rupees, is altogether given up, and it is probably expected that the loss to the revenue will be made good from the produce of the increased duties on salt.

19 Having thus communicated to you the remarks which have occurred to us in the very imperfect state of the information which has been submitted, we have to desire that you will carefully watch the operation of the Act, and that you will furnish us without delay with an account of the system which was actually in force immediately previous to its enactment, and of the financial effects which may be expected to result from the change which you have now sanctioned.

(No. 2,218, of 1844.)

From the Honourable J Thomason, Esq, Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, to the Right Honourable Edward Lord Ellenborough, Governor-General of India, in Council.

My Lord, Fort William, 12 June 1844

Separate Revenue Department

It is proposed in the present despatch to reply to the Honourable Court's letter, in the Separate Revenue Department, No 2, of 1844, dated March 6th, 1844, and at the same time to bring down to the latest date the proceedings in this department within the limits of these provinces to which Act XIV of 1843, extends

2. The rules published by this Government on February 10th last, under Sect III of the above Act, and the declaratory circular order of the Sudder Board of Revenue regarding the manufactory of saltpetre, are forwarded as separate numbers in this packet, and will shew the arrangements which have been made for the enforcement of the provisions of the Act

3. The annexed entry shews the establishment which has been provisionally sanctioned for the collection of the customs and enforcement of the law But as these charges are not yet finally fixed, the statement must not be received as an accurate exhibition of what will be necessary.

4 The annexed Table shows the gross collections from all dutiable articles since 1834-35, to the close of 1843-44, with a specification of the amount realized from salt, cotton, and sugar In 1836-37 the frontier line system was substituted for the detached custom-house system In 1843-44 the provisions of Act XIV. of 1843, came into operation from September 1st 1843. Under neither system has there been any loss of revenue. The partial operation of the present system during the past year, under the very unfavourable circumstances attending its first introduction, has yielded a considerable increase of revenue; and in future years, if there are no calamities of season, a still further increase may be expected.

5 I will proceed to offer some special observations on the different articles now, or previously dutiable under the several heads of salt, cotton, sugar, and miscellaneous

Salt

6 Previous to the enactment of Act XIV. of 1843, the duty on all salt was one rupee the maund, the additional duty of eight annas per maund, leviable under Clause I, Sect. III., Reg XVI, 1829, on Lahoree, Saumer, and Doodwana salt, having been remitted by the Governor-general on July 1st 1835

7 A uniform duty of two rupees per maund is now levied on all salt passing the north-western frontier line, and a further duty of one rupee per maund on all passing eastward of Allahabad Salt is allowed to be brought across the Hurrianah line for consumption, west of the frontier line, on payment of one rupee per maund

8 The great works for the production or manufacture of salt are in the Punjaub, whence rock-salt is brought, in Rajpootana, where it is made in the great salt lakes at Saumer and Doodwana, &c , at Noh and Sultanpore, in the Delhi territory; and in the Bhurtpore country, on the Agra frontier

9 The Punjaub and Rajpootana salt have to travel far before they reach our frontier, this naturally raises the price, and diminishes the temptation to smuggling There is not much difficulty in bringing these under contribution, especially now that the Hurrianah line has been prolonged to the Sutlej, and the latter salt has thus been prevented from turning the line.

10 The Noh and Sultanpore works lie within our own jurisdiction, westward of the line. An establishment used to be maintained there to watch the manufacture, and prevent its removal for import till duty was paid Mr Smith, the collector of customs at Delhie, trusting entirely to the strength of his preventive line, withdrew this establishment The consequence was, that several lacs of maunds were smuggled across the line in the months of December, January, and February last The salt in store at the works was sold off at one anna a maund, at which rate it was almost impossible to realize a duty of two rupees per maund, or 3,200 per cent upon the cost price The local preventive establishment has now been again entertained, and the smuggling has been greatly checked

11 The greatest difficulty is experienced with regard to the Bhurtpore salt, or as it is called in Reg XVI, 1829, Balambha salt. A great quantity of good salt is made all along our frontier in the Bhurtpore territory, from the brine raised from wells This brine is exposed to evaporation in shallow earthen pans at the mouth of each well, and the salt is manufactured at a very small cost, varying from four to six annas per maund Each manufactory pays a duty to the Rajah of Bhurtpore, or his farmer, and the whole constitutes an important item in the revenues of the Bhurtpore state.

12. These circumstances alone would render the collection of the heavy duties imposed by our Government difficult, but the difficulty is considerably increased by the narrowness of the strip of our territory which intervenes between the Jumna and the Bhurtpore state, and the position of some Bhurtpore villages in the very midst of this strip, as shown in the annexed sketch

It is evident that the prevention of smuggling would almost be impossible without some secondary line in the Doab, unless we have, as is fortunately the case, the best understanding with the Rajah of Bhurtpore, and ready assistance from him in any way in which it can be rendered

13. The usual mode of smuggling is by head-loads. Bands of smugglers collect together on the frontier, just beyond customs' jurisdiction, each carrying a load of about 30 seers, or 60 lbs. The best efforts of the preventive establishment can only secure a few of the band; the rest pass on in the darkness of the night across the line, and the profit on the loads which escape amply compensates for the loss on those which are seized. When smuggling was not a penal offence, and the only punishment was confiscation of the load, it was evidently impossible to stop this system. However numerous and vigilant the customs officers, the smugglers had only to outnumber them, and they were sure to succeed. The case is now altered, fine or imprisonment follows apprehension, and of course there is greater reluctance to incur the risk. But it may reasonably be apprehended that recourse will now be had to violence in proportion as the stringency of our preventive measures increases. When the duty is 600 or 800 per cent. on the prime cost of the article, means of eluding it will be found, even though the article be bulky. The most that can be done is to palliate, rather than prevent the evil. The great mart of Hattrass in the Doab is the best test of the efficiency of our preventive measures, and if it is true, as is asserted, that the price of salt has lately risen there from 22 seers to 16 or 19 the rupee, it speaks well for the success of the means pursued. There have hitherto been few, if any, affrays arising from contests with smugglers, but the system has not yet been long enough in operation to enable me to form a correct judgment in this respect.

14. The route by which salt is brought across the frontier in the Mirzapore, or second division of customs, is so circuitous, that there is less temptation to smuggle in that part of the line.

15. The suppression of the manufacture of salt in our own territories has been part of the system introduced by Regulation XIV, 1843.

16. An attempt was made by the enactment of II, 1838, to bring this salt under contribution, but the plan entirely failed, partly from the defect of the laws, and partly from the impossibility of the case. The salt manufactured in our own territories is, with few exceptions, very inferior in its quality. If the duty upon it were honestly paid, the foreign salt would drive it out of the market, especially when smuggling to a considerable extent is well known to reduce considerably the price of foreign salt below what it ought to be.

17. The first effect of Act II., 1838, was to check the manufacture of salt, but it was soon found that the provisions of the Act were inoperative, and that it was as advantageous to make and smuggle salt under its provisions, as to manufacture salt in violation of it. Accordingly, many licenses were taken out under Act II. of 1838, guardians were appointed on salaries of 10 rupees per mensem, and paid by the manufacturer to watch the works; and the guardians and manufacturers together realized large sums by the sale of much more salt than ever paid duty. The annexed return of licenses taken out under Act II., 1838, affords no grounds for judging of the quantity of salt actually manufactured.

18. The great difficulty at present experienced with regard to the manufacture of salt in our provinces, is to distinguish what really is a manufactory of alimentary salt. "Many salts are used in commerce which, in their crude state, contain a considerable quantity of muriate of soda, and there is no certain rule for determining what quantity of muriate of soda is necessary to constitute the work a manufactory of alimentary salt liable to destruction, and exposing the manufacturer to the penalties of Act XIV, of 1843. This difficulty is the most experienced with regard to saltpetre works, and is set forth in the annexed Circular Order of the Board. Attention is now directed to the subject, and information is in the course of collection, which will afford grounds for coming to a decision on this point.

Cotton

19. The duty of 12 annas per maund on cotton, leviable under Regulation IX, 1810, was changed by Sec. XII, Regulation IV, 1815, to an ad valorem duty of 5 per cent. All ad valorem duties were levied according to valuations in books of rates liable to periodical adjustment. This duty was, by Regulation XV, 1825, to be returned as a drawback on exportation of the article, on a British bottom, to Europe or America. The drawback was maintained in a note appended to Schedule (B ) in Act XIV, 1836

20 The duty, under this law, varied according to the market rate of the article at the custom-house, by which it was brought across the frontier line The sum to be refunded as drawback at the custom-house of Calcutta, of course was also variable The mercantile community complained of this, and the Board of Customs, at Calcutta, made a representation on the subject to the Sudder Board of Revenue, in 1840, pointing out the injurious preference for exportation which some cottons possessed in the market, and the difficulty experienced by the Calcutta collector of Customs, in determining whether the cotton had really passed the frontier line under the rowannah, on which the drawback was claimed. To obviate this difficulty, the Sudder Board of Revenue, in the exercise of the power they always possessed of adjusting the book of valuation rates, fixed 10 rupees per maund as the medium value of cotton at all the custom-houses. This fixed the duty at eight annas per maund, which remained unaltered from 1840 to the passing of Act XIV of 1843 The duty on uncleaned cotton was always four annas a maund

21 The amount of drawback given in Calcutta, on cotton exported to Europe and America, for a series of years, is shown in the annexed Table, and is of small amount The Oomradee cotton, which is generally preferred in the English market, finds its way to the sea by the more lightly taxed route to Bombay

22 Cotton is never exported in any quantities from the British territories, except by sea Great quantities of cotton are brought across the north-west frontier, for shipment at the different marts on the Jumnah and Ganges, and for the supply of our own provinces, as well as for export by sea The distinction of export and import attached to the entries of collections under this head, prior to 1843, were merely nominal, part of the practice under the old system of Regulation IX of 1810 " Goods brought by certain routes, or paying duty at certain times, were called exports, whilst goods brought by other routes, or paying duty at other times, were called imports " To remedy this, the fifth of the Rules of February 10th 1844, was passed to define what constituted export and what import *

23 Under the law prior to 1843, as well as at present, the cotton of the British province of Bundlecund paid duty on passing the frontier line upon the Jumnah, but this was done to facilitate the formation of a good and direct line along the river The hardship was compensated by the liberty of consuming untaxed salt, which they enjoyed in consequence of their position beyond the line.

24. In Mr Secretary Thornton's letter to the Secretary with the Governor-general, dated February 23rd last, copy of which is herewith sent, attention has already been drawn to the anomalies which result from the maintenance of a duty upon cotton in the Saugor and Nerbudda territories

25 It will hence appear that the provisions of Act XIV, 1843, have made no alteration whatever in the levy of duty on cotton They have only declared and made permanent what was before obscure and liable to change In the rules of 10th February 1844, a remedy was afforded to some petty inconveniences to which the trade was exposed in passing the frontier line, but these do not require detailed notice It will be obvious that the increased efficiency given to the preventive line, tends to bring the imported articles more certainly under contribution Cotton is so bulky, and the duty so very moderate, that payment is never evaded

Sugar.

26 The same has been essentially the case with sugar as with cotton It was formerly liable to a duty of 5 per cent, according to valuations in books of rates, compiled somewhat arbitrarily, and not always corresponding with the real market value of the article The fixed duty, leviable under Act XIV, 1843, was determined so as to represent a fair average of what was formerly demanded The trade in sugar is chiefly by export, the countries lying north and east of the Ganges being those which produce sugar in abundance for the whole of Upper India The only sugar which there is any temptation to import, is that which was produced in our own territory, but carried to Bickaneer and other countries west of the line, there to be refined, and brought back again in the form of sugar-candy. Cashmeer produces no sugar, but its refined sugars are celebrated as an article of luxury throughout Central Asia Under Act XXXII, 1836, sugar cannot be legally imported from foreign territories into the British provinces, and it remains prohibited under Act XIV, 1843.

* Rule V Articles brought from the southward and westward, within customs jurisdiction upon either of the above lines shall be held to be imported, save and except in the case of sugar, the produce of a British province, as prescribed hereafter in Rule XXXVII Articles brought from the northward and eastward, within customs' jurisdiction upon any of the above lines, shall be held to be exported

Appendix, No 18

1843. In order to prevent the prohibition having further operation than was intended, in consequence of the arbitrary meaning attached to the words import and export, with reference to goods passing the frontier line, the 37th of the rules of 10th February 1844, provides, "that sugar, the produce of British territory, covered by a certificate of origin prescribed by Sec III, Act XXXII, 1836, if brought across the line from British territory, lying on the south and west of the line, shall not be held prohibited" But it is believed that this privilege is rarely, if ever, claimed.

27 The provisions for the levy of the duty on sugar are very sufficient, and little, if any, passes without payment.

Miscellaneous

28 The miscellaneous articles paying duty prior to 1st September 1843, and the amount levied under each head for a series of years, will be found in the Schedule, which forms a separate number in this packet. The total will not correspond with the entry in the abstract statement of paragraph 16, because the return has been compiled from the custom-house, and not from the accountant's records, and because many items of receipt, such as fees on rowannahs, confiscations, fines, &c, are comprised in the latter, and not in the former

29 The public have been greatly relieved by the remission of the duty on these numerous articles, many of which were in constant use, and exposed the possessors to much vexation The abolition of the duty has also tended greatly to increase the efficiency of the preventive establishment The captors are always held entitled to a large portion of the value of seizures made by them, hence their attention was formerly directed, and their activity stimulated to make seizures of the more valuable articles, which yielded a small revenue to Government, and which could be easily concealed, such as gold thread, musk, &c., whilst they had small inducement to seize the bulky and highly taxed articles, such as salt, &c, which brought a large revenue to Government, now the whole efforts of every person on the establishment are bent upon the proper regulation of the trade in the three simple articles of salt, sugar, and cotton

30 There is every reason to hope that the present system of customs collections introduced under Regulation XIV of 1843, will be less oppressive to the people and injurious to trade than the former system, and that it will yield a larger revenue to the State.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Honourable the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, in the Separate Revenue Department, dated 22 May 1844

The following letter is written to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of India

(No 1,950)

From J Thornton, Esq, Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, to T R Davidson, Esq, Officiating Secretary to the Government of India, dated 22 May 1844.

Sir,

I am directed to request that you will lay before the Right honourable the Governor-general in Council the accompanying statements showing the customs collections in these provinces under Act XIV, 1843, during 1843-44, as contrasted with the collections from the corresponding tract of country in the preceding year The two statements have been furnished demi-officially by the collectors of the Delhi and Mirzapoor divisions, and have been thrown together in this office

2 It is hoped that the increase of 7½ lacs will be considered satisfactory, especially when it is remembered that the new Act only came into operation on 1st September 1843, and that some sacrifice of revenue took place before the present preventive system was completely organized Considerable loss is known to have occurred in the space between Delhi and Horal, by the hasty reduction of an establishment maintained to watch the Noh and Sooltanpoor Works

3 The Lieutenant-governor feels it incumbent upon him to notice that this success is mainly owing to the zealous exertions of Mr G Todd, who, after completing the arrangements in the Mirzapore division, relieved Mr G H Smith of the charge of the Delhi division, and by great exertions and much exposure, whilst suffering under ill health, succeeded in organizing a very effective establishment in the Delhi division

4 Under the arrangement sanctioned by Government on March 9th last, the increased allowances due to this gentleman, as well as the full salaries assigned to the deputy collector, are not to be given till Messrs Parks and Plowden can be otherwise provided for, and a saving effected by the reduction of their salaries.

5 It would be very gratifying to the Lieutenant-governor if he were empowered by His Lordship in Council to declare the full salaries, as in the margin, to be granted from the 1st instant, in acknowledgment of the services rendered by the officers in this department The constant vigilance and exertion upon which the maintenance of this branch of the revenue so materially depends, deserves all the encouragement which can fairly be given it, without violating any great principle, or materially trenching on the revenue of the Government.

Appendix, No. 18.

(No 842) (No 59)

Sir, Fort William, 31 May 1844

ADVERTING to your letter to the address of Mr Secretary Maddock (No 4), dated 3 January 1843, and to your subsequent communication to Mr. Secretary Hamilton (No 146), dated 18 May 1843, together with the correspondence that has taken place on the subject of the abolition of the collection of custom duties in the Jaloun territories, I am directed by the Governor-general in Council to convey to you the following observations

It appears that in the year 1842 the gross receipts on account of customs duties amounted to Rs 16,817 14 0, and that the cost of establishments was Rs 1,920, leaving a net collection to the extent of only Rs. 14,897 14 0

This collection was made in accordance with a set of tables which show that 57 articles of commerce and consumption are liable to petty duties at numerous chowkies and outposts; some scores of custom-house posts are stated to be scattered over the face of the district, and on every article a different rate of duty is levied at every one of these posts, while, to increase the vexation, payment at one post does not exempt goods from contribution at any other they may have to pass Moreover, the rate demandable on each article not only varies at different posts, but at the same post, according as the merchant is a resident in the vicinity of the post in which he deals or not Thanee, Beparee, and Baitoo rates being levied as the dealers are resident, non-resident, or the goods are in transit only

The Governor-general in Council is of opinion that the inconsiderable net receipt from these customs is not sufficient to justify the Government in permitting the continuance of a system so destructive to trade, and vexatious to the people who suffer from its infliction. His Lordship does not observe that any private rights will be invaded by the abolition of an impost at once oppressive and unprofitable, and he is content on the part of the Government to sacrifice revenue drawn from so harassing a source, in the confident expectation that its relinquishments will add to the general prosperity of the district

The Governor-general in Council is accordingly pleased to resolve that the custom duties in the territory of Jalaun shall be abolished, and he directs me to request that you will take measures for carrying this resolution into early effect, and that you will report the result for the information of the Government

The customs tables are herewith returned to you, copy having been kept for record

EXTRACT Letter from Secretary to the Government of India to the Agent Governor-General for Affairs of Sindiah's Dominions, dated Fort William, 19 June 1844.

2 THE Governor-general in Council is of opinion that not only should the vexatious exactions of "Dhurawna" and "Punjote" be immediately abolished, but that as soon as the existing contracts, which it may be necessary to respect, expire, every duty on customs in Huchwahagar, Bhanderee, &c., should be done away with, as has been the case in Jalaun, but his Honor in Council observes it will be hardly just to make our liberality in giving up the customs' duties chargeable to Sindiah's government, and that until the revenues of the transferred districts shall, as a result of our better administration, exceed the sum at which they were valued at the time of transfer by 10,000 rupees, the apparent average receipts by Sindiah on account of these duties, credit for that sum should be given by us in the Gwalior account

Resolution,—

THE Governor-general in Council has had under his consideration the duties now levied upon the Saugor frontier, and has come to the conclusion that it would be desirable to reduce very much the number of articles upon which these duties are levied, and even to levy a duty upon one article alone, that of salt, provided the Government could enter into an arrangement with the states of Ruvah, Myheer, and Bijeeragogurh, whereby all duties upon the transit of merchandise might be abolished also in their territories

The statement furnished by the agent to the Governor general in the Saugor and Nerbudda territories, shows the rate of duty collected upon each article in those territories, but does not exhibit the amount of duty collected in any of them, it is therefore desirable that this information should be obtained from the agent

The duty upon salt in the Saugor territories is low, being only 4 annas per maund on importation and 2 annas on exportation; the Revenue Board have suggested that the duty should be raised to 12 annas per maund, and levied only upon importation, and in this the Governor-general in Council is disposed to acquiesce

From the receipts arising from this increased duty on salt, collected by a strengthened establishment, his Lordship in Council would be prepared to make ample compensation to the states of Ruyah, Myheer, and Bijeeragogurh, for the loss sustained by them through the abolition of all transit duties in their respective territories

His Lordship in Council observes that it must be obvious to the chief of those states that their subjects would benefit not only by the free introduction into their territories from Saugor of all articles now taxed, except salt, but that they would also benefit by the more extensive trade which would eventually pass through their territories when the trade should be thus relieved from all burthen

The Governor-general in Council directs that the agent will first endeavour to ascertain, or to form some estimate approximating to correctness, of the amount of transit duties received by the three states respectively, and report the result of his inquiries to the Government

The Governor-general in Council will then determine what specific terms should be proposed to the chiefs of the three states respectively, which terms would consist either of the offer of a fixed payment, rather more than equivalent to their annual receipts from transit duties on an average of the last ten years, or of the offer to pay over annually to each a proportion to be mutually agreed upon of the future net annual receipts from the proposed increase tax on salt

(A C)

I HAD heard that it was in your Lordship's contemplation to extend the British boundary on the Abohur frontier to the bank of the river Ghara, and I have now learnt with pleasure from Mr. R N C. Hamilton the same in detail fully and particularly, and consider it highly consistent with true friendship to assist your Lordship in this matter With this view, therefore, I have proposed that my officers, in concert with the British functionaries, shall commence a line of boundary from the bank of the river Ghara, between the villages of Gunjbuksh, Chistee, and Ghonsa Salmi Ka, situated in the Wuttoo district, and drawing it southward along the existing boundary, separating those two villages and passing it two English miles east of Jugul, will end it at, and join it to present northern boundary of the Mohur district, and all the lands and villages "Sindh and Chool," populated or deserted, lying to the east of the line so drawn, shall belong to the British Government, and those populated populated or unpopulated of Choolistan and Sindh, lying to the west of the aforesaid line, shall belong to me as heretofore The particulars are these; at this time the land situated to the east and north-east of the above-mentioned line, i e between it and the Mundote frontier, and included within the present northern boundary of Aboheer and the river Ghara, together with all the villages therein, I hereby, by this my writing, for ever relinquish as a free gift to the possession and dominion of the British Government I trust that this will be agreeable to your Lordship, and cause you satisfaction, tending thereby to strengthen more the foundation of friendship. Hoping that your Lordship will ever consider me anxious to hear regarding your good health, I pray you will continue to write to me regarding the same

From the "Calcutta Gazette," Wednesday, 1 November 1843.

Notification.—Fort William, Foreign Department, 28 October 1843.

The Right honourable the Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following engagement lately entered into with the Nawaub of Bhawulpore, regarding the levy of duties on merchandise in transit through that state.

Regarding the levy of duties on merchandise in transit through the Bhawulpore state, (excepting the merchants and mercantile firms, the proper subjects of the Bhawulpore state), the following Articles have been agreed to between the British and the Bhawulpore Governments —

On boats freighted with merchandise going up or down the river through the Bhawulpore country, the duties shall be only one-half of the present fixed rates.

Secondly On merchandise passing in any direction by land, no other duties shall be levied than the following, viz

| | Rs. | a. | p. |
|---|---|---|---|
| On a hackery laden with merchandise - - - - - | 2 | – | – |
| On a camel laden with merchandise - - - - - - - | 1 | – | – |
| On a mule, pony, bullock, or an ass laden with merchandise - - | – | 8 | – |

Thirdly Any merchant having with him a passport or "rawannah" according to the form annexed to this agreement shall pass safe, unmolested, and without search by the local officers on the road

Fourthly If any merchant buy or sell the merchandise at any place or town on the road, he will have to pay there the usual local duties.

Fifthly As there exists no pukka wells and caravansaries for the use of travellers on the road from Bhawulpore to Sirsa, the Bhawulpore government will, throughout its jurisdiction at every stage, prepare pukka wells and caravansaries for the comfort of travellers, as well as a road along that route, and keep it in order by taking constant care to keep it in repair.

Sixthly This agreement has been drawn up in accordance with the friendship subsisting between the two Governments, and in order that merchants may satisfactorily and in full confidence engage in the trade

Act No VI. of 1844

Passed by the Right honourable the Governor-General of India in Council on the 16th March 1844

An Act for abolishing the levy of Transit or Inland Customs Duties, for revising the Duties on Imports and Exports by Sea, and for determining the Price at which Salt shall be sold for Home Consumption within the Territories subject to the Government of Fort St. George Rescinding all regulations of the Madras Code imposing inland, transit, and town duties.

It is hereby enacted, that from the first day of April 1844, such parts of Regulation X of 1803, Regulation I of 1812, Regulation III of 1812, Regulation VI of 1812, and Regulation III of 1821, of the Madras Code, and all such parts of any regulations of the said code, as prescribe the levy of transit or inland customs duties at any town or place within the limits of the Presidency of Fort St. George, shall be repealed

Rescinding regulations of the Madras Code imposing sea customs duties, with certain exceptions

2 And it is hereby enacted, that Regulation IX of 1803, with exception of sections 55 to 70, both inclusive, Regulation XI, 1803, Regulation XIV of 1808, Regulation XV of 1808, with exception of section 5, Regulation II of 1812, with exception of sections 15 and 17, Regulation IV of 1812, and such parts of Regulation I of 1813, of the same code, as relate to the rates of duty and drawback on spirituous liquors imported or exported by sea, also Regulation II. of 1816, Regulation II of 1818, Regulation III of 1818, Regulation IV. of 1819, and Regulation VII. of 1819, together with the Schedules appended thereunto, excepting in so far as any of these regulations rescind any former regulations either in part or in whole of the Madras Code, and likewise the provisions of any kind contained in the foregoing or any other regulations of the Madras Code for fixing the amount of duty to be levied on goods imported or exported by sea, at any place within the limits of the Presidency of Fort St George, or the drawback payable on the same, shall be repealed

Proviso.

3 Provided always, that nothing contained in the two preceding sections of this Act shall be construed to prevent the levy of any municipal tax, or of any toll on any bridge, road, canal, pier or causeway, for repair and maintenance of the same; or of any fee for the erection and maintenance of lighthouses

Duties to be levied on goods imported by sea into the Presidency of Fort St George.

4 And it is hereby enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied on goods imported by sea into any place within the territories subordinate to the Government of the Presidency of Fort St George, after the said first day of April 1844, according to the rates specified in Schedule (A) annexed to this Act, with the exceptions specified therein, and the Schedule with the notes attached thereto, shall be taken to be a part of this Act.

Duties to be levied on goods exported by sea from the Presidency of Fort St George

5 And it is hereby further enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied upon country goods exported by sea from any ports of the Presidency of Fort St George after the said first day of April 1844, according to the rates specified in Schedule (B) annexed to this Act, with the exceptions therein specified, and the said Schedule, with the notes attached thereto, shall also be taken to be a part of this Act.

Duties to be levied on goods passing by land into or out of foreign European settlements, adjacent to the Presidency of Fort St George.

6 And it is hereby enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied on goods passing by land into or out of foreign European settlements, situated on the line of coast within the limits of the Presidency of Fort St George, at the rates prescribed in the Schedules of this Act for goods imported or exported on foreign bottoms at any British port in that presidency.

The Governor in Council may declare by notice in the "Gazette," the territory of native

7 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort St George, to declare by notice to be published in the Gazette of that presidency, that the territory of any native chief, not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts chiefs, beyond the jurisdiction of the courts, to be foreign and civil authorities of that presidency, shall be deemed to be foreign territory, and to declare goods passing into or out of such territory liable either to the duty fixed for British or for foreign bottoms, as the said Governor in Council may think fit.

Customs chokees may be established for the levy of duties on goods passing into or out of foreign territory

Powers of officers at such chokees

Goods not to be allowed to pass across the frontier line without a certificate of the duty thereon having been paid in full

8 And it is hereby enacted, that for the levy of duties of customs as above provided on goods exported by land to, or imported by land from, such foreign territories, customs chokees may be established at such places as may be determined by the said Governor in Council, and every officer at every such chokee shall have power to detain goods passing into or out of any such foreign territory, and to examine and ascertain the quantities and kinds thereof, and such goods shall not be allowed to pass across the frontier line out of or into the territory of the East India Company, until the owner or person in charge thereof shall produce and deliver a certificate showing that the customs duty leviable thereupon has been paid in full

The Governor in Council may appoint officers to collect duties and to grant certificates of payments

If goods be found not to correspond with certificate, the difference to be noted on the face of the certificate, and if the duty have not been duly paid, the goods to be detained until a further certificate be produced

9 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council to appoint such officers as he may think fit to receive money on account of customs duties, and grant certificates of the payment thereof, and that such a certificate being delivered to any chokee officer shall entitle goods to cross the frontier into or out of the East India Company's territories, provided that the goods correspond in description with the specification thereof contained in such certificate, and that the certificate show the entire amount of duty leviable on those goods to have been duly paid, and if upon examination the goods brought to any chokee be found not to correspond with the specification entered in the certificate presented with the same, the difference shall be noted on the face of the certificate, and if the payment of duty certified therein shall not cover the entire amount of duty leviable on the goods, as ascertained at such examination, the goods shall be detained until a further certificate for the difference shall be produced.

The appointments of officers to receive customs duties on the frontier to be notified in the official Gazette

Officers so appointed bound to grant certificates on receipt of the proper duty

10 And it is hereby enacted, that the said Governor in Council shall give public notice in the official Gazette of the Presidency of Fort St George of the appointment of every officer appointed to receive customs duties on goods crossing the land frontier of the said foreign territories, and the officers so appointed shall, on receipt of money tendered as customs duty, be bound to give to any merchant or other person applying for the same, a certificate of payment, and to enter therein the specification of goods, with the values and description thereof, according to the statement furnished by the person so applying, provided only that the proper duty leviable thereupon, according to the descriptions and values stated, be covered by the payment made

Certificates not to bear date more than 30 days before the arrival of the goods

Proviso

11 And it is hereby enacted, that no certificate shall be received at any chokee that shall bear date more than 30 days before the date when the goods arrive at the chokee. Provided, however, that any person who has taken out a certificate from any authorised receiver of customs duties, shall at any time within the said period of 30 days, on satisfying such receiver that such certificate has not been used, and on delivering up the original, be entitled to receive a renewed certificate, with a fresh date, without further payment of duty

The Governor in Council to notify in official Gazette by what routes goods may cross the land frontier

After which goods brought by other routes to be liable to detention or confiscation.

12 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council to prescribe, by public notice in the official Gazette of the Presidency of Fort St George, by what routes goods shall be allowed to pass into or out of any such foreign territory as is described in Sections 6 and 7 of this Act, and after such notice shall be given, goods which may be brought to any chokee established on other routes or passes than those so prescribed shall, if provided with a certificate, be sent back; and if not provided with a certificate shall be detained, and shall be liable to confiscation by the collector of customs, unless the person in charge thereof shall be able to satisfy the said collector that his carrying them by that route was from ignorance or accident.

Goods crossing frontier clandestinely to be confiscated

13 And it is hereby enacted, that goods which may be passed, or which an attempt may be made to pass across any frontier guarded by chokees, between sunset and sunrise, or in a clandestine manner, shall be seized and confiscated.

Penalty for officer permitting goods to cross the frontier without certificate, or by prohibited route

14 And it is hereby enacted, that any chokee officer who shall permit goods to pass across the frontier when not covered by a sufficient certificate, or who shall permit goods to pass by any prohibited route, shall be liable, on conviction before the collector of customs, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, and to a fine not exceeding 500 rupees, commutable, if not paid, to imprisonment for a further period of six months

Penalty for a chokee officer needlessly and vexatiously injuring goods, or wrongfully detaining them

15 And it is hereby enacted, that if any chokee officer shall needlessly and vexatiously injure goods under the pretence of examination, or in the course of his examination, or shall wrongfully detain goods for which there shall be produced a sufficient certificate, such officer shall, on conviction before the collector of customs, or before any magistrate or joint magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, and to fine not exceeding 500 rupees, commutable, if not paid, to imprisonment for a further period of six months

Goods imported by sea from foreign European settlements or native States declared foreign, to be liable to duties leviable on foreign bottoms.

16 And it is hereby enacted, that all goods imported by sea into any port of the Presidency of Fort St. George from any foreign European settlement in India, or from any native state, the inland trade of which has been declared by the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort St. George, under section 7 of this Act, to be subject to the duties levied on foreign bottoms, shall be liable to the same duties as are imposed by Schedule (A.) on imports on foreign bottoms.

17. And it is hereby enacted, that no goods whatsoever, entered in either of the Schedules of this Act as liable to duty, shall be exempted from the payment of such duty, or of any part thereof, except under special order from the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort St George Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the collector of customs, or other officer in charge of a custom-house, to pass free of duty any baggage in actual use at his discretion, and if any person shall apply to have goods passed as such baggage, the collector acting under the orders of the Government shall determine whether they be baggage in actual use, or goods subject to duty under the provisions of this Act

No dutiable goods entered in either of the schedules of this Act to be exempted, unless under special order of Government

Proviso

18 Provided always, that when goods are imported at any port of the Presidency of Fort St George from any other port in that presidency, under certificate that the export duty specified in Schedule (B ) has been duly paid thereon, or that there has been a re-export, and that the import duty specified in Schedule (A ) has been duly paid, the said goods shall be admitted to free entry

Proviso under which goods may be imported duty free from any other Madras port

19 Provided also, that when duties of customs shall have been paid on any goods at any port in any part of the territories of the East India Company, not subject to the Presidency of Fort St George, and such goods shall subsequently be imported at any port of the Presidency of Fort St George, credit shall be given at such last-mentioned port for the sum that may be proved by the production of due certificates to have been so paid

Further proviso under which credit may be given at any Madras port for duties paid at any other British Indian port

20 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort St George, from time to time, by notice in the official Gazette of that presidency, to fix a value for any article, or number of articles, liable to ad valorem duty, and the value so fixed for such articles shall, till altered by a similar notice, be taken to be the value of such articles for the purpose of levying duty on the same

The Governor in Council to notify in the official Gazette, the valuation of articles liable to ad valorem duty

21 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods liable to duty, for which a value has not been fixed by such a notice as is above directed, or for which a fixed duty has not been declared by the Schedules annexed to this Act, are brought to any custom-house in the Presidency of Fort St. George, for the purpose of being passed for importation or exportation, the duty leviable on such goods shall be levied ad valorem, that is to say, according to the market value of such goods at the place and time of importation or exportation, as the case may be

When no value has been fixed or declared, duty to be levied according to the market value

22 And it is hereby enacted, that the market value for assessment of duties on ad valorem goods shall be declared by the owner, consignee, or exporter, or by the agent or factor for any of these respectively, upon the face of the application, to be given in by him in writing for the passing of the goods through the custom-house, and the value so declared shall include the packages or materials in which the goods are contained, and the application shall truly set forth the name of the ship in which the goods have been imported or are to be exported, the name of the master of the said ship, the colours under which the said ship sails, the number, description, marks, and contents of the packages, and the country in which the goods were produced.

Goods remaining on board after period allowed, to be landed and warehoused by order of collector

Customs collector, with consent of master of vessel, may cause any packages to be deposited in the Government warehouses

The collector empowered to sell goods if not cleared from custom-house within period specified

47 And it is hereby enacted, that when there shall be no customs officer sent aboard vessels discharging cargo, it shall be lawful for the collector of customs to fix a period, not being less than twenty days, for the discharge thereof and clearance of the vessel inwards, and if any goods remain on board after the time so fixed, or after the time allowed in the last preceding section of this Act, the collector may order the same to be landed and warehoused for the security of the duties chargeable thereon, and of any freight and primage and other demands that may be due thereon, giving his receipt to the master for the same: Provided always, that in all cases it shall be lawful for the collector or other officer in charge of the custom-house, with the consent of master of the vessel, to cause any packages to be brought on shore and to be deposited in the Government warehouses for the security of the duties and charges thereon, although twenty days may not have expired from the entry of such vessel, and in case any goods brought to land from any vessel be not claimed and cleared from the custom-house within three months from the date of entry of the ship in which such goods were imported, it shall be competent to the collector to sell the same on account of the duties and other charges due thereon, and the balance remaining after deducting the said duties and charges shall be held in deposit and paid to the owner on application

Limited period allowed for putting export cargo on board of any vessel.

48 And it is hereby enacted, that when a customs officer shall be sent on board of any vessel discharging cargo a further period of fifteen days, Sundays and holidays excluded, beyond the twenty days above specified, shall be allowed for putting on board export cargo, if the vessel shall not exceed 600 tons burthen, and twenty days if it exceed that burthen, when the lading and unlading thereof shall be continuous, and the master or commander shall in such case not be charged with the wages and expenses of the customs officer on board until after the expiration of such additional period and if a vessel having discharged its import cargo shall be laid up, the customs officer on board shall certify that no goods remain on board except necessary stores and articles for use, and when a vessel so laid up shall be entered at the custom-house for receipt of export cargo a customs officer shall be sent on board, and if the said last-mentioned officer shall certify that no goods are on board, except as above excepted, twenty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, as above, shall be allowed from the date of such certificate for the lading outwards of a vessel not exceeding 600 tons, and thirty days for vessels exceeding that burthen, after which periods respectively the master shall be charged with the wages and expenses of the customs officer on board to the date of the vessel's sailing from the port.

Penalty for putting goods on board a vessel after customs officer's removal therefrom, and before a customs officer have again been placed thereon

49 And it is hereby enacted, that when upon application from the master of any vessel the customs officer shall be removed from on board thereof under the provisions to that effect contained in the last preceding section of this Act, if the master of such vessel shall before a customs officer have again been placed in such vessel put on board of such vessel, or cause, or suffer to be put on board of such vessel, any goods whatever, such master shall be punished with a fine not exceeding 1,000 rupees, and the goods shall be liable to be re-landed for examination at the expense of the shippers, upon requisition to that effect from the collector of customs

A port clearance to be granted to the master of every vessel on certificate of all public demands against him having been satisfied

50 And it is hereby enacted, that a port clearance shall be granted by the collector of customs, or other authorised officer, to the master or commander of every vessel clearing out from the ports of the Presidency of Fort St George, provided such master or commander shall have complied with the terms prescribed by this Act, and with the rules of the port concerned, and shall produce a certificate from the proper officer or officers of all port charges and public demands against him, of whatever nature, having been duly paid and discharged

Rules for levying duty on goods passed through custom house for shipment after grant of port clearance

51 And it is hereby enacted, that upon any goods liable to duty that may be passed through the custom-house for shipment, the application for which shall be presented after port clearance shall have been taken out, double of the prescribed duty shall in all cases be levied, and if the goods be free or have already paid import duty, or have been imported free under certificate, five per cent upon the market value shall be levied thereon, or if the same be imported goods entitled to drawback, the drawback shall be forfeited, but no separate duty shall be levied on drawback goods

52 And it is hereby enacted, that when a vessel having cleared out from any port shall put back from stress of weather, or it shall for any damage, or from other cause, be necessary that the cargo of a vessel that has cleared out shall be unshipped or re-landed, a customs officer shall be sent to watch the vessel and take charge of the cargo during such re-landing or removal from on board, and the goods on board such vessel shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported free of duty by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export, unless the goods shall be lodged in such place as shall be allowed by the collector of customs, and shall remain while on land, or while on board of any other vessel under special charge of the officers of customs until the time of re export, and all charges attending such custody shall be borne by the exporter, provided, however, that in all cases of return to port after port clearance on account of damage or for stress of weather, it shall be lawful for the owner, or for the master to enter the vessel and land the cargo under the rules for the importation of goods, and the export duty shall in that case be refunded, and the amount paid in drawback be reclaimed, and if goods on account of which drawback has been paid be not found on board the vessel, the master shall be liable to a fine not exceeding the entire value thereof, unless he account for them to the satisfaction of the collector of customs

Proviso under which the cargo may be landed as imported goods, and the export duty refunded.

Penalty for a master putting back into port without goods on which drawback has been allowed

53 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods shall be relanded before the lading of any vessel is complete, and before port clearance has been granted, the duty levied upon such goods shall be returned to the exporter, but no refund shall be made of duty paid on the export of any goods after port clearance shall have been granted for the vessel on which the goods were exported, unless the vessel shall have put back for stress of weather or for damage, and the goods shall have been relanded under the rule contained in the last preceding section of this Act

Duty on goods relanded before the landing is complete to be refunded but not after grant of port clearance

Unless the vessel have put back for stress of weather or damage.

54 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council to establish rules for the anchoring of the coasting and country craft of the British territories, for the delivery of manifests of the cargo of such vessels, and for the landing of goods therefrom, and shipping of goods thereon, and that whoever being in charge of any such craft shall knowingly contravene any such rule, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding 100 rupees for each offence

Penalty on coasting and country craft for contravening such rules as Governor in Council may lay down for their regulation

55. And it is hereby enacted, that pattamars, dhonies, and other small craft from the Maldive or Laccadive Islands, or from the native ports of Kattywar and Cutch, and of the Travancore and Cochin States, shall be treated in the ports of the Presidency of Fort St George like the coasting craft of the British territory, provided that they conform to such special regulations as to the place of anchoring and mode of landing and shipping goods, as may be made by the Governor in Council for such vessels in the several ports of the Presidency of Fort St. George

Specification of native craft to be treated like coasting craft of the British territories

56 And it is hereby enacted, that no drawback shall be allowed on goods shipped on such native craft as are described in the last preceding section of this Act.

No drawback allowed on goods shipped on such native craft

57 And it is hereby enacted, that goods exported in the same vessels if manifested for re-export, shall not be subject to import or export duty, and if any goods brought to any port in any vessel be transhipped in such port, they shall in all cases be subject to the same duty as if they had been landed and passed through the custom-house for re-exportation in the vessel into which they may be transhipped

Goods re exported in the same vessel not subject to duty, duty to be levied on transhipped goods as if they had been landed and re-exported

58 And it is hereby enacted, that no transhipment shall be made of any goods except under special order in writing from the collector of customs of the port, and that goods transhipped or attempted to be transhipped without such order shall be liable to confiscation

Goods to be liable to confiscation if transhipped without special license from collector.

59 And it is hereby enacted, that an officer of customs shall in all cases be deputed to superintend the removal of goods from vessel to vessel

Customs officer to superintend transhipment

60 And it is hereby enacted, that in all cases in which under this Act goods are liable to confiscation, the collector of customs of the place where those goods may be shall be competent to adjudge such confiscation

The collector competent to adjudge confiscation.

61 And it is hereby enacted, that if any person in charge of a vessel shall have become liable to any fine on account of any act or omission relating to customs, the collector of customs shall be competent, subject to the orders of the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort St. George, to refuse port clearance to such vessel until the fine shall be discharged

The collector may exact payment of fines before granting port clearance.

62 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for any collector of customs, or other officer who may be authorised to adjudicate customs cases, if he shall decide that a seizure of goods made under the authority of this Act was vexatious and unnecessary, to adjudge damages to be paid to the proprietor by the customs officer who made such vexatious seizure, besides ordering the immediate release of the goods, and if the proprietor accept such damages, no action shall thereafter lie against the officer of customs in any court of justice on account of such seizure and if such adjudicating officer shall decide that the seizure was warranted, but shall deem that the penalty of confiscation is unduly severe, it shall be lawful for him to mitigate the same to the extent of the levy of double duty and if the said officer shall adjudge confiscation, it shall further be lawful for him to order that from the proceeds of the sale of the goods, a proportion not exceeding one-half shall be distributed in rewards

Empowering collectors of customs to decide upon cases of seizure and to adjudge damages.

To mitigate penalty of confiscation to the extent of the levy of double duty And to distribute part proceeds of sale of confiscated goods in rewards among seizing officers.

amongst such officers as he shall deem entitled thereto, and in such proportion as he may direct to each respectively

All officers of customs amenable to civil courts

Proviso

63 And it is hereby enacted, that all officers of customs shall as heretofore be amenable to the civil courts of the Presidency of Fort St George by action for damages on account of any executive acts done in their official capacity at the suit of the parties injured by such acts Provided, however, that no suit shall lie against a collector of customs or other officer for any judicial award in a matter of customs passed under the preceding section of this Act

Penalty for obstructing customs officers in the exercise of their powers

64 And it is hereby enacted, that whoever intentionally obstructs any officer in the exercise of any powers given by this Act to such officer, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or fine not exceeding 1,000 rupees, or both.

Penalty for customs officer receiving consideration for doing or forbearing any official act

65 And it is hereby enacted, that whoever, being an officer appointed under the authority of this Act, shall accept, or obtain, or attempt to obtain from any person any property as a consideration for doing or forbearing to do any official act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or fine, or both.

Penalty for a customs officer concerned in defrauding the customs revenue

66 And it is hereby enacted, that whoever, being an officer appointed under the authority of this Act, practises or attempts to practise any fraud for the purpose of injuring the customs revenue, or abets or connives at any such fraud, or at any attempt to practise any such fraud, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or fine, or both

Penalty for exacting customs or duties without authority as a customs officer

67. And it is hereby enacted, that whoever, not being an officer appointed under this Act, or authorised by any Regulation to collect customs or duties shall exact customs or duties of any denomination on any pretence whatsoever, whether as principal or agent, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or fine, or both, and furthermore shall be liable for such damages as may be obtained against him, on the suit of the party injured, by action in any of the civil courts of the Presidency of Fort St George

The Governor in Council may transfer the powers of collector of customs to any other officer, and may make rules and appoint officers to carry this Act into effect, and fix rates of wharfage and rent

68 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of Fort St George, by an Order in Council, to transfer any of the powers given to a collector of customs by this Act to any other functionary, and to make any rules consistent with law for the carrying of this Act into effect, and to establish such wharves, and appoint such officers, as he shall think fit, and to fix rates of wharfage, and of rent to be paid for goods deposited or suffered to lie in the godowns of the custom-house

ACT No I. of 1838

Passed by the Honourable the President of the Council of India in Council, on the 3rd January 1838

1 It is hereby enacted, that from the 1st February 1838, all Regulations of the Bombay Code passed before the year 1827, and now in force, with the exception of Sections I, II and III, Regulation VI, 1799, and of Clause 2, Section VII, Regulation IX, 1800, and of Sections XIV, XVII, XX, XXI and XXV., Regulation I of 1805, and of the whole of Regulations II, 1810, and VI, 1814, shall be repealed.

2 And it is hereby enacted, that Chapters I., II., IV, VI, VIII and IX. of Regulation XX, 1827, of the said Code, together with the Appendices A, B, C, E, H, I, J, K, of that regulation, also Regulation II, 1831, Regulation XIII, 1831, Regulation I, 1832, Regulation IV, 1833, and Regulation IV, 1834, of the said Code, and all such parts of any Regulations of the said Code as prescribe the levy of transit or inland customs duties, or as require the payment of any fee whatever on account of any vessel which may enter any port in the territories subject to the Bombay Presidency, and likewise the provisions of any kind contained in those or in any other Regulations, for fixing the amount of duty to be levied on goods imported or exported by sea at any place within the limits of the Bombay Presidency, or the drawback payable on the same, shall be repealed And it is further enacted, that Act No II. of 1836 shall likewise be repealed, except in so far as it repeals any Regulation of the Bombay Code

3 Provided always, that nothing contained in the two preceding sections of this Act shall be construed to prevent the levy of any town duty, or of any municipal tax, or of any toll on any bridge, road, canal, or causeway, for repair and maintenance of the same, or of any fee for the erection and maintenance of lighthouses.

4 And it is hereby enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied on goods imported by sea into any place in the territories subordinate to the Government of the Presidency of Bombay, after the said 1st February next, according to the rates specified in Schedule (A.) annexed to this Act, and with the exceptions specified therein, and the said Schedule, with the notes attached thereto, shall be taken to be a part of this Act.

5 And it is hereby further enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied upon country goods exported by sea from any ports of the Bombay Presidency after the said 1st February next, according to the rates specified in Schedule (B ) annexed to this Act, with the exceptions therein specified, and the said Schedule, with the notes attached thereto, shall also be taken to be a part of this Act

6 Provided, however, that the ships of any European nation having firman privileges in the port of Surat, shall not be subject to further duties of import or export than may be prescribed by their firmans respectively, anything in the Schedules or in this Act notwithstanding

7 And it is hereby enacted, that duties of customs shall be levied on goods passing by land into or out of foreign European settlements, situated on the line of coast within the limits of the Presidency of Bombay, at the rates prescribed in the Schedules of this Act for goods imported or exported on foreign bottoms at any British port in that presidency.

8. And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay to declare, by notice to be published in the Gazette of that presidency, that the territory of any native chief, not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts and civil authorities of that presidency, shall be deemed to be foreign territory, and to declare goods passing into or out of such territory liable either to the duty fixed for British or for foreign bottoms, as the said Governor in Council may think fit

9 And it is hereby enacted, that for the levy of duties of customs as above provided on goods exported by land to, or imported by land from, such foreign territories, customs' chokees may be established at such places as may be determined by the said Governor in Council, and every officer at every such chokee shall have power to detain goods passing into or out of any such foreign territory, and to examine and ascertain the quantities and kinds thereof, and such goods shall not be allowed to pass across the frontier line out of or into the territory of the East India Company, until the owner or person in charge thereof shall produce and deliver a certificate showing that the customs duty leviable thereupon has been paid in full

10 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council to appoint such officers as he may think fit to receive money on account of customs duties, and grant certificates of the payment thereof, and that such a certificate being delivered to any chokee officer shall entitle goods to cross the frontier into or out of the East India Company's territories, provided that goods correspond in description with the specification thereof contained in such certificate, and that the certificate show the entire amount of duty leviable on those goods to have been duly paid, and if upon examination the goods brought to any chokee be found not to correspond with the specification entered in the certificate presented with the same, the difference shall be noted on the face of the certificate, and if the payment of duty certified therein shall not cover the entire amount of duty leviable on the goods as ascertained at such examination, the goods shall be detained until a further certificate for the difference shall be produced

11 And it is hereby enacted, that the said Governor in Council shall give public notice in the official Gazette of the Presidency of Bombay of the appointment of every officer appointed to receive customs duties on goods crossing the land frontier of the said foreign territories, and the officers so appointed shall on receipt of money tendered as customs duty be bound to give to any merchant or other person applying for the same a certificate of payment, and to enter therein the specification of goods, with the values and description thereof, according to the statement furnished by the person so applying, provided only that the proper duty leviable thereupon, according to the descriptions and values stated, be covered by the payment made

12 And it is hereby enacted, that no certificate shall be received at any chokee that shall bear date more than 30 days before the date when the goods arrive at the chokee: Provided, however, that any person who has taken out a certificate from any authorised receiver of customs duties, shall at any time within the said period of 30 days, on satisfying such receiver that such certificate has not been used, and on delivering up the original, be entitled to receive a renewed certificate, with a fresh date, without further payment of duty

13 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council to prescribe by public notice in the official Gazette of the Presidency of Bombay, by what

routes goods shall be allowed to pass into or out of any such foreign territory, as is described in sections 7 & 8 of this Act, and after such notice shall be given, goods which may be brought to any chokee established on other routes or passes than those so prescribed, shall, if provided with a certificate, be sent back, and if not provided with a certificate, shall be detained, and shall be liable to confiscation by the collector of customs, unless the person in charge thereof shall be able to satisfy the said collector that his carrying them by that route was from ignorance or accident

14 And it is hereby enacted, that goods which may be passed, or which an attempt may be made to pass across any frontier guarded by chokees between sunset and sunrise, or in a clandestine manner, shall be seized and confiscated

15 And it is hereby enacted, that any chokee officer who shall permit goods to pass across the frontier when not covered by a sufficient certificate, or who shall permit goods to pass by any prohibited route, shall be liable, on conviction before the collector of customs, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, and to a fine not exceeding 500 rupees, commutable, if not paid, to imprisonment for a further period of six months

16 And it is hereby enacted, that if any chokee officer shall needlessly and vexatiously injure goods under the pretence of examination, or in the course of his examination, or who shall wrongfully detain goods for which there shall be produced a sufficient certificate, such officer shall, on conviction before the collector of customs, or before any magistrate, or joint magistrate, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, and to fine not exceeding 500 rupees, commutable, if not paid, to imprisonment for a further period of six months

17 And it is hereby enacted, that all goods imported by sea into any port of the Presidency of Bombay from any foreign European settlement in India, or from any native state, the inland trade of which has been declared by the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay, under section 8 of this Regulation, to be subject to the duties levied on foreign bottoms, shall be liable to the same duties as are imposed by Schedule (A ), on imports on foreign bottoms

18 And it is hereby enacted, that no goods whatsoever entered in either of the schedules of this Act, as liable to duty, shall be exempted from the payment of such duty, or of any part thereof, except under special order from the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the collector of customs, or other officer in charge of a custom-house, to pass free of duty any baggage in actual use, at his discretion, and if any person shall apply to have goods passed as such baggage, the collector, acting under the orders of the Government, shall determine whether they be baggage in actual use, or goods subject to duty under the provisions of this Act

19 Provided always, that when goods are imported at any port of the Bombay Presidency from any other port in that presidency under certificate, that the export duty specified in Schedule (B ), has been duly paid thereon, or that there has been a re-export, and that the import duty specified in Schedule (A ), has been duly paid, the said goods shall be admitted to free entry

20 Provided also, that when duties of customs shall have been paid on any goods at any port in any part of the territories of the East India Company, not subject to the Presidency of Bombay, and when such goods shall subsequently be imported at any port of the Presidency of Bombay, credit shall be given at such last-mentioned port for the sum that may be proved by the production of due certificates to have been so paid

21 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay, from time to time, by notice in the official Gazette of that presidency, to fix a value for any article or number of articles liable to ad valorem duty, and the value so fixed for such articles shall, till altered by a similar notice, be taken to be the value of such articles for the purpose of levying duty on the same

22 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods liable to duty, for which a value has not been fixed by such a notice as is above directed, or for which a fixed duty has not been declared by the schedules annexed to this Act, are brought to any custom-house in the Presidency of Bombay, for the purpose of being passed for importation or exportation, the duty leviable on such goods shall be levied ad valorem, that is to say, according to the market value of such goods at the place and time of importation or exportation, as the case may be

23 And it is hereby enacted, that the market value for assessment of duties on ad valorem goods shall be declared by the owner, consignee or exporter, or by the agent or factor for any of these respectively, upon the face of the application to be given in by him in writing for the passing of the goods through the custom-house, and the value so declared shall include the packages or materials in which the goods are contained, and the application shall truly set forth the name of the ship in which the goods have been imported or are to be exported, the name of the master of the said ship, the colours under which the said ship sails, the number, description, marks, and contents of the packages, and the country in which the goods were produced.

24 And it is hereby enacted, that every such declaration, when duly signed, shall be submitted to the officer of customs appointed to appraise goods at the custom-house, and if it shall appear to him that the same is correct, he shall countersign it as admitted, but if any part, or the whole of the goods shall seem to him to be undervalued in such declaration, he shall report the same to the collector of customs, who shall have power to take the goods, or any part thereof, as purchased for the Government at the price so declared; and whenever the collector of customs shall so take goods for the Government, payment thereof shall be made to the consignee or importer, if the goods be imported goods, within fifteen days from the date of the declaration, the amount of import duty leviable thereon being first deducted, and if the goods be intended for exportation, the entire value as declared shall be paid without deduction on account of customs duty

25 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay to declare by public notice in the official Gazette of that presidency, what places within the same shall be ports for the landing and shipment of merchandise, and any goods that may be landed, or which an attempt may be made to land, at any other port than such as shall be so declared, shall be seized and confiscated

26 And it is hereby enacted, that when any vessel shall arrive in any port of the presidency of Bombay, the master shall deliver a true manifest of the cargo on board, made out according to the form annexed to this Act, and marked (C), to the first person duly empowered to receive such manifest that may come on board, and if no such person shall have come on board before the anchor of the said vessel is dropped, then the manifest shall be forwarded to land on board of the first boat that leaves the vessel after dropping anchor, and if the port be up a river, or at a distance from the land first made, then it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council, by an order published in the official Gazette of the presidency, to fix a place in any such river or port, beyond which place it shall not be lawful for any inward bound vessel, except such country craft as are described in Sections 51 and 52 of this Act, to pass until the master shall have forwarded in such manner as may be ordered by the said Governor in Council such a manifest as is required by this Act

27 And it is hereby enacted, that if the manifest so delivered by the master shall not contain a full and true specification of all the goods imported in the vessel, the said master shall be liable to a fine of 1,000 rupees, and any goods or packages that may be found on board in excess of the manifest so delivered, or differing in quality or kind, or in marks and numbers, from the specification contained therein, shall be liable to be seized by any customs' officer and confiscated, or to be charged with such increased duties as may be determined by the collector of customs under the orders of Government.

28 And it is hereby enacted, that if any inward-bound vessel shall remain outside or below the place that may be fixed by the said Governor in Council for the first delivery of manifests, the master shall deliver a manifest as hereinbefore prescribed to the first person duly empowered to receive such manifest that may come on board, and if any vessel entering a port for which there is a custom-house established, shall lie at anchor therein for the space of twenty-four hours, the master whereof shall refuse to deliver the said manifest in the manner above prescribed, he shall for such refusal be liable to fine not exceeding 1,000 rupees, and no entry or port clearance shall be given for such vessel until the fine is paid

29 And it is hereby enacted, that no vessel shall be allowed to break bulk until a manifest as required by this Act, and another copy thereof to be presented at the time of applying for entry inwards, if so required by the collector of customs, shall have been received by the said collector, nor until order shall have been given by the said collector for the discharge of the cargo, and that the said collector may further refuse to give such order if he shall see fit until any port clearances, cockets, or other papers, known to be granted at the places from which the vessel is stated to have come, shall likewise be delivered to him

30 And it is hereby enacted, that no goods shall be allowed to leave any vessel or to be put on board thereof until entry of the vessel shall have been duly made in the custom-house of the port, and until order shall have been given for discharge of the cargo thereof as above provided, and it shall be the duty of every customs officer to seize as contraband any goods which have been removed or put on board of any vessel in contravention of the above provision, or which any attempt shall have been made to remove from, or to put on board of, any vessel in contravention of the above provision. And after entry of the vessel at the custom-house in due form, such part of the cargo as may not be declared for re-exportation in the same vessel shall be sent to land, and export cargo shall be laden on board according to the forms and rules that may be prescribed for the port by this Act, or by order of the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay, and if an attempt be made to land or put on board goods or merchandise in contravention of the forms and rules so prescribed, the goods shall be liable to seizure and confiscation.

31 And it is hereby enacted, that if goods entered in the manifest of a vessel shall not be found on board that vessel, or if the quantity found be short and the deficiency be not duly accounted for, or if goods sent out of the vessel be not landed at the custom-house, or at such other place as the collector of customs shall have prescribed, the master shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding 500 rupees for every missing or deficient package of unknown value, and for twice the amount of duty chargeable on the goods deficient and unaccounted for, if the duty can be ascertained Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the collector of customs from permitting at his discretion the master of any vessel to amend obvious errors or to supply omissions from accident or inadvertence by furnishing an amended or supplemental manifest

32 And it is hereby enacted, that there shall in every port of the Bombay Presidency be one or more places appointed for the landing and shipment of goods, and goods shall not be landed at any other place without the special order in writing of the collector of customs for the port, and if any goods be landed, or an attempt be made to land any goods at any other than the said authorised places, without such order, they shall be seized and confiscated

33 And it is hereby enacted, that if the Governor in Council shall see fit, for the security of customs at any port, to maintain special establishments of boats for the landing and shipping of merchandise, or to license and register the cargo boats plying in any ports, then after due notification thereof, it shall not be lawful for any person to convey goods to or from any vessel in such port, otherwise than in the boats so authorised and prescribed, except under special permit from the collector of customs at the port, and any goods that may be found on board of other boats than those so authorised for the port shall be liable to be seized by any officer of customs and shall be liable to confiscation

34 And it is hereby enacted, that when the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay shall see fit to maintain at any port an establishment of officers to be sent on board of vessels to watch their unlading and lading, then, after due notification shall have been given that such establishment is so maintained at any port, the collector of customs at that port shall have power at his discretion to send one or more officers of such establishment to remain on board of any vessel in such port by night and by day, until the vessel shall leave the port, or it shall be otherwise ordered by the collector

35 And it is hereby enacted, that any master of such vessel at such port who shall refuse to receive such officer with one servant on board, when such officer shall be so deputed as above provided, or shall not afford such officer and such servant suitable shelter and sleeping accommodation while on board, and likewise furnish them with a due allowance of fresh water if necessary, and with the means of cooking on board, shall be liable to fine not exceeding the sum of 100 rupees for each day during which such officer and servant shall not be received and provided with suitable shelter and accommodation

36 And it is hereby enacted, that whenever a collector of customs shall see cause to direct that any vessel shall be searched, he shall issue his warrant or written order for such search addressed to any officer under his authority, and upon production of such order the officer bearing it shall be competent to require any cabins, lockers, or bulk-heads to be opened in his presence, and if they be not opened upon his requisition, to break the same open, and any goods that may be found concealed, and that shall not be duly accounted for to the satisfaction of the collector of customs, shall be liable to confiscation, and any master or person in charge of a vessel who shall resist such officer, or refuse to allow the vessel to be searched when so ordered by the collector of customs, shall be liable upon conviction for every such offence to a fine of 1,000 rupees

37 And it is hereby enacted, that every master of a vessel who shall remove from such vessel or put on board thereof any goods, or cause or suffer any goods to be removed from thence or put on board thereof between sunset and sunrise, or on any day when the custom-house is closed for business, without leave in writing obtained from the collector of customs, shall be punished with a fine not exceeding 500 rupees

38 And it is hereby enacted, that no cargo boat laden with goods intended for exportation by sea shall make fast to, or lie alongside of, any vessel on board of which there shall be a customs officer stationed, unless there shall be on board the boat, or have been received by the said customs officer, a custom-house permit or order for the shipment of the goods, and the goods on board of any boat that may so be alongside or be made fast to a vessel, if such goods be not covered by a custom-house pass accompanying them, or previously received by the customs officer on board the said vessel, shall be liable to confiscation

39 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods shall be sent from on board of any vessel having a customs officer on board for the purpose of being landed and passed for importation, there shall shall be sent with each boat load or other separate despatch a boat note, specifying the number of packages, and the marks and numbers or other description thereof, and such boat note shall be signed by an officer of the vessel, and likewise by the customs officer on board, and if any imported goods be found in a boat proceeding to land from such a vessel without a boat note, or if being accompanied by a boat note they be found out of the proper track between the ship and the proper place of landing, the boat containing such goods may be detained by any officer of customs duly authorised by the collector, and unless the cause of deviation be explained to the satisfaction of the collector of customs, the goods shall be liable to confiscation

40 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods shall be brought to be passed through the custom-house either for importation or exportation by sea, if the packages in which the same same may be contained shall be found not to correspond with the description of them given in the application for passing them through the custom-house, or if the contents thereof be found not to have been correctly described in regard to sort, quality, or quantity, or if any goods not stated in the application be found concealed in or mixed up with the specified articles, all such packages, with the whole of the goods contained therein, shall be liable to confiscation

41 And it is hereby enacted, that if any person after goods have been landed, and before they have been passed through the custom house, removes, or attempts to remove, them with the intention of defrauding the revenue, the goods shall be liable to confiscation, unless it shall be proved, to the satisfaction of the collector of customs, that the removal was not sanctioned by the owner or by any person having an interest in or power over the goods

42 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the collector of customs, whenever he shall see fit, to require that goods brought by sea and stowed in bulk shall be weighed or measured on board ship before being sent to land, and to levy duty according to the result of such weighing or measurement

43 And it is hereby enacted, that on application by the exporter of any salt that has paid the excise duty fixed by Act No XXVII of 1837, a certificate shall be granted by the collector of customs at the place of export, under authority of which certificate the quantity of salt specified therein shall be landed at any other port of the said Presidency of Bombay, and shall be passed from such port into the interior without the levy of any further duty either of excise or of customs.

44 And it is hereby enacted, that when a customs officer shall be sent on board of any vessel to superintend the delivery of cargo, twenty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, shall be allowed for the discharge of the import cargo of vessels not exceeding 600 tons burthen, and thirty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, for the discharge of the import cargo of vessels exceeding that burthen, and the said periods shall be calculated from the day when the customs officer first went on board And if the whole cargo be not discharged by the expiration of the abovementioned periods, the master shall be charged with the wages of such officer, and other expenses for any further period that such officer may be detained on board And if the owners, importers, or consignees do not bring their goods to land within the periods above fixed, it shall be the duty of the master so to do

45 And it is hereby enacted, that when there shall be no customs officer sent aboard vessels discharging cargo, it shall be lawful for the collector of customs to fix a period, not being less than twenty days, for the discharge thereof and clearance of the vessel inwards; and if any goods remain on board after the time so fixed, or after the time allowed in the last preceding section of this Act, the collector may order the same to be landed and warehoused for the security of the duties chargeable thereon, and of any freight and primage and other demands that may be due thereon, giving his receipt to the master for the same: Provided always, that in all cases it shall be lawful for the collector or other officer in charge of the custom-house, with the consent of master of the vessel, to cause any packages to be brought on shore and to be deposited in the Government warehouses, for the security of the duties and charges thereon, although twenty days may not have expired from the entry of such vessel, and in case any goods brought to land from any vessel be not claimed and cleared from the custom-house, within three months from the date of entry of the ship in which such goods were imported, it shall be competent to the collector to sell the same on account of the duties and other charges due thereon, and the balance remaining, after deducting the said duties and charges, shall be held in deposit and paid to the owner on application

46 And it is hereby enacted, that when a customs officer shall be sent on board of any vessel discharging cargo, a further period of fifteen days, Sundays and holidays excluded, beyond the twenty days above specified, shall be allowed for putting on board export cargo, if the vessel shall not exceed 600 tons burthen, and twenty days if it exceed that burthen, when the lading and unlading thereof shall be continuous, and the master or commander shall in such case not be charged with the wages and expenses of the customs officer on board until after the expiration of such additional period and if a vessel having discharged its import cargo shall be laid up, the customs officer on board shall certify that no goods remain on board except necessary stores and articles for use, and when a vessel so laid up shall be entered at the custom-house for receipt of export cargo, a customs officer shall be sent on board, and if the said last mentioned officer shall certify that no goods are on board except as above excepted, twenty days, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, as above, shall be allowed from the date of such certificate for the lading outwards of a vessel not exceeding 600 tons, and thirty days for vessels exceeding that burthen, after which periods respectively the master shall be charged with the wages and expenses of the customs officer on board, to the date of the vessel's sailing from the port.

47 And it is hereby enacted, that when upon application from the master of any vessel the customs officer shall be removed from on board thereof under the provisions to that effect contained in the last preceding section of this Act, if the master of such vessel

shall before a customs officer have again been placed in such vessel, put on board of such vessel, or cause or suffer to be put on board of such vessel, any goods whatever, such master shall be punished with a fine not exceeding 1,000 rupees, and the goods shall be liable to be relanded for examination at the expense of the shippers, upon requisition to that effect from the collector of customs

48 And it is hereby enacted, that upon any goods liable to duty that may be passed through the custom-house for shipment, the application for which shall be presented after port clearance shall have been taken out, double of the prescribed duty shall in all cases be levied, and if the goods be free or have already paid import duty, or have been imported free under certificate, five per cent upon the market value shall be levied thereon, or if the same be imported goods entitled to drawback the drawback shall be forfeited, but no separate duty shall be levied on drawback goods

49 And it is hereby enacted, that when a vessel having cleared out from any port shall put back from stress of weather, or it shall for any damage or from other cause be necessary that the cargo of a vessel that has cleared out shall be unshipped or relanded, a customs officer shall be sent to watch the vessel and take charge of the cargo during such relanding or removal from on board, and the goods on board such vessel shall not be allowed to be transhipped or re-exported free of duty by reason of the previous settlement of duty at the time of first export unless the goods shall be lodged in such place as shall be allowed by the collector of customs, and shall remain while on land, or while on board of any other vessel, under special charge of the officers of customs until the time of re-export, and all charges attending such custody shall be borne by the exporter, provided, however, that in all cases of return to port after port clearance, on account of damage or for stress of weather, it shall be lawful for the owner or for the master to enter the vessel and land the cargo under the rules for the importation of goods, and the export duty shall in that case be refunded and the amount paid in drawback be reclaimed, and if goods on account of which drawback has been paid be not found on board the vessel, the master shall be liable to a fine not exceeding the entire value thereof, unless he account for them to the satisfaction of the collector of customs

50 And it is hereby enacted, that when goods shall be relanded before the lading of any vessel is complete, and before port clearance has been granted, the duty levied upon such goods shall be returned to the exporter, but no refund shall be made of duty paid on the export of any goods after port clearance shall have been granted for the vessel on which the goods were exported, unless the vessel shall have put back for stress of weather or for damage, and the goods shall have been relanded under the rule contained in the last preceding section of this Act

51 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Governor in Council to establish rules for the anchoring of the coasting and country craft of the British territories, for the delivery of manifests of the cargo of such vessels, and for the landing of goods therefrom, and shipping of goods therein, and that whoever being in charge of any such craft shall knowingly contravene any such rule, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding 100 rupees for each offence

52 And it is hereby enacted, that pattamars, dhonies, botellos, and other small craft from the Maldive or Laccadive Islands, or from the native ports of Kattywar, Cutch and Scinde, shall be treated in the ports of the Bombay Presidency like the coasting craft of the British territory, provided that they conform to such special regulations as to the place of anchoring and mode of landing and shipping goods as may be made by the Governor in Council of Bombay for such vessels in the several ports of the Bombay Presidency

53 And it is hereby enacted, that no drawback shall be allowed on goods shipped on such native craft as are described in the last preceding section of this Act

54 And it is hereby enacted, that goods exported in the same vessels if manifested for re-export, shall not be subject to import or export duty, and if any goods brought to any port in any vessel be transhipped in such port, they shall in all cases be subject to the same duty as if they had been landed and passed through the custom-house for re-exportation in the vessel into which they may be transhipped.

55 And it is hereby enacted, that no transhipment shall be made of any goods except under special order in writing from the collector of customs of the port, and an officer of customs shall in all cases be deputed to superintend the removal of the goods from vessel to vessel

56 And it is hereby enacted, that at every port subordinate to the Bombay Presidency, the port of Bombay excepted, an anchorage fee shall be levied once at each port, according to the burthen on all country craft above the burthen of (100) one hundred maunds, at the rates hereinunder specified

57 And it is hereby enacted, that in all cases in which under this Act goods are liable to confiscation, the collector of customs of the place where those goods may be shall be competent to adjudge such confiscation

58 And it is hereby enacted, that if any person in charge of a vessel shall have become liable to any fine on account of any act or omission relating to customs, the collector of customs shall be competent, subject to the orders of the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Bombay, to refuse port clearance to such vessel until the fine shall be discharged.

59 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for any collector of customs, or other officer who may be authorised to adjudicate customs cases, if he shall decide that a seizure of goods made under the authority of this Act was vexatious and unnecessary, to adjudge damages to be paid to the proprietor by the customs officer who made such vexatious seizure, besides ordering the immediate release of the goods, and if the proprietor accept such damages, no action shall thereafter lie against the officer of customs in any court of justice on account of such seizure and if such adjudicating officer shall decide that the seizure was warranted, but shall deem that the penalty of confiscation is unduly severe, it shall be lawful for him to mitigate the same to the extent of the levy of double duty and if the said officer shall adjudge confiscation, it shall further be lawful for him to order that from the proceeds of the sale of the goods, a proportion not exceeding one-half shall be distributed in rewards amongst such officers as he shall deem entitled thereto, and in such proportion as he may direct to each respectively .

60 And it is hereby enacted, that all officers of customs shall as heretofore be amenable to the civil courts of the Presidency or Island of Bombay by action for damages on account of any executive acts done in their official capacity at the suit of the parties injured by such acts Provided, however, that no suit shall lie against a collector of customs or other officer for any judicial award in a matter of customs passed under the preceding section of this Act

61. And it is hereby enacted, that whoever intentionally obstructs any officer in the exercise of any powers given by this Act to such officer, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or fine not exceeding 1,000 rupees, or both

62 And it is hereby enacted, that whoever, being an officer appointed under the authority of this Act, shall accept, or obtain, or attempt to obtain from any person any property as a consideration for doing or forbearing to do any official act, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or fine, or both.

63. And it is hereby enacted, that whoever, being an officer appointed under the authority of this Act, practises or attempts to practise any fraud for the purpose of injuring the customs revenue, or abets or connives at any such fraud, or at any attempt to practise any such fraud, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or fine, or both

64 And it is hereby enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council of Bombay, by an Order in Council, to transfer any of the powers given to a collector of customs by this Act to any other functionary, and to make any rules consistent with law for the carrying of this Act into effect, and to establish such bunders and appoint such officers as he shall think fit, and to fix rates of wharfage and of rent to be paid for goods deposited or suffered to lie in the godowns of the custom-house.

And if the collector of customs shall see reason to doubt whether the goods liable to a different rate of duty according to the place of their production come from the country from which they are declared to come by the importer, it shall be lawful for the collector of customs to call on the importer to furnish evidence as to the place of manufacture or production, and if such evidence shall not satisfy the said collector of the truth of the declaration, the goods shall be charged with the highest rate of duty, subject always to an appeal to the Governor in Council at Bombay

And upon the re-export by sea of goods imported, excepting opium and salt, and all goods of the growth, production, or manufacture of the continent of India, provided the re-export be made within two years of the date of import as per custom-house register, and the goods be identified to the satisfaction of the collector of customs, there shall be retained one-eighth of the amount of duty levied, and the remainder shall be repaid as drawback

But no exporter of imported goods shall be entitled to drawback unless the drawback be claimed at the time of re-export, nor shall any payment be made of drawback unless the amount claimed be demanded within one year from the date of entry of the goods for re-export in the custom-house registers

Accountant's Office, Revenue Department,
Fort William, 12 June 1840.

(Errors excepted.)

(signed) W. Maples,
Assistant-Accountant to Government of Bengal.

* On the first occupation of this province by the British Government, the proprietors or claimants of certain lands called Debootur, Dhurmoothur, Burmootur, and Nankar, were, after summary inquiry, declared entitled to hold at rates much less than those imposed on other lands. The titles of those parties were afterwards investigated by an officer especially appointed for that purpose, and he declared them to be invalid. This led to a settlement of the lands above alluded to at full rates, and the large increase to the Revenue demand in this district is owing to the above circumstance.

RETURN of the PROFIT and Loss resulting from Proceedings connected with the Investigation and Resumption of Rent-free Tenures in the North-Western Provinces and Saugor.

SETTLEMENTS OF THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES

REVENUE.

The Directors of the East India Company to the Governor-General of India in Council

London, 13 August 1851 (No 9)

Settlement of the North-Western Provinces

1 It is our intention to review, in this despatch, the measures which have been some years in progress, for the settlement of the North-Western Provinces

2 The plan of settlement promulgated by the Circular Order of the Sudder Board of Revenue, on the 9th April 1839, called forth, in the first instance, much cordial support, and much strenuous opposition

3 We shall state the views which the advocates and opponents of the measure have severally taken of its purposes and results We shall then test their several views by a careful analysis of the settlement proceedings in every district, and shall conclude by giving our final judgment on the whole

4 The main points of the question on each side are clearly and comprehensively stated in the two principal documents transmitted with your despatch dated the 25th November 1842, No 15, viz —

> The Report of Mr R M Bird, late first member of the Sudder Board of Revenue, and,—
> The Minute of Mr Robertson, late Lieutenant-governor of the North-Western Provinces.

5 Mr Bird enters into a statement of the opinions and impressions conceived and adopted by him from an early period, after a long and careful study of landed tenures in Upper India, and of the effect of the previously existing revenue and judicial systems on those tenures.

6 With reference to the impression very generally received, that the various arrangements connected with the settlement had for their immediate object such an accurate ascertainment of the resources of the land as would ensure to Government its full share of the rents or produce, he declares, that the measures which he has now carried through had been many years previously planned and elaborated by him, as measures of a purely judicial character, when he was holding a judicial office, and had no prospect of ever being connected with the Revenue Department His experience in the discharge of his functions as a judicial officer, led to the conviction in his mind, that the existing tribunals were insufficient for the ascertainment of rights or their protection, and that the combined effect of the revenue and judicial systems would be injurious and oppressive, unless those systems could be made to bear a more exact relation to the institutions and habits of the people. He entertained a strong conviction of the general soundness of the views put forth by Government in Regulation VII of 1822, and considered that practical operation might be given to those views, and the assessment of a fair and moderate revenue be combined with the recognition of private rights and the protection of the village communities

7 It was under the influence of these feelings and impressions, that Mr Bird first entered on his duties as Revenue Commissioner in Goruckpore, and subsequently undertook the superintendence of the settlements, and when the ascertainment and assessment of a just amount of revenue was added to the other objects with which he had undertaken the charge, he acted on the conviction, that the course best calculated to determine the rights of individuals, was the one most conducive to the ascertainment of such an equal and moderate revenue as is most for the interest of the State

1st The revision of the assessment.
2d The better division of the kists or instalments
3d The demarcation of the exterior boundaries of estates and villages
4th The correction of the system of accounts at the Tehsildars' offices, and the arrangement of their records
5th The formation of a fund for the construction of roads.
6th The establishment of a provision for the support of the village police
7th The resumption of all hidden rent-free tenures brought to light by the survey

Appendix, No 19.

8th The recasting or reduction of the talookahs or large tenures

9th The demarcation of the component portions of every village, the recording of the several rights comprised therein, and providing for their maintenance, and the registering of all rights which may spring up hereafter

9 With respect to the revision of the assessment, Mr. Bird expresses his belief, that a "moderate, fair and equal demand on the land, such as can and ought to be collected without interfering with the accumulation of property and the march of agricultural prosperity, has, generally speaking, been fixed" This portion of the settlement is highly spoken of by the late Lieutenant-governor (Mr Robertson), as sound in principle, and performed with consideration and judgment, and he states that he had not found cause, up to the period at which he was writing (April 1842), to return any settlement for revision, on the ground of excess in the jumma imposed

10 The division of the kists or instalments of public revenue has been so fixed as to allow the sale of the produce before the demand can take effect, an arrangement regarding the benefit of which there appears to be no diversity of opinion

11 The same may be said of the demarcation of the exterior boundaries of estates and villages, and of the correction of the system of accounts, from both of which measures much public benefit is anticipated

12 The formation of a fund for the construction of roads, and the provision for the support of the village police, are measures deemed by some of the opponents of the system of settlement to be of doubtful expediency The former, Mr Robertson is of opinion, will be beneficial, but cannot be popular with the community, until they are enabled to appreciate the advantages to be derived from well-made roads, and he fears that one per cent collected for the object proposed, will be viewed in the light of an addition to the regular assessment, instead of a deduction from it, while the latter measure he states to be often complained of, and generally felt as a grievance He is of opinion that the presence of a paid chokeydar would never be acceptable, even if it involved no extra charge Such a functionary, he conceives, would be likely to lord it over the Brahmin or Rajpoot on his own domain "There is in this," he observes, "an inversion of the social order of the country, such as must cause heartburnings and mortifications in that class of our subjects, whose affections it is most our interest to conciliate An abatement in the number of thefts and burglaries is but a sorry compensation for such a consequence, or for the no less pernicious result of the zemindar taking advantage of the presence of a paid police officer to exonerate himself from all responsibility for what occurs.'

13 The resumption of the hidden rent-free tenures brought to light by the survey, is considered by Mr Robertson to have been marked at the outset by a hard and harsh dealing with individual rights, gradually (but, he fears, reluctantly) "yielding to the orders from superior authorities, especially from the Honourable Court" "The settlement officer," he says, "swept up without inquiry every patch of unregistered land, even those under 10 beegahs, exempted by a subsequent order, which did not come out until five-sixths of the tenures had been resumed In one "district, that of Furruckabad, the obligations of a treaty and the direct orders of Government were but lightly dealt with; and in all, a total disregard was evinced for the acts even of snch men as Warren Hastings and Lord Lake."

14 The recasting and reduction of the talookahs, or superior tenures, are considered by Mr Robertson to have been much too precipitate and summary He admits, however, the difficulty of maintaining the privileges of the talookdars without endangering the rights of the village proprietors, and states that he would gladly have given his support to any well-digested plan for reconciling those conflicting titles, but he objects strongly to the course which has been adopted, especially in reference to tenures of magnitude, whence all that remains of an aristocracy in the country derives its support With respect to the practice of assigning a malikana allowance generally of 18 per cent. on the jumma, as a compensation to the talookdar, on the villages severed from the talookah, he contends that if the talookdar has not a title such as it is found impossible entirely to reject, the land should not be saddled with the cess on his account, and if he have a title, it ought to rest with some more impartial authority than a settlement officer, bent on the realization of schemes to which the talookahs are a serious obstacle, to set it aside He adduces instances in justification of his strictures, from the proceedings which have taken place in this branch of the settlement, in the districts of Mynpooree, Etawah, and Allighur, the details of which we shall notice in reviewing the settlement in those districts respectively

15 We now come to that section of the settlement arrangements on which, with the exception of the preceding, the greatest differences exist, viz The demarcation of the component portions of every village, and the recording of the several rights comprised therein. The measure is thus described by Mr Bird "complete records have been made of the possession, rights, and liabilities of all those members of the agricultural community who hold in severalty, by which a just due may be enforced against any member who may withhold it, without injuring the innocent, and provision has been made for keeping up the record by such an arrangement of the native village and revenue (Putwarree and Tehseedarree) accounts as, if properly watched and maintained, will always yield the necessary information" Lastly, he states that "the summary revenue suit department has been put on such a footing as to ensure that prompt recovery of an undoubted demand, which is requisite to preserve those under direct engagements with Government from ruin, and at the same time all disputes and questionable claims are left, as they should be, to the judicial tribunals"

16 In opposition to the foregoing description of the beneficial operation and tendency of the arrangements detailed, we have the opinion of Mr Robertson and Mr Grant, by whom respectively they are considered to be most defective, and unlikely to effect the object proposed Mr Robertson considers that to keep up a record of the circumstances of every field, would entail a constant interference on the part of the executive in the affairs of every village, and in fact of every villager, which would be irksome to any people, and especially so to the natives of India, while the system would do little towards sustaining the village communities, which, as experience "led him to think thrive best" when protected from "outward aggression," and "left to the undisturbed adjustment of their own relations" The prominent defect of this part of the settlement is stated to exist in its aiming at too much by seeking to give a detached and separate durability to rights which exist only from their mutual and almost indefinable connexion with each other

17 The late Lieutenant-governor (Mr Robertson) proceeded to the work of revision with "strong prepossessions in favour of much of what the project promised to accomplish," and "it was with sincere regret that, after having confirmed at the outset the settlements of the districts of Bareilly, Shahjehanpore, Furruckabad, Goruckpore, Suharunpore, and the Bhuttee country, he felt compelled to proceed more slowly for a while, and at last to postpone all further ratification until the receipt of the next annual report"

18 He adds, "I suspended the progress of the operations, pending a reference to the Supreme Government My sentiments are given at length in my letters to the Governor-general in Council of 15th August and 21st November 1840, and though I cannot say that my arguments were answered, yet, as my objections were overruled, the measure was of course suffered to proceed"

19. The tenor of Mr Bird's report would lead us to infer that he anticipated much of the opposition which his proceedings have met, and is willing to take on himself the full responsibility which may attach to the originator of the system He reviews the condition and prospects of each district, recapitulates the principal measures adopted for the reform of the general revenue administration of the provinces, and anticipates from them on the whole much practical advantage, though he expresses his belief that many errors and omissions will be found in so vast an undertaking In reply to those who estimate less favourably the extent of the benefits expected from the settlement, he says it must be left to parties who know what was the state of the revenue administration of Upper India in 1830, and what it now is, what was the condition of the agricultural population at that time, and what, in spite of great national calamities, it has become since, what was the feeling of the people then, and what it now is,—to appreciate the labours with which these changes have been effected, or the extent of the benefits which have resulted from their operation.

20 The foregoing summary of the various opinions, recorded regarding the probable results and tendency of the settlement in its various branches, embraces the principal points which have come under our notice We reserve, as already intimated, for our concluding remarks, such observations as we may deem it expedient to make on the general advantages and disadvantages of the measure We shall consider the several reports in the order of the divisions

21. The tabular statements with which we shall conclude our examination of each district, will be compiled from the settlement papers

FIRST, OR MEERUT DIVISION

SEHARUNPORE DISTRICT

22 The settlement of this district was undertaken and completed by Mr Edward Thornton, and reported to us in the Revenue Narrative of 16th November 1840, No 6

23 The term of settlement was fixed at 20 years instead of 30 years, as in most other districts. It was considered that the very low rate of assessment in many estates, the consequence of over-assessment in former years, rendered it expedient that the present jumma, though somewhat enhanced, should stop far short of the sum fairly demandable, when the prosperity of the district should have been restored

24 The Sudder Board, however, recommended that a distinct pledge should be given to those who had signalized themselves by their industry and punctuality of payment, that no increased demand should, at any future settlement, be exacted from them, until the rates on the lands of others less industrious should have been brought up to their standard

25 The above suggestion appears to have been entirely approved by the Lieutenant-governor, with the exception of the latter clause, by which the term of the present assessment, as regards the mouzahs in question, was limited to the period when "the rate of assessment on their neighbours' land shall equal their own" The above limitation, in his opinion, admitted of so many interpretations as to destroy the value of the measure

26 The obstacles which presented themselves generally throughout the district to an equalization of the demand, are very fully described by Mr Thornton A prominent place is assigned to the difference existing in the habits and characteristics of a very diversified population, some remarkable for skill and energy, and others for indolence The Lieutenant-governor, in his observations on the settlement, urged the necessity of fixing the demand on the former so as to avoid trenching on the fair reward of skill and industry, and at an amount which would, in the case of the latter, admit of easy and profitable transfer of the tenures of defaulters, and, as it did not appear from the proceedings, which class of people are considered the least industrious, he suggested that policy demanded some relaxation in favour of the old or decayed Puthan families, who, from their habits or former pursuits, might not be as skilful managers of land as other classes of proprietors. The industrious classes were represented to be progressively increasing in number and wealth, and gradually buying out and displacing the others.

27 The measures adopted by the settlement officer for defining rights, by securing the titular zemindars in the full and unquestionable enjoyment of all they had ever possessed, and fixing distinctly the terms of the tenures of those who had always exercised the right of cultivation and fiscal management, are much commended by the Board, who observe, that agriculture "can never attain the prosperity which it is the duty of every good government to use all right means of obtaining for it, till security of tenure and title be afforded"

28 In reference to the reduction in the demand allowed by Mr Thornton, in cases where he deemed the interests of the skilful and industrious to require such concession, the Board asserted the right of Government to a fair and moderate share of the fruits of that increased productive power which has been given to the soil by a long course of patient effort, but they stated that "in practice, it requires cautious forbearance to avoid appropriating what is, in fact, the return of labour and capital, and thus destroying the spring of improvement at its source. This error has, in past times, struck deep at the root of the prosperity of the northern districts, and the Board are proportionately anxious now to avoid it, without, however, falling into the opposite extreme"

29 The Lieutenant-governor expressed his entire concurrence in the foregoing sentiments, and his gratification at observing that the Board were desirous to use every possible caution to avoid the errors into which others had fallen

30 The financial result of the revised settlement showed an average acre rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation, of Rs 1 10 6

31 The total amount of the assessment is 9,04,438 rupees, being an increase on the previous assessment of 48,113 rupees

32 The proceedings of a judicial character in this district were of minor importance, except in the case of a large Mocurruree tenure of the late Rajah Ramdial Sing, regarding which the settlement officer entered into copious details

33 It appears that on the accession of the British Government, the Rajah was found in possession of the tenure, at a jumma of 1,11 597 rupees, which was confirmed to him for his life At his death, in 1813, the claim of his heirs to the zemindarree right in the property was considered, and, pending future investigations, they were admitted to settlement The grounds of this concession to them are stated to have been consideration towards a family so long in occupancy, their altered circumstances, and the services of the Rajah to Government

34 At the settlement of 1822, certain modifications were made, and though the stipends were secured to the young Rajah and his mother, the Ranee, it was explicitly laid down, that the grant was not an acknowledgment of right, but simply a mark of consideration to the family

35 The necessity entailed by the present system of settlement, of defining the rights of the parties admitted to engagements, obliged Mr Thornton again to re-open the investigation of the conflicting claims of the Mocurrureedar's heirs and the village communities, and the persons found by him in what he deemed "proprietary occupancy" of the land, have been recorded as proprietors, and admitted to settlement The claim of the mocurrureedar to the zemindarree right was declared to have been, from the first, unfounded, and, as a consequence, that of his descendants, at the present day, has been set aside as invalid

36 The Sudder Board expressed their surprise that Mr Thornton thought it necessary to enter into so long a discussion of this mocurruree, the fact of the proprietorship vesting in the village communities being, as they alleged, quite clear to any officer of common experience and acquaintance with landed tenures

37 The Lieutenant-governor, though approving generally of the arrangements in reference to the mocurruree, postponed his final confirmation of them pending the completion of the settlement of another portion of the district with which they are connected, and expressed his readiness to take into favourable consideration the claims of any branches of the surviving family to pecuniary allowance He also stated his opinion, that there were passages in Mr Thornton's report, whence an inference favourable to the claims of the mocurrureedar's heirs to be regarded, in some instances, as proprietors, may be drawn

38 The following circumstance was brought to the notice of Government, with a view to its being taken into consideration, whether Government should not make a water-course in this district at its own expense

39. The construction of the bunds at the heads of the two canals had annually, for several years, been made more perfect, till the whole of the waters of the Jumna had, it appeared, been completely diverted into the one or the other canal, and at the foot of the bunds the river had become passable by a person dryshod, the result had been, that a mass of villages lying between the Jumna itself and a stream called the Boorhee Jumna, in a soil which did not admit of the construction of cucha wells, and which villages depended on those two streams for drinking-water, had been put to great inconvenience. This privation of drinking-water, or at least of such as is wholesome, was a serious ground of complaint, it appeared, with the villagers, as was also the fact of the loss of the means of irrigation formerly afforded them by the Jumna

40. To remedy the foregoing causes of inconvenience and discontent, Mr Thornton suggested a plan for the construction of a water-course at the expense of Government Under the arrangement proposed, the whole of the mouzahs requiring it would be supplied with wholesome water to drink, and those who chose to irrigate would pay the usual rates.

41 The above proposal was recommended for favourable consideration by the Commissioner, and the Lieutenant-governor readily acquiesced in the necessity of adopting measures to remedy the hardships complained of, and empowered the Board to authorise at once the formation of the proposed cut, at the expense of Government, chargeable to the canal accounts

BEGUM SUMROO'S JAGHEER.

42. The papers connected with the settlement of this jagheer, by Mr Plowden, under Regulation IX of 1833, accompanied the Revenue Narative, dated 15th April 1841, No 2, paragraphs 35 to 39.

43. It appears from Mr Plowden's sketch of the state of the property before it lapsed to the Company in 1836, that the previous administration of the territory under the Begum, was characterized by the systematic exaction of the utmost that could be wrung from the cultivators, although by her skilful mananagement in always limiting her demand to the exact point of endurance, with due regard to the occurrence of favourable and unfavourable seasons, she gave her country a fictitious appearance of prosperity "Above the surface," says Mr Plowden, "all was smiling and prosperous, but within was rottenness and misery"

44 But when this system of extreme exaction lost the advantage of her own skilful management, and the administration passed, in the latter years of her life, into the hands of Mr Dyce Sombre, that which she had carefully restricted to the limits of endurance became unendurable. More than half the lands were thrown up, and numerous cultivators abandoned the soil When, on the Begum's death, the jagheer lapsed to the Company, it was found necessary to begin, in 1836, with a summary settlement at a reduced jumma, and the people who had migrated elsewhere, were induced to return and establish themselves in their old homes, on receiving the assurance of a speedy and equitable assessment at a long lease

45 The financial result of the settlement shows a revised jumma of 5,63,748 rupees being an increase of 48,833 rupees on the aggregate of the previous summary assessment, and less by 47,602 rupees than the average of the Begum's jumma for 20 years

46 The sum above stated was the amount at which the jumma was prospectively fixed, but to which it would only attain on the 12th year of the present settlement, by annual increases during the intermediate years

47 The preparation of the records of rights and responsibilities was stated by the settlement officer to have been a work of no ordinary labour, owing to the inaccuracy of the kusreh survey, and to the fact that the Begum's records consisted of nothing more than an account current with each mouzah

48 Mr Plowden's proceedings appeared to have been generally approved by the different revising authorities

49 Some differences of opinion existed on the subject of enchancing the jumma on improved soils at the expiration of a lease We have repeatedly expressed our opinion on this subject, and shall recur to it in our concluding remarks

50. The documents received from vou do not admit of the formation of a tabular statement, showing the average rates of cultivation and assessment, as in the case of other districts

Allyghur District

51. The completion of the settlement of this district was reported in the Revenue Narrative of 15th April 1841, No 2

52. The district was represented as being in a very high state of cultivation, and, generally speaking, of prosperity Most of the pergunnahs were fully cultivated, and no improvement was to be expected, except from the introduction of canal irrigation.

53 Mr Bird's report entered at some length into the circumstances of two pergunnahs* (in that portion of the district which was settled by Mr Thornton, and was not included in the proceedings under review) in which much difficulty has been experienced in collecting the revenue He traced this difficulty to the embarrassments of the owners of the villages, which had arisen, in a great measure, from unsuccessful speculations in indigo, and the failure of the houses of agency which had promoted these speculations by granting advances

54 The village communities had received advances from bankers to meet the demands of the Rajah

55 After a lapse of years, the purchasers of the abandoned factories urged their claims to the repayment of the outstanding balances of former advances, and the native bankers also pressed for reimbursement, in some cases insisting on having lands assigned to them as security They, however, omitted to take measures for paying regularly the public revenue, and the Sudder Board deemed it advisable to bring some few lands to sale, "in order to prove to the creditors that their own haste and rapacity would lead to their own loss," and that it was requisite for them to accept a more tardy recovery of their demand, and to provide for the payment of the demand of Government also

56 Matters would from this time, according to Mr. Bird, have proceeded satisfactorily, but for the interference of Government, which he states, "for reasons unknown to him," prohibited the Board from selling any of the mouzahs without a special authority from them, and directed that if any fell into arrear they should be made over to the Rajah The effect of this prohibition was, in his opinion, likely to be unfavourable, both to the regular realization of the revenue and to the interests of the communities, and was specially adverted to by him to prove that the difficulty found in collecting the revenue in this portion of the district did not arise in any respect from over-assessment, but from the unsparing exaction of old balances by new purchasers, that the extremely moderate Government demand ought to be annually realizedf rom the resources of the district, and that any further reduction of the jumma would be a sacrifice of the Government rights to the new proprietors, without any benefit to the actual cultivators, who had only their food and clothing, but under any degree of remission would have no more

57 The settlement of the six pergunnahs under notice was undertaken conjointly by Mr Rose and Mr Deputy Collector Wright

58 Many portions of the district had suffered severely from the drought of Fusly 1245 (1838) The settlement officer consequently granted in some instances reductions of jumma, to have immediate effect, and in others, immediate remissions without permanent reduction

59 The zemindarree claims brought under the notice of the settlement officer, were stated to have been generally preferred by parties who could not prove possession, and they were therefore disregarded Certain other claims, however, described as Moccuddumee or Dhakulkl arij, were specially adverted to, they were stated to be claims to malgoozarree occupancy, under the recorded zemindars, on the ground of long actual occupancy, conceiving that the point to be determined was, whether the occupancy of the claimants was founded on original right, or was merely dependent on the will of the recorded zemindars.

zemindars Mr Rose ruled, that where the claimants could prove possession so far back as could be traced, and that the sole zemindarree management had rested with them (that is, that they had built wells, advanced tuccavee, collected the rents, and paid the revenue through the recorded malgoozars), their claims should be admitted, and themselves retained in malgoozarree occupancy, paying, as heretofore, the jumma through the recorded zemindars, who received a per centage for their profit and trouble of collection

60 The case of the Rajah Menjh Sing, zemindar of Himmutnuggur, in the Pergunnah of Munhera, involved some points of importance

61 He had enjoyed a nankar allowance of 4,591 rupees, the continuance of which he claimed The allowance in question was originally granted to his father, the late Rajah, by Government, for life, with an intimation that it would not be continned to his heir After his death the Board continued the grant, or at least directed that no alteration should be made in the assessment The present Rajah was unable to substantiate any claim to the indulgence he solicited, but Mr Rose deemed the circumstances of his case to be worthy of consideration with reference to this fact among others, that he was a very indulgent landlord, and as the general state of his property, its agricultural inferiority, and the liberal scale of expenditure required by his rank and position, rendered it impossible that the estate should be raised to the pergunnah standard, quoad the rate of assessment, he deducted the amount of nankar allowance from the jumma, fixed on the principles according to which the pergunnah has been assessed This adjustment of the Rajah's claim was higbly commended by the Lieutenant-governor

62 Another case also involving points of importance was adjudicated on by Mr Wright, and the decision was demurred to by the Commissioner It arose in the Mouzah of Hamudpore, which had been given to a farmer, though the proprietary right of two persons was stated by the Commissioner, Mr Franco, to have been fully established

63 The reason assigned for excluding them was, that they had never had the management; that the estate had been held by farmers for many settlements, and that the farmer in possession, Putah Sing, having engaged for a long time, had been considered entitled to the settlement A malikana assignment of 10 per cent was made to the zemindars, who tacitly assented to the arrangement, and preferred no appeal against the proceeding

64 This settlement with the farmer, without any alleged incompetency on the part of the zemindars, and without their consent being asked, was considered by the Commissioner to be irregular, and he therefore submitted the case for the orders of the Board, who caused further inquiries to be made in reference to the question, pending which, however, they deemed it expedient not to suspend their confirmation of the settlement

65 A proposition by Mr Wright, for cutting a canal through certain culturable waste lands situated in the valley of the Jumna, was made the subject of enquiry by the Board, but the expediency of the measure was doubted by the Lieutenant-governor, who thought it unadvisable to diminish, by any further drain, the very small quantity of water in the Jumna

66 The financial result of the settlement gave an average acre rate on the area in actual cultivation, of Rs. 1. 4

67 The amount of revised jumma for the six pergunnahs under notice, was 6,83,153 rupees, and exhibited an increase on the previous assessment of 30,068 rupees

68 The settlement had been made for 30 years, except in the Pergunnah of Tuppal, fixed at 20 years, but it was recommended by the Commissioner, that that settlement should be extended to the full period of 30 years

BOLUNDSHUHUR DISTRICT

69 The portion of this district which has come under settlement, consisted of only two pergunnahs, viz, Jewur and Puhasoo, which were settled by Mr Tonnochy, whose report was furnished with the Revenue Narrative, dated 11th April 1842, No 2.

70 The district is one of those which suffered severely from the drought of 1838, and in fixing the assessment, remissions were granted for the purpose of enabling the agricultural community to recover from the effects of the calamity

71 The district was reported to be very backward The population were stated to evince a preference for pastoral over agricultural pursuits, and to bear a very indifferent character for industry and honesty. At the period of settlement, a large portion of fertile land was waste, which was likely to receive the benefits of cultivation under the system of management newly established, and much advantage is anticipated to the district from the introduction of canal irrigation.

72 The financial result of the settlement gave an average acre rate of assessment of the area in actual cultivation of Rs 1 9 8

73 The amount of the revised jumma of the two pergunnahs together was for the first year of the settlement, 1,15,139 rupees, and for the last year 1,27,374 rupees, showing a present decrease of 13,414 rupees, and a prospective one of 1,179 rupees

74 The only subject in connexion with the settlement of this portion of the district, which appears to us to require any special notice, is the question which arose as to the number of lumberdars which should have been sanctioned in the different estates The statements of responsibilities submitted by Mr Tonnochy are represented as showing more than would constitute a due number of lumberdars, but he stated that this fact did not arise from any inattention, or want of proper firmness on his part in enforcing the necessity of reduction, but from his being obliged to yield to circumstances, which, if left unregarded, would immediately have led to rancorous animosity and hostility among the brotherhood, to an interruption of the village economy, the stoppage of rents, and still more injurious results Notwithstanding every necessary explanation on his part, the people could not be got to assent to the validity of his reasons for vesting their transactions with Government in as few hands as possible, but urged, on the contrary, the ruin which would attend them, if compelled to submit their affairs to those whom they could not trust The proprietary body also resisted all attempts towards assigning a puchotra allowance to their lumberdars, and the provisions could not be insisted on, owing to the avidity with which the lumberdarree office was coveted by all, without any remuneration whatever

75 In deference to the strong feeling entertained by the village communities in regard to what they deemed an infringement of their rights and privileges, the settlement officer, in the exercise of his discretion, waived the strict enforcement of the unpopular arrangement.

76 The Sudder Board were of opinion, that the practice of having a multitude of lumberdars would be productive of as much inconvenience to the people themselves as to the Government officers, and they desired the Commissioner to use his endeavours to reduce the number to what they considered the proper proportion, viz, one lumberdar to every 1,000 rupees of jumma, giving due consideration, however, to the habits of the people, and their ignorance of our system

77 In reference to the question here discussed, the Lieutenant-governor observed, that in the report of the settlement officer, he remarked that the standing-up of the community for that which they considered a privilege, and which, in reality, was a point of minor consideration, was viewed as an act of resistance and obstinacy, when in fact, it amounted to nothing beyond a fair assertion of a custom which the parties under engagement deemed essential to enable them to secure the performance of their contracts. He urged, that on such occasions, inconvenience to Government officers should be considered as a secondary matter, more especially when, as in this case, the parties interested have but recently come under British control, that the alleged inconvenience to the communities they would themselves soon discover, and seek to remedy, and that the required reduction in the number of lumberdars could then be effected by the free act of the people, and become a popular measure He therefore desired that no immediate alteration should be made in the existing state of things, as fixed by the settlement, until the parties themselves should seek its revision

78 The Sudder Board disclaimed the sentiments which the remarks of the Lieutenant-governor appeared to impute to them, and said, "If there be any one ground more than another on which the Board claim for their proceedings the confidence of Government, it is on this very one, that the customs of the people are scrupulously preserved, and the system carefully adapted to the varying circumstances of each tenure" The Lieutenant-governor expressed his satisfaction that such were the sentiments of the Board, and that they were "so directly opposed to what he imagined that he had occasionally detected in the writings of their subordinates."

MOZUFFURNUGGUR DISTRICT

79 The proceedings relating to the settlement of this district were transmitted with the Revenue Narrative, dated 21st April 1843, No 3 The settlement was completed by Mr E Thornton, whose report differed in some respects from those submitted regarding other districts, inasmuch as it partook more of the character of a laborious scientific inquiry into the quantity and quality of soils, and entered less into questions connected with proprietary rights or individual interests The process by which Mr Thornton fixed his assessment on certain soils, involved a principle of importance

80 Bearing in mind the doctrine, so often advanced by the Sudder Board, of the undoubted right of Government to a moderate share of the increased produce which is derived, not from the original fertility of the soil, but from the judicious application of skill, capital and industry, Mr Thornton endeavoured to fix a rate of assessment by which all land in an extraordinarily advanced state of cultivation shall bear a larger jumma than soils possessing the same intrinsic peculiarities and natural capabilities, but which have not attained so high a degree of agricultural advancement

81. He placed under a separate and distinct head all the land which, from diligent tillage and much manuring, has acquired greater productiveness than the natural soil possessed The land so classed is termed " meesum," and, after much deliberation, he decided on assessing it at the high rate which it will be seen to bear, a rate often above 3 rupees per acre, even if unirrigated , while " rouslee" land (the superior of the three denominations into which the soils are generally classed) is ordinarily rated at Rs 1 8 unirrigated He then assumed that in every village there was (or ought to have been) a certain proportion of this highly-manured soil, and that where it did not exist, the proprietors had neglected their trust, and had deprived Government of their legitimate share of what the property ought to yield He, therefore, took 20 per cent to be the average proportion of " meesum ' of the whole cultivated area In most cases the land in question is stated to be under 30 per cent of the cultivation, in comparatively few did it exceed 40 , and 50 per cent was the limit which he fixed to the assessment on it That is to say, in order that an industrious community who had enriched their soil by skilful husbandry, should not, if they possessed a very large proportion of such land, be deprived of all the benefits of their past labour, he ruled that in all those highly-improved villages in which a proportion of more than one-half of the land had been, by careful and ample manuring, brought into the state of " meesum," the higher revenue rate was only to be taken upon one-half, the remaining " meesum" land being taxed as ordinary land of the next lower denomination, viz., " rouslee," and the additional profits left to the occupants as the reward of their exertions.

82 The arrangements above detailed were highly praised by the Sudder Board, and characterized as giving every encouragement to the agricultural population, " to push their improvement to the highest state of which it is capable "

83 We shall, as we have already said, in relation to Begum Sumroo's jagheer, reserve the discussion of this branch of the subject for our concluding remarks

84. The fiscal result of the settlement gave an average acre rate of assessment, on the area in actual cultivation, of Rs 1 11 2.

85. The aggregate amount of the revised jumma for the first year of the settlement is 6,57,335 rupees, and for the year 1859-60, 6,72,740 rupees, showing an immediate increase of 73,398 rupees, and an ultimate one of 88,803 rupees

86 Mr Thornton had made a re-arrangement in reference to putwarrees, an entire change of those functionaries having been, in his opinion, necessary, from their general inefficiency as accountants and inability to keep the records of rights and responsibilities with regularity. In lieu of the former system, under which the individuals appointed were

Appendix, No 19 selected from among the petty bunyars of the village, he decided that the office should be filled with good accountants, who could keep their accounts with method, with a salary of 100 rupees

87 His report was so minute in its details and professional descriptions of the mode in which the information he sought was obtained, as almost to baffle any attempt to describe his proceedings without entering into minutiæ, the recapitulation of which is unnecessary, as the points for consideration are the principles by which he was guided, and the result at which he arrived, rather than the elaborate and intricate process employed by him in the attainment of his object The Board viewed the information collected by Mr Thornton (much of which is wholly unconnected with the measure of assessment) as well calculated (tracing as it did the agricultural history of the district through a series of years) to demonstrate the advanced state of agriculture in India They also consider that the settlement report fully established the injustice of the outcry regarding the enormous proportion of the produce of the country exacted by the Government as revenue, and they stated that it was proved by the tables of the settlement officer, that from 17 to 20 per cent, or an average of 20 per cent, on the produce, was the full amount taken by the Government, which exactly agrees with the one-fifth fixed as the Egyptian land-tax 3,500 years ago, and falls far below the much lauded moderate demand of Ukbar

88 They entered into a long speculative discussion, regarding the position and prospects of India, in respect to its advancement in social and scientific characteristics, the object of which appeared to be to prove that the absence of the knowledge and experience, by which alone the benefits of science can be appreciated or applied, has the effect of retarding that advancement which it is the duty of every good Government to promote They desired to demonstrate the necessity which existed for great works being undertaken by the State, and they urged upon Government the expediency of its coming forward as the sole possessor of the requisite knowledge, power and wealth, to effect the desired objects, namely, the construction of roads and canals

89 The Lieutenant-governor, in reviewing Mr Thornton's proceedings, expressed the opinion, that viewed as a scientific paper, embodying the results of the most patient and laborious inquiry, his report left nothing to be desired, and merited every encomium bestowed on it, but that considering it in the light of a document which is for a long series of years to be decisive of the rights and possessions of individuals, as well as of classes, it was not so satisfactory as the more simple reports of other officers

90 In the opinion of the Board as to the propriety of great works of public utility, such as canals and roads, being undertaken by Government, the Lieutenant-governor entirely concurred

91 With reference to the arrangements regarding the putwarrees, the Lieutenant-governor's approval and confirmation was qualified and conditional, as although he does not doubt the superior fitness of the individuals brought in by Mr Thornton's arrangement, he apprehended that they would be regarded too much as the officers of Government, instead of as servants of the zemindars or village communities, and he deprecates too direct or apparent an interference on the part of the executive in the minute affairs of the village

Coll 5, p 360

92 It is to be inferred from the following passage in the letter of the Commissioner Mr Franco, that the proceedings of the settlement officer (in the cases in which the decisions of the latter came before him on appeal) were confirmed and upheld rather from the belief that they were in accordance with the spirit and intentions of the orders and views of the revenue authorities, than from any conviction in his own mind of their propriety and justice —

"Mr Thornton had a bias generally in favour of the assamees' claims, and he always availed himself of the utmost that the law allowed in their favour, whereas I never considered their claims in the same light, and my opinions bear mostly in favour of the zemindaree gentry, whose profits, arising from their hitherto acknowledged property, have been materially affected In consequence, therefore, of this difference in our views, Mr Thornton was always particular in furnishing me with the details of each case , and as his proceedings were in accordance with the well-known sentiments of my superiors in the Revenue department, and never contrary to law, I was seldom called on to interfere in any other way than to confirm the order he had passed "

94 This district, the settlement of which was completed by Mr W H Tyler, and reported in your Revenue Narrative of 21 April 1843, appears to have suffered severely during the period of drought and famine in 1837–38 Nearly nine-tenths of the culturable land are represented to be now in actual cultivation, and no prospect is held out of any further improvement or increase of revenue on future revision

95. The present settlement has reference only to the eight pergunnahs named below,* the settlement of the other pergunnahs comprised in the zillah Muttra having been already confirmed by Government in the years 1833, 1835 and 1836

96. In several pergunnahs of this district, by reason of the calamity of 1838, or of pressure from previous over-assessment, the immediate demand of the full jumma with which the land may be eventually fairly chargeable, has been postponed for a term of years, during which the assessment is progressively to increase, until it reaches the amount at which it is

is to be fixed during the remainder of the lease The effect of this arrangement is, in many cases, a decrease in the commencement, and an ultimate permanent increase on the amount of the previous assessment

97 The financial result of the settlement of the eight pergunnahs under notice gives an average acre rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation of Rs 1 10 2

98 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 5,50,548 rupees, showing an ultimate increase on the previous assessment of 63,174 rupees

99 The proceedings in reference to the settlement of this district appear to have given rise to less discussion than the measures adopted in other districts No large talookahs have been partitioned Mr Tyler's measures seem to have given much satisfaction, and to have been approved and confirmed with no opposition and little comment.

100 The great extent of maafee holdings is one of the chief points for notice in this district In the pergunnah of Muttra they are particularly numerous

101 The whole of the maafee lands in the pergunnah in question, from not having been duly registered, were considered liable to resumption, but it was not thought advisable to act strictly on the letter of the law, as it appeared that the greater part of them had been held free of rent for very many years, and had in no way been interfered with by former Governments, on account of the religious character of the parties to whom the grants were originally made Moreover, it was thought that their immediate resumption would cause great distress, and excite much discontent and ill-feeling towards Government Mr Tyler, therefore, appears to have adopted a middle course, by giving the lands so situated the benefit of the modified rules of 22 August 1838, regarding maafee tenures, although, strictly speaking, the rules in question applied only to registered maafee grants

102 Grants made for the maintenance and support of religious institutions, which he proposed to relinquish in perpetuity for the support of the temples

Mr T. C Robertson

103 The Lieutenant-governor * not only concurred in the justice of Mr Tyler's position, that the maafee tenures in question, owing to the religious purposes to which in many instances the proceeds are devoted, should not be dealt with according to the exact letter of the law, but it was declared that they should be treated with more than ordinary leniency, and that all the tenures should be admitted to the benefit of registry All those connected with religious institutions are to be exempt from inquiry, so long as the proceeds are applied to the maintenance of the establishments for which they are assigned, and are in no case to be resumed without the previous sanction of Government

104 Besides the religious grants, there were three other classes of tenures, viz —

> 1st "Grants held by persons who have been in uninterrupted possession from a period long antecedent to the British rule
> 2d "Grants held by persons who have come into possession since the British rule, and held upwards of 30 years
> 3d "Grants held by persons who have entered in possession within 30 years"

105 Of these grants, the two first classes have been continued in possession of the incumbents for their lives, and declared subject to inquiry on lapse, but they are not to be resumed without the previous orders of Government, in the event of there being any heirs of the body to the present incumbent

106 The remaining class has been settled with the present incumbents at half-rates

107 The settlement has been fixed for a period of 30 years, and at the recommendation of the Sudder Board, authority has been given for the extension of the leases of all previously settled pergunnahs to a like period of 30 years

AGRA DISTRICT

108 The settlement of the district of Agra was effected by Mr. Mansell, with the exception of a single pergunnah and a mehal, which were assessed by Mr Alexander, and the reports of both those gentlemen accompanied your Revenue Narrative, dated 21st April 1842

109 It appears, from the proceedings, that it has been found necessary, in the eight pergunnahs revised by Mr Mansell, to make a reduction of upwards of 50,000 rupees on the revision, and that it is considered that no increase of revenue can at any time be expected Nine-tenths of the whole culturable area are stated to be in actual cultivation, and the revenue as high as is consistent with agricultural prosperity

110 The capability of Agra and its neighbourhood to bear a higher rate of assessment than the soil in other parts, is specially noticed by Mr Mansell, and is ascribed to the fact that the market affords a much higher price to the farmer for his grain than in Delhi, Rohilcund and the Upper Doab, while the high rents obtaining in the district are attributed to the proceedings of Government in the year of famine, which, by drawing into and circulating in this district abundant supplies from every quarter prevented that distress and consequent fall in rents which ensued from that calamity in other districts

111 Much stress appears to be laid on the fact that Agra is the only district in which an attempt has been made to fix the rate of rent of ryots having a right of occupancy, bearing a certain relation to the amount of the Government demand Mr Mansell having made a compact with the zemindars, that the general rate to be demanded from the cultivators who had a right of occupation should not exceed by more than one-half the jumma or demand of Government for that class of lands

112 The financial result of the settlement gives an average acre-rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation of Rs 2 2 5

113 The total revised jumma amounts to 15,54,010 rupees, and exhibits a decrease on the previous assessment of 64,524 rupees

114 We perceive, from the proceedings in this district in reference to the resumption of the unregistered lands, that much difficulty arose in disposing of the cases of certain holdings of less than 10 beegahs, which were decided on before the promulgation of the orders exempting such lands from the operation of the resumption laws, from an uncertainty whether or not those orders should be allowed retrospective effect

115 The Lieutenant-governor has directed that every case in which the operation of those laws presses heavily shall be specially considered, and though alive to the inconvenience of giving retrospective effect to the subsequent modified orders, he directed that the claims of the parties should receive indulgent consideration

116 The proceedings of a judicial character in the district involved the disposal of several talookahs Of these, the largest was that of Sookee Misser, in the pergunnah Futtehabad This individual, it appears, had, under the native government, been a farmer on a small scale, who was employed to look after unproductive and deserted estates, for which duty he received an allowance of upwards of 1,100 rupees per annum, throughout the Mahratta rule Being successful, he was promoted, and received, from time to time, villages which he was allowed to hold in farm, until, in the course of years, his holdings aggregated 20 villages, which were assessable with a jumma of from 20,000 rupees to 25,000 rupees He died in 1820, and nearly 40 years' undisturbed possession encouraged his heirs to claim the entire proprietary right This claim has been disallowed, and the talookah resumed and partitioned Mr Mansell states, at the same time, that the services of Sookee Misser deserve acknowledgement, and that the resumption of the talookah at this late hour is felt more by the family than if they had been deprived of it at the conquest

117. A talookdarree allowance has been awarded to the family, at the rate of 18 per cent from the rent assets, dependent, however, on the relinquishment by the heirs of a long pending and partly admitted claim, amounting to 13,222 rupees, on the villages of the talookah

118. In the case of the village of Gojpoorah, also in the pergunnah of Futtehabad, the same course was recommended by the settlement officer as in the case above cited, viz, the grant in perpetuity of an allowance of 18 per cent on the rent assets to the party in possession The dispossession is in this case also viewed by the party interested as a grievance and hardship, after 40 years' occupancy, but the right of the talookdar is stated by Mr Mansell to be even less than that of Sookee Misser, the estate being held under a mortgage from Kestoram, a member of the once powerful Buddeysura family.

119 The amount of the proposed Huck talookdarree is 141 rupees, being 18 per cent. on the real assets, and is recommended in consideration of the fallen fortunes of the family.

120. In the case under review, the measures of the settlement officer have been matter of discussion. On the one hand, it is alleged by Mr. Mansell that the character of the property, and the circumstances attending its present tenure, were not such as to constitute a permanent hereditary claim on the part of the heirs of the original possessor, although he was of opinion that the present incumbents were justly entitled to the liberal scale of compensation proposed by him

Mr R N C Hamilton, Commissioner of Agra. Coll, p 364

121 On the other hand, while it is not contended that a permanent proprietary right to the tenure does exist, a striking inconsistency is stated to characterise a decision, by which a talookdar is declared to have no rights in the property of which he is deprived, and yet to be entitled to 18 per cent on the jumma of the villages which formed his talookah. In such a case it is urged that the Government, out of the general resources, and not the village proprietary, should be taxed for the support of the party dispossessed.

FURRUCKABAD DISTRICT

122 The proceedings having reference to this district accompanied your Revenue Narrative, dated 11th April 1842, No 2 The completion of the settlement was entrusted to Mr Robinson, whose measures embraced the pergunnahs named below,* and were in course of completion from the year 1837 to 1840 inclusive Part of the district, which, like all others in the Agra division, has suffered much from the drought of 1837-8, is represented to be fully cultivated and assessed, while certain pergunnahs, it is stated, should yield an increase of revision

123 The financial result of the settlement of the 11 pergunnahs under notice shows an average rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation of Rs 2 6 per acre.

124 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 9,21,739 rupees, being a decrease on the previous assessment of 47,455 rupees

125 The engagements proposed by Mr Robinson appear to have been very generally accepted In the tehsildarree of Imrutpore, the zemindars demurred to engage for 30 years, in consequence of the risk to which agriculture is there exposed by the inundations of the Ganges and Ram Gunga They were subsequently induced to sign; but it was stipulated that if at any time the soil should be deteriorated or improved by the action of the river to the extent of 10 per cent, either the Government or the zemindars might claim a revision of settlement

126 In some estates held under farming leases, Mr Robinson has not allowed the reduction of assessment to the farmer, but has fixed it to commence from the termination of his engagement, on the ground that in the farmer's engagement no stipulation for such revision was made, the Commissioner was of opinion that the reduction should be made to the farmer, who, in his turn, should be required to reduce his rent to his assamees in proportion to the reduction he receives on his jumma, a failure so to do being held to involve the exaction of the full demand

127 This latter view of the case was not concurred in by the Sudder Board, who were of opinion that the farmer's claim goes no further than to entitle him to the usual return for his money advanced, and a fair remuneration for his time and trouble · advantages which they consider he will doubtless have secured to himself by his original engagements

128 The Lieutenant-governor decided otherwise, and while conceding the point that farmers holding under lease have no claim in law to the benefit of a reduction of jumma consequent on a revision of settlement, where no stipulation to that effect is contained in the leases, he was of opinion that a liberal and equitable view of the case demands that the farmer should not be forced to fulfil any engagement which is proved, on inquiry, to subject

him to loss, or to leave him no hope of profit The duty of the settlement officer being, he urged, to fix, after due inquiry, the limit of the Government demand, any exaction beyond that limit must assume the nature of a rack-rent, and act injuriously in the long run on all parties, as any higher demand from the farmer than the lands he leases are capable of yielding, or should fairly be chargeable with, would induce him to secure himself against loss or disappointment by over-exaction from his under-tenants or ryots

129 The release in perpetuity of five maafee tenures has been authorised, three of which are in the Pergunnah of Kemonje, the proceeds being devoted to the purposes of education, and two in the Pergunnah of Putteealee, the proceeds of which are appropriated to services connected with the religious observances of the inhabitants

130 The prosperous condition of the Pergunnah of Tuppah Puhara is specially brought to notice, as indicating not only the fertility of the soil, but the industrious habits and skilful husbandry of the agricultural community

131 The Lieutenant-governor was of opinion that the cultivators merited some marked encouragement, and directed that the amount of the increase obtained on the new assessment should be relinquished The Sudder Board thought the indulgence was unnecessary, the claims of the cultivators having been taken into consideration at the time of the jumma being fixed The Lieutenant-governor, on re-consideration, waived the enforcement of his order, and acquiesced in the view of the Board

132 The Nuwab of Furruckabad remonstrated against the resumption of certain lakheraj tenures granted by the Nawab Moozuffer Jung to certain relatives for their maintenance, in lieu of zehuk pensions, which were allowed to other members of the family, and which are continued hereditary under the British Government The grants were resumed on the grounds that they were not specified in the articles of the treaty made with the Nawab Nassir Jung, that they are not registered, and that the incumbents had no sunnud to produce showing hereditary right

133 The holders of these lands had been in possession for periods varying from 20 to 50 years The act of resumption was stated to have deprived them of their only means of subsistence, and reduced them to indigence The Nuwab earnestly appealed for the continuance of the tenures

134 The VIIIth Article of the Treaty with the Nuwab of Furruckabad in 1802, stipulated that "the rent-free lands, the daily and yearly pensions, and the jagheers, shall be continued, if, upon a fair question, they shall appear to have been established previously to the death of Moozuffer Jung"

135 The decision of the Sudder Board, in the first instance, was, that the claimants had no right in law, the tenures having been properly and legally resumed, and the Governor-general in 1838 (as stated in the précis drawn up by Mr Thomason, dated 9th October 1841) decided "that the resumptions should be maintained, but pensions given if necessary"

136 Subsequently to this date, the question of the resumption of the talookah of Amotee in the Pergunnah Tuppah Puhara, was brought under notice The talookah, which is large and valuable, and is one of those belonging to the Furruckabad family, had been resumed as unregistered in 1837, and the Sudder Board declared their opinion that the settlement officer had pursued the proper course, and that the jagheer was clearly subject to resumption The grounds of their decision were the fact of the non-registry of the property, and of its having been bequeathed to the actual occupants by a party having no right to make the bequest The correspondence in reference to this talookah was not brought to any satisfactory conclusion until May 1840, when the Governor-general, on a review of the whole proceedings, decided in favour of the claimants, and ordered that the property should be placed in the position in which it stood previously to the resumption, the sums realized since the date of its first attachment being made over for the benefit of the parties entitled thereto

137 Certain questions, having reference to the restoration of this jagheer, were raised in the latter end of 1841

139 The plea of non-registry he held to be by no means sufficient to warrant resumption in the case of grants held under treaty, it being unlikely that parties holding lands so guaranteed, would suppose anything more necessary to strengthen their right to possession

140 He disputed the interpretation sought to be given to the Article of the Treaty, under which it was argued that any tenures might be resumed which were not made hereditary by the original grants He considered that the object of the British Government in the treaty was to provide for the maintenance of the family, and that this purpose would not admit a construction of the treaty by which the family would be reduced to destitution, and that the Article in question, construed not singly in itself, but, with regard to the general spirit of the entire treaty, showed that the grants in question were intended as a boon to a fallen family, to be at once a respectable provision for them, and a compensation for what they had lost He accordingly decided that all resumptions which have taken place of grants made before the death of Moozuffer Jung were clearly and decidedly at variance with the plain meaning and wording, as well as with the spirit of the whole treaty, and directed that the holdings in question should be immediately and unconditionally released

MYNPOOREE DISTRICT

141 The voluminous papers relating to the settlement of this district have been transmitted with your Revenue Narratives, dated respectively the 12th February, 21st April and 31st October 1842

142 The settlement was entrusted to Mr Edmonstone, whose labours extend over two seasons, viz, 1839 and 1840, and are made the subject of two separate reports, detailing his proceedings in each of those years

143 The district of Mynpooree is among those which suffered severely from the drought of 1838, particularly in that portion of it in which irrigation is deficient, but, on the whole, it would appear to be a fertile, well irrigated and flourishing district

144 The financial result of the settlement gives an average acre rate of assessment on the land in actual cultivation, of Rs 2 4⅔

145 The amount of the revised jumma for the whole district is 13,82,132 rupees, and exhibits an increase on the previous assessment of 49,072 rupees.

146 Much discussion arose on the justice and expediency of the arrangements adopted in reference to the talookah of Munchunnah The party whose interests were involved (the Rajah of Mynpooree) petitioned against the settlement proposed

147 This talookah had been held in hereditary possession by the Rajahs of Mynpooree since the accession of the British Government to the supremacy of the North-Western Provinces The family is one of antiquity and respectability, and is stated to have been distinguished for its loyalty to the British authority, and for the assistance rendered during the Mahratta war, and in the unsettled state of the country at that time

148 The actual Rajah was described as nearly imbecile, and totally incompetent to manage landed property so extensive as that possessed by him, with any degree of efficiency. He was stated to be surrounded by agents of the worst character, who, in his name, had been guilty of various flagrant acts of oppression, and had violated the rights of subordinate village communities

149 This maladministration of his estate, and an alleged priority of claim on the part of certain of the village communities, were assigned by Mr Edmonstone as his reasons for including the Rajah from the management

150 Out of 189 villages composing the talookah of Munchunnah, the Rajah was, under the settlement arrangement, recorded proprietor of only 51 The above were settled with him as zemindar, the remainder were settled with village zemindars, who were allowed to engage with Government direct

151 In addition to the rental of the villages settled with himself, the Rajah was granted a huk talookdarree, or a per-centage, at the rate of 18 per cent, on the estimated rentals of those which passed from him, amounting to 27,625 rupees per annum

152 Mr Hamilton, the Commissioner, strongly opposed the measure, he was of opinion that the value of landed possessions, and the importance attached to them, could never be made up by a money allowance, that the imbecility of the Rajah, if affording a justification for his being relieved from the management of his estate, could be none for depriving the family of their inheritance, and that it was inconsistent to denounce as oppressive, in a native ruler, the same measures of sale and dispossession which were adopted by our own Government towards revenue defaulters

153 The Board dissented from the views of the Commissioner, and maintained the integrity of the settlement arrangements

154 The Lieutenant-governor differed from the settlement officer and from the Board He noticed "the prevailing and perhaps excessive readiness to reduce extensive properties into minute portions, and to substitute, whenever there was an opportunity, a village community for an individual landholder," and suspended the confirmation of that portion of the settlement

155 Much correspondence ensued between the Lieutenant-governor and the Sudder Board, and, in conclusion, the Lieutenant-governor recorded his opinion, that no proof of the Rajah's mismanagement, such as could justify his exclusion, had been adduced, that the evidence in support of the proprietary claims of the zemindars was insufficient and inconclusive, that if the zemindars ever possessed the rights attributed to them, they had not been in the active enjoyment of them for upwards of a century, while the Rajah's claims had been admitted for more than four generations, that, admitting the inconvenience which might sometimes result from the recognition of the superior malgoosar, it would not be reconcilable with good feeling or justice to deal as the Board proposed to do, with one found in actual and long-acknowledged possession He condemned the practice of deciding cases of this nature on one invariable and generalizing principle, stated that he could discover no sufficient reason for excluding the Rajah of Mynpooree from the management of any of the villages composing the talook of Munchunnah; and finally withheld his confirmation of the settlement concluded with the village zemindars, directing the engagements to be taken from the talookdar

ETAWAH DISTRICT.

156 This district was settled by Mr. M. R. Gubbins, whose report was forwarded with your Revenue Narrative, dated 21st April 1842 The district appears to have suffered much, both from over-assessment, and from the drought of the year 1837–38 Mr. Bird considered that it was fully cultivated, and that no future increase was to be expected

157 The striking characteristic of the settlement is the large reduction of the jumma in all the pergunnahs

158 It was considered that this reduction was imperatively required by the depressed state of the district under the previous high assessments, which had been repeatedly enhanced, and by a due regard to the ordinary vicissitudes of seasons and markets. Even with this reduction, the restoration of prosperity was still expected to depend on comparatively favourable seasons, seeing the impoverished condition of the agricultural community.

159 The financial result of the settlement gives an average acre rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation, of Rs 2 11 11.

160 The amount of the revised jumma for the whole zillah is fixed by the settlement, at 13,11,038 rupees, which shows a decrease on the previous assessment, of 1,58,163 rupees

161 In this district also, several of the large talookahs have been partitioned among the village communities, and huk talookdarree has been awarded to the talookdar

162 The most importunt of these talookdahs are those of Chukhurnuggur and Sehson in the Pergunnah Jambrest. The first of these talookahs had been, since the cession, settled with the Rajah of Chukhurnuggur, as zemindar, and the latter since F. 1214 (1807), with the same Rajah as talookdar During the settlement proceedings, claims were advanced to almost every village of both talookahs, and were at first strenuously opposed by the Rajah An allowance of 18 per cent on the gross assets were assigned to the Rajah in all cases where a biswadaree settlement was made Ten villages were thus settled. Mr Gubbins states, that subsequently to the settlement, the great difficulties the Rajah experienced in realizing the revenue from the parties in actual occupancy, induced him voluntarily to request that 16 other villages should be settled with the occupant parties as proprietors, subject to the same talookdarree allowance of 18 per cent

163 Mr Gubbins viewed these circumstances as tending to show that the general aversion of talookdars to the settlement proceedings would gradually cease. The Commissioner, on the contrary, considered that the Rajah's latter proceeding was attributable, not to his approbation of the system, but to the severity with which he had always been urged to pay up his heavy revenue, and the difficulties he had experienced in coercing his tenantry, chiefly his near relatives, causes which led him to think that it would be for his own advantage, after his right had been acknowledged, to transfer the collection to a Government officer, and content himself with a certain and fixed income Had his right not been conceded, the Commissioner states, he has reason to know that the Rajah would not have been content, but, as the case stands, the honour of his family has been preserved, and himself acknowledged the owner, and an arrangement effected, which is advantageous to him as a proprietor, and preserves his dignity as a raees

164 The Lieutenant-governor took the same view of the Rajah's proceedings, and stated that, had his rights not been first conceded, there is nothing in his conduct to warrant the supposition, that the arrangement now in force would have met his concurrence.

165 The large talookahs of Rooroo and Sehor are also brought prominently into notice

166 The talookdar's title in the properties in question was acquired by Government by purchase at auction, previously to the settlement, having been put up to sale for arrear of revenue In the former talookah, that of Rooroo, the settlement officer admitted the village communities to engage as proprietors for 31 mouzahs, and the remaining 30 mouzahs, which have been declared the property of the Rooroo Raj, have been leased in farm for a period of 15 years, subject to a talookdarree allowance, for the benefit of the Rajah In the talookah of Sehor, parties establishing a title have been recognised proprietors, on making payment of the proportionate share of the arrear of the talookah, and the mouzahs, to which no right has been admitted, and which it is presumed by Mr Gubbins, will be brought to sale, have been intermediately leased in farm for different periods, according to their several conditions

167 The Commissioner considered that these proceedings raised the question as to the nature and extent of the right acquired by Government in the purchase of talookdarree property, that on the one hand, the Sudder Board held the talookdarree right to be not a proprietary possession in the soil or zemindaree tenure, but only an office or lease for a term, subject to the will of the supreme power, in which view of the case, the Government would have acquired no new right, and that, on the other hand, the settlement proceedings were equivalent to a distinct admission, that a talookdar has a proprietary right, and the Commissioner urged that, however justly the talookdars in Etawah might have been deprived of their talookahs for default, they ought to be allowed an opportunity of recovering their position in life, and that, provided they could pay up the proportionate arrears in those villages, in which no other proprietary right may have been recognised, they might be permitted to engage for such mouzahs as zemindars, notwithstanding the sale By such concession, he represented, their families would be saved from extinction, and Government, without any infraction of principle, or any injustice to individuals, would perform a humane and popular act

168 The Sudder Board declared their opinion, that any "land or any talookah which is not possessed by persons having an antagonist title, independent of and superior to that of the talookdar, is the talookdar's zemindaree That the talookdarree right over the mouzahs, which are the private property of other parties, and the zemindarree right in the lands which have no other owner, is the property of the talookdar" Consequently, any party purchasing a talook put up to auction for arrears of revenue, under the regulations, purchases what has been above defined, viz, the talookdarree right in mouzahs having having separate and independent proprietors, and zemindarree right in those of which, there being no antagonist title, the property rests in the talookdars

169 The Board professed their willingness to acquiesce in any measure of mercy which the Government might wish to extend to the late possessors of the talookahs in question, provided the end were not obtained "by stultifying their views" and the Lieutenant-governor, adverting to the heavy assessment under which the district had laboured, and to the claims of the family of the Rajah of Sehpor, whose entire property had been sold, subsequent to the year of drought and famine, for arrears of revenue, directed that the Rajah should be admitted to engagements for all villages in which no other proprietary right had been established, on the payment of the arrears recorded against each, and further that he should be allowed a reasonable period for payment of the arrears In like manner, he directed the Rajah of Rooroo to be recorded as zemindar in all unowned or new villages of the talookah

170 The settlement officer (in reference to the Pergunnah of Luckra) described the extreme poverty of the ryots their inability to lay by anything in a season of plenty and their consequent dependence, at a period of famine, on the forbearance of the zemindar or the Government The Commissioner thought that such facts tended to throw doubt on the system which subdivides properties and estates into small fractional portions, under several responsibilities, of individuals without capital, and on the propriety of the measures by which the large estates or talookdarrees have been broken up

171. The Board denied the alleged tendency of the settlement proceedings to subdivide "estates and properties into small fractional portions," alleging that the real cause of the subdivision of so many putteedaree properties has been the maintenance, in all revenue and many judicial concerns in times past, of the principle of combined joint and several responsibility.

BIJNOUR DISTRICT

173 The proceedings in relation to this district accompanied your Revenue Narrative, dated 11 April 1842 The district comprises the pergunnahs noted below†, none of them being considered fully cultivated, the settlement will, it is stated, require revision at the end of the present term, which is fixed at 20 years The measures reported are the result of the labours of five or six different settlement officers, and extend over a period of seven years, viz, from 1835 to 1841, inclusive

176. It was generally considered that previous assessments had been too high, with reference to the actual state of cultivation, and the length of time and number of persons employed in the settlements appear to have resulted in an inequality of assessment throughout the district, which can only be remedied when the period of revision shall arrive.

177 Mr Allen's settlement of the Pergunnah of Nuggeenah was not recommended for sanction by the Commissioner (Mr Conolly), in consequence of the inaccuracy and insufficiency of the data furnished The Commissioner's disapproval of the settlement was grounded on his opinion that the assessment was insufficient with reference to the capabilities of the soil, and that the reductions granted by the settlement officer were not called for by the condition of the pergunnah The Board, on the other hand, strongly objected to any enhancement of revenue, on the ground that Mr Conolly appeared to have been ignorant of the degree of pressure previously endured from over-assessment and mismanagement,—evils for which they state that " the only real remedy is a much lower demand than would otherwise have been requisite for a considerable course of future years "

178 The Government finally determined not to disturb, after a lapse of five years, arrangements, which the people had fairly concluded would exempt them from any further demand for twenty years

179 Some objections were taken to the settlements of other pergunnahs; but as it was admitted that the assessments were moderate, the arrangements were not disturbed

181 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 8,27,553 rupees, which gives an increase on the previous assessment of 23,503 rupees

MORADABAD DISTRICT

182 The proceedings connected with the settlement of this district were forwarded with the Revenue Narrative, dated 10th May 1846, No 2, par 133 to 143.

183 The district is composed of the pergunnahs named below.* Of these the first named eleven were settled between the years 1836 and 1840, and, when reported, the Commissioner considered the details very imperfect, and returned them for correction before submitting them to the Board.

184. The settlement officer, Mr Money, appears generally to have conducted his proceedings in strict conformity with the system laid down in the settlement circular, but he states that he was at first much impeded by the inaccuracy of the Kusreh survey returns, they are represented by him to have been wholly valueless, as a means of affording data regarding the classification of soils, irrigated and unirrigated lands, and on all points of information required in fixing the assessed rates

185 In the portion of the district which is the subject of Mr Money s second report, the Commissioner received numerous appeals against the settlement in various pergunnahs In the Hussimpore pergunnahs, a large number of zemindars made a special appeal, which was embodied in sixty-seven different petitions, having reference to 253 estates It was urged that the present assessment was much too high, and that the prospective increasing jummas (or russud) were unjust, land being put down as culturable, which was too poor to afford a fair return for labour. The Commissioner continuing to be, as he states, "overwhelmed with petitions," found it necessary to make a visit to Moradabad, to satisfy himself of the facts of the case, by a personal conference with the local officers and the parties concerned. Having done so, he took on himself to make all the arrangements properly coming within the province of the settlement officer, rather than of the revising authority The plan adopted by him was to call up each petitioner to state his objections to the settlement, vivâ voce, and to form a punchayet of four or five of the principal zemindars, who were referred to in all case of doubt or difficulty

186 The Commissioner explains the grounds of his having interfered in so marked a manner in the proceedings of the settlement officer He considers him to have committed two serious errors first, in having relied too exclusively on the data furnished by his deputy, and omitted to make personal inquiries, which would have shown how much the estimates framed from those data were exaggerated, and secondly, in not having allowed the zemindars in many districts that free and unreserved communication with himself, so essential on the part of a settlement officer, not only for the purpose of satisfying the people, but for that of arriving at a correct judgment in fixing the Government demand Mr Conolly admits that Mr Money had great difficulties to contend with, from the fact, that no confidence could be placed in the survey returns; but this, he urges, made it only the more incumbent on him to avail himself of every other source of information within his reach.

187. The result of the Commissioner's investigation was to convince him that the objections raised to the settlement were valid. The charge of over-assessment, though difficult to substantiate satisfactorily, he deemed to be well-founded, and he considered russud jummas totally inapplicable to lands circumstanced as those in question He, therefore, desired Mr Money to strike off their russud jummas entirely, and to limit his total increase of assessment on the Hussimpore pergunnahs to 20,000 or 25,000 rupees over the old jumma

Mr Money, though unconvinced that his rates were too high, proceeded to modify his assessment, in accordance with the Commissioner's wish His revised proceedings he finally submitted, with the entire confidence that his settlement was moderate He stated, that the revised assessment commenced taking effect from 1245 F (1838) and that from that period up to the date of his report (19 July 1843), the settlement of only one estate had broken down. In the instance in question, the immediate cause of the balances was stated by him to be that a great number of the mokuddums had been implicated in a case of dacoity He represented that in consequence of the system of granting extended reductions, large balances are allowed to accrue in a pergunnah, with the concurrence of the tehsildar, in the belief that the fact of their so accruing would lead to a reduction of jumma, and he urged that balances are not by any means necessarily a proof of over-assessment, though often erroneously so considered.

188 Some difference of opinion arose between the different authorities, regarding the measures adopted in Pergunnah Kusba Amooha, in reference to the maafee lands contained therein. The total amount of maafee land recorded in the registers was 3,851 beegahs (2,000 acres), which were registered as one mehal, in the name of three parties (syuds), but on investigation, no one portion was found to answer to the entry The whole was split up into upwards of 1,000 small tenures, occupied by a number of maafeedars of all castes, all of whom insisted that their tenures formed part of the registered area It being impossible to identify any one, or any number of such holdings with the registered area, the whole were summarily resumed Mr Money made no separate lists of the several tenures, but incorporated

porated them, in the aggregate, with the Khalsa area, and assessed them all at four annas per cutcha beegah Great complaints were made of this proceeding, which was appealed against Pending the appeal, Mr Conolly, the Commissioner, directed that the collection of the assessment on the unregistered land should be postponed He strongly recommended that the assessment should be confined to the Khalsah portion, and that the resumption of the other portion should be given up He stated that it was impossible to say by what means the maafee land came into possession of the persons holding it, or to account for one portion of it only having been registered, but he urged there was no reason to doubt that the whole of the tenures had been occupied by their present owners, and held rent-free from a period anterior to the British rule He considered that the proposed assessment, light as it was, would never be realized, and that the attempt to collect it would cause much dissatisfaction and distress

189 The Board coincided with the Commissioner in his recommendation that these resumptions should be abandoned, but the Lieutenant-governor did not concur in the propriety of such a course It did not appear to him to be necessary to release the whole of the lands in question from assessment, although he was willing to release the holdings under 10 beegahs, which were devoted to charitable and religious purposes All those lands also, he decided, might be reported for the favourable consideration of Government, in which the holders might be able to show proof, amounting to reasonable probability, that they derived their title from the syuds, in whose name the 3,851 beegahs alluded to were registered, but all the remainder, he decided, should remain subject to the revenue fixed on them by the settlement officer

190 In confirming the settlement, the Lieutenant-governor expressed his conviction that the jumma, as finally fixed, was generally fair and equitable, but he animadverted strongly on the incompleteness of the settlement, and the procrastination of Mr. Money in bringing his proceedings to a close

192 The amount of the revised jumma is 13,34,634 rupees, and exhibits an increase in the previous assessment of 1,07,270 rupees

BUDAON DISTRICT

193. This district comprises 18 pergunnahs, six of which were settled at different periods, and the settlements finally confirmed during the years 1836 and 1837

194. The papers forwarded with the Revenue Narrative, dated 21st April 1843, relate to the remaining pergunnahs, which are specified below * They appear to have suffered largely from previous over-assessment

195 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma of the pergunnahs included in the proceedings under review, is 5,20,714 rupees, being a decrease of 25,681 rupees on the amount of the previous assessment.

196 The pergunnah of Islamnuggur was one of six settled by Mr Brown in 1835 It was found necessary to revise that settlement The revision was completed by Mr Timmins

197 It appears that Mr Brown increased the jumma from 73,366 rupees to 76,065 rupees, but the new assessment had never been realized, and a comparison of the rates with those of adjoining pergunnahs showed that they were too high

198 Mr Timmins reduced the assessment to 67,476 rupees, which was something less than the average of actual collections for the previous 10 years

PILLIBHEET DISTRICT.

199. The settlement of this district was reported in the Revenue Narrative, dated 11th April 1842

200 The proceedings which were conducted by Mr Head relate to the six pergunnahs named below † Of these the three first only have been settled under the system established by the Board, the three latter having been settled under a special arrangement with the Rajah Gomaun Singh and his heirs

201 The district is reported to have been formerly much over-assessed, but to have received ample relief under the present settlement.

202 The three pergunnahs settled with Rajah Gomaun Singh are those of Roodeepore, Gudderpore, Kilpooree The two first were made over to the Rajah in zemindarree, and the latter on a farming lease

3 In the year 1834, Rajah Gomaun Singh desired to enter into a negotiation with ernment to surrender his jagheer of Talookah Chacheyat in exchange for a part of these unnahs, such an arrangement was however not deemed desirable, but the pergunnahs of Roodeepore and Gudderpore were, in consideration of his high character, made over in hereditary zemindarree to the Rajah

204 The revenue was fixed for 10 years at the moderate amount of 16,000 rupees and certain terms were agreed upon, the main points of which were That the settlement should be revised at periods of 15 years, that no increase should at any time be taken which should not leave the Rajah and his heirs a clear surplus profit of 40 per cent, that the Rajah should not transfer the property out of his own family without the sanction of Government, that certain farmers who had fulfilled their engagements should not be interfered with, but should be allowed to renew their leases on the usual terms; and that all private rights previously existing should be maintained

205 Subsequently, the Ilaka of Kilpoorie having fallen in, a lease of that pergunnah was granted to the Rajah, as in a farm, for 20 years, at little more than a quit-rent.

206 Under the arrangement previously noticed, Rajah Seo Raj Sing, the son of Rajah Gomaun Singh, claimed the Talookah Nanikmutta, of which he stated that his family for years had hereditary possession, and that his father and grandfather had expended thousands of rupees on the talookah and had never been in arrears, and he complained that Mr Robinson, the commissioner, had upset the settlement and had entered into arrangements with the mocuddums for a period of 30 years, and for a jumma less by 4,000 rupees than that paid by his family

207 The Board stated that the Rajah's family had no zemindarree right whatever in the lands referred to, nor has such right ever been acknowledged as far as they could ascertain. They considered that there was no objection to the Pergunnah of Kilpooree being conferred on the family on the same terms as those on which Gudderpore and Roodeepore were assigned, if Government deemed such a course advisable, and they stated, that under such arrangement, the Rajah would have a tract of country under his management not falling far short of 200,000 acres, and sufficient to employ the means and energies of his family for generations to come

208 The settlement of the talookah claimed was made by Mr Robinson, with a community of Tharoos, who are stated to be the only people capable of residing in that particular part of the country, on account of its extreme insalubrity The arrangement was satisfactory to the Tharoos, and was, in the opinion of the Board, likely to conduce to clearing and populating a part of the country which it had not only been found hitherto impossible to improve, but which had been in a state of continual deterioration, and as the people in question, who are described as the "native burghers of a desert city," and as the only persons whose lives are safe in the climate, had expressed the desire to undertake the cultivation of the tract at their own risk, and made all their arrangements for mutual assistance and self-government, the Board were of opinion that they ought not to be cramped in their undertaking by any official control.

209 Under the foregoing explanation, the Government sanctioned the proceedings of the Board in reference to the talookah of Nanikmutta, and dismissed the petition of Rajah Seo Raj Singh

210 The financial result of the settlement of the three pergunnahs assessed by Mr. Head, shows an average acre rate of assessment of Rs 2 0 1 on cultivation •

211 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 3,75,897 rupees, which gives a decrease on the nominal amount previously borne on the record, but never realized, of 94,956 rupees.

BAREILLY DISTRICT

212 The settlement of this district was reported on the 15th October 1840 The proceedings were conducted and completed by Mr Muir, and comprised the pergunnahs named below* which have been settled for a period of 30 years from 1837.

213 The district generally is reported to have been over-assessed, and many parts of it to have suffered severely from the drought of 1837-8.

214 The settlement made a reduction in the jumma of every pergunnah in the district, except Talook Bulleeah

215. The settlement officer stated that the condition of the majority of the people in many pergunnahs, was such as to convince him that they were suffering severely from over-assessment, and though some had been able to struggle against their difficulties, many were miserably poor, and few in comfortable circumstances Where he found the people suffering from the pressure of the existing jumma, he granted reductions to meet the exigency of their cases, and though many estates appeared to be moderately and even lightly assessed, he in no case considered it fair or safe to impose any prospective increase Where the assessment was moderate, the lightness of the rates accounted for the increase of cultivation effected since the previous settlement To have increased the jummas prospectively from the expiration of the existing leases, would have been calculated, he considered, to check improvement, and would have been an encroachment on the profits of capital expended in reliance on the permanency of the provisions of Regulation VII of 1822

216 The financial result of the settlement shows an average acre rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation, of Rs. 1. 15. 7.

217. The amount of the revised jumma is 10,07,062 rupees, and exhibits a decrease on the previous assessment of 67,810 rupees.

SHAHJEHANPORE DISTRICT

218 The papers connected with the settlement of the pergunnahs named below* were forwarded with the Revenue Narratives of the 15th October 1840 and 28th July 1841, respectively,

219 The district is reported by Mr Bird to be very lightly assessed, and to be in a very flourishing condition, having escaped the over-assessment from which other districts had suffered in times past

220 The latter part of this statement is not, however, borne out by the report of the settlement officer (Mr. Muir), who, on the contrary, alleges that he found all the pergunnahs labouring under the pressure of a very heavy assessment, and the great mass of the proprietors in extreme indigence.

221 The circumstances of the district are represented to differ but little, as regards their main features, from those of the district of Bareilly The process by which Mr Muir obtained his results is adverted to by the Board, as well calculated to show the practical and beneficial working of that portion of the system of settlement which consists in calling in the aid of the people themselves in arranging the detailed distribution of the Government demand, and in adjusting all points affecting either existing or contingent interests.

* Khera Bhujeha, Julalpore, Muranpore, Murraowree, Tilhur, Negohee, Mehrabad, Shahjehanpore, Buragaon, Powainee, Khotar, Poorumpore

222 The financial result of the settlement gives an average acre rate on the area in actual cultivation of Rs 1 9

223 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 10,27,075 rupees, which shows a reduction, as compared with the previous assessment, of 67,969 rupees

224 Mr Muir's measures appear to have given satisfaction, both to the revising authorities and the people, excepting in the instances of the Ranee of Powainee and the Rajah of Khotar

225 The pergunnah of Powainee was found to be so inferior in the character of its soil in many parts, as to render it necessary to fix the assessment far below what had been estimated as a very moderate average rate A reduction amounting to 19,182 rupees, or nearly 11 per cent, was therefore granted in this pergunnah alone

226 At the cession, the pergunnah was settled with Rajah Rugonauth Singh, who subsequently gave up a considerable portion of it, retaining only the most fertile and flourishing villages, which still fôrm the talookah of his widow This individual was found recorded as the zemindar of the villages in the talookah, but Mr Muir's inquiries led him to the conclusion that the occupant village mocuddums were the real proprietors of the land, and the Ranee only a talookdar, and that village settlements should be made with the mocuddums, and a malikanah or nankah allowance provided for the Ranee

227 A difficulty, however, presented itself to this arrangement, viz, that the settlement of the talookah according to Regulation VII of 1822, made with the Ranee as zemindar, and confirmed by Government, had still some years to run Mr. Muir was, however, of opinion that it was highly inexpedient that the management of the talookah should remain in her hands He represented that acts of an arbitrary and oppressive character, affecting injuriously the rights of the proprietors, were exercised habitually by the parties acting as managers of the Elaqua on the Ranee's behalf, to an extent justifying special authoritative interference, and he urged strongly the impolicy of prolonging a talookdarree settlement, the effects of which had been so destructive to the rights of the people and village communities He therefore submitted that, notwithstanding the Ranee's lease had got a few years to run, the talookah, until the Regulation VII leases expire, should be taken under the Court of Wards, which would enable him to make village settlements in farm for the remaining term of the Ranee's lease, and after its expiring, to take engagements from the mocuddums as proprietors for the whole period of the pergunnah settlement.

228 Mr Davidson, the officiating Commissioner, while confirming to the fullest extent the statements of Mr Muir, as to the injury and oppression inflicted on the village communities by the Ranee, was of opinion that the necessary protection might be afforded to the proprietors without having recourse to the measure of placing the Elaqua under the Court of Wards

229 The Board were of a different opinion, and, in accordance with their directions, the estates of the Ranee were put under the Court of Wards, and, with the exception of 15 villages, proposed to be left in her management, for her personal convenience, were sub-let to the parties considered best entitled to engage with Government.

230 Mr Rose, on whom, in consequence of Mr Muir's death, devolved the duty of completing and reporting on the settlements, stated that the arrangements as regards the jumma, and allowances of the talookdar, having been made by his predecessor, he thought it right to submit them as he found them, but that it appeared to him to be open to question whether, as it was proposed to give immediate effect to the acknowledgment of the rights of the proprietary mocuddums, and thereby materially alter one part of the Regulation VII settlement, it was quite fair to insist on the Ranee's fulfilling her part of her engagement with regard to the assessment

231 Mr. Rose was informed, in reply, by the Commissioner, that as the only ground on which the jumma of Regulation VII could be exacted from the Ranee was no longer tenable, after depriving her of the management, no deductions could properly be made from the Ranee's malikana on account of Regulation VII of 1822; and that the balance remaining at the end of the year should form a reduction from the settlement, and all sums already deducted from the malikana be refunded

232 These were the preliminary proceedings in a case very important in its principles and details, and the subject of much still incomplete litigation. It has been already noticed in our despatches noted in the margin, and will again necessarily come before us when finally decided by the courts

January 29, 1851,
par 41.

233 The pergunnah of Khotar had been held in farm by Rajah Khoshall Singh, but the Rajah claimed the proprietary right to the entire pergunnah The Sudder Board stated, "It has been admitted and recorded repeatedly that he had no right or possession by virtue of which he could claim to engage for the entire pergunnah."

234 The Rajah was represented as a person of the worst character, a protector of, and participator with, gangs of professed robbers, and as having used all his influence to retard the progress of improvement and civilization The pergunnah consists of 380 mouzahs, nearly one-half of which are without cultivation or a single inhabitant. This state of things is mainly attributed to the mismanagement and discreditable conduct of the Rajah.

235 Mr. Muir considered that any zemindaree rights in the pergunnah belonged to a colony of Kutheree Thakoors established in Khotar for several generations, that Rajah Khoshall Singh was the head of the clan, but only a sharer in 31 or 32 mouzahs, in common with many brethren

236 The Rajah's claim was rejected, and a punchayet was appointed to determine the rights of the Kuttearee brethren The rights of all the sharers were first determined by genealogical descent, the villages were then apportioned among them according to such decisions; and when, from age, infirmity or other causes, the proprietors were disqualified from management, the estates were let in farm, and a malikana allowance was granted

237 In 132 estates in the pergunnah, in which there had previously been no acknowledged proprietors, Mr Muir bestowed on all the engagers the title of mocuddums, and gave them the privileges of proprietors These latter persons are on the same footing as the grantees of Goruckpore, and the arrangement made with them, though different in its details, is the same in principle,—engagements having been taken on a scale of moderate but gradual increase, extending over a considerable term of years

CAWNPORE DISTRICT

239 This is reported to be a very fine and flourishing district, which, having suffered from over-assessment, has now obtained ample relief

240 The settlement, which included the pergunnahs specified below,* was conducted by Mr Rose The information furnished by him regarding the agricultural condition of the district, the rivers, the general face of the country, its produce, past administration and tenures, is ample and clear in its details

241 In this district the Koormee tribes abound They are a class of cultivators remarkable for industry and agricultural skill, in which they are stated to rival, if not to surpass, the Jats of the Western Dooab, but to have suffered severely from over-assessment. Mr Rose appears to have given special attention to fix the assessment within such equitable limits as would give this valuable class of cultivators the full benefit of their improvements and good conduct

243 The amount of the revised jumma is 21,81,540 rupees, being a decrease of 1,42,461 rupees, as compared with the previous settlement Resumed maafee lands, however, having afforded the very large revenue of 49,467 rupees, the actual loss to the treasury is only 92,994 rupees.

244 It has, it appears, been found necessary to allow of a permanent decrease in every pergunnah except two, and as eight-tenths of the whole culturable land are now under cultivation, little is to be expected in the way of enhancement of revenue at the close of the present term of settlement

245 Appended to Mr Rose's report are some remarks on the general tendency of the present revenue system, the evils which it is the means of correcting, and the benefits which it is calculated to secure Among the latter he especially refers to the revised system of assessments, the alteration in reference to the period of paying instalments, the preparation of records of holdings and liabilities, and the proposed enactment legalizing the sale of component puttees

246, The proceedings respecting the pergunnah of Sheorajpore have been matter of much discussion

247 The effect of Mr Rose's settlement was to establish the rights of the village mocuddams, and to declare the Rajah to be simply a superior, having a certain right, represented by a per-centage on the cultivation Much diversity of opinion was entertained by different authorities as to the nature and extent of the rights of mocuddams Former settlement* officers had considered the claims of the Rajah to the proprietary right to be valid, and the mocuddums to be merely hereditary managers, possessed of the right of village occupancy and management, only to be invalidated by default. Mr Rose, on the contrary, held that the persons called mocuddums were the representatives of the proprietors of the soil, and that all and each of the proprietors whom they represented were entitled to the acknowledgment and free exercise of all the rights of proprietorship

248 This settlement was made in accordance with the views of Mr. Rose, but the question of the justice of the decision, as between the Rajah and the mocuddums, became merged in the consideration of the serious consequences resulting from it to the mocuddums The proprietary right having been determined in their favour, claims were preferred against them for the recovery of decrees which had been standing against them for years, but in satisfaction of which, while they were simply in the position of farmers, the land could not be seized They consequently found themselves likely to be ruined by the proceedings intended for their benefit, and their new-born proprietary rights likely to be annulled by the transfer of the lately acquired property to other hands, in satisfaction of ancient claims

249 The Lieutenant-governor regretted that any disputed accounts should have been so left by the settlement officer, that by the operation of the law as administered by the civil courts, parties whom it was intended to relieve should be made to suffer so materially in their interests The mocuddums and other village proprietors in Sheorajpore were stated by the Lieutenant-governor, on his own personal knowledge, to have long flourished under the loose tenures prevailing in that pergunnah, ever since the commencement of the British rule, while they appeared to him now in danger of sinking under an attempt to define their rights too rigidly

250 Such portion, therefore, of the settlement as affected the rights and tenures in Pergunnah Sheorajpore he excluded from the confirmation of the proceedings, and the Sudder Adawlut was requested to cause all processes issued against the mocuddums, in consequence of any titles acquired, or alleged to have been acquired, in virtue of the settlement, to be held in abeyance, and also to cause inquiry to be made into the circumstances under which the decrees against the mocuddums had been obtained

FUTTEHPORE DISTRICT

251. The proceedings connected with the settlement of this district were transmitted with the Revenue Narrative of 5th November 1844, No 4, paragraphs 177 to 189

252. These documents relate to the survey and settlement conducted by the late Mr. Timmins, and to the subsequent measures under the charge of Mr J Thornton, in consequence of the incompleteness of the first proceedings

253 In his settlement report, Mr Bird described the district as having escaped the calamity of over assessment, and as noted for its fertility, and he considered that the settlement should be confirmed in perpetuity

254 Mr Timmins's report bears every indication of that officer's careful research in ascertaining the peculiarities and estimating the capabilities of the district, and the nature of the tenures under which the land is held He made personal inquiry the basis of his proceedings He found that the ryots, having no capital of their own, were obliged to borrow money at very high interest from the mahajuns, to obtain the means of cultivating their lands and of paying the first instalment of their rent to the zemindars Thus the ryot seldom realized more than a bare subsistence, while the mahajuns were the most thriving class in the district

255 The Board approved Mr Timmins's proceedings, and recommended his settlement for confirmation, but his report was not considered by the Lieutenant-governor to afford data sufficient to admit of final orders being passed in confirmation of the settlement, and additional information was called for, which Mr Timmins did not live to furnish

256 Mr Thornton was required, on Mr. Timmins's death, to report on the measures of the settlement, and submitted his report on the 7th November 1843 The report of Mr Timmins was dated 30th September 1840

257. The details submitted show the amount of the previous jumma, of that fixed by the settlement in the case of each pergunnah, and the actual condition and circumstances of the several pergunnahs Dissatisfaction appears to have been excited in the district by the comparative lightness of the new assessment in the contiguous zillah of Allahabad, in which most of the larger Futtehpore landholders likewise possess estates, but, without reference to this and some other causes, Mr Thornton considered the general demand upon the zillah too high for its natural resources, the rate of the demand on the cultivated land, Rs 2 12 9 per acre, being higher than in any other district of the North-Western Provinces

258. The amount of Mr. Timmins's revised jumma was 14,17,761 rupees, being an increase of 86,518 rupees on the average jumma of the previous five years

259 The amount of the jumma as modified by Mr Thornton, was 13,97,676 rupees, which is still an increase of 66,413 rupees on the previous jumma

260 The resumed lands formerly held Lakeraj, had been registered as containing in the aggregate 17,270 beegahs, but neither their area by the new measurements, nor the jumma realized from them, can be actually stated, as some of the tenures are not to be traced at all in the measurement papers, and many of them were thrown into the khaliseh without separate jummas attached With respect to the patches of rent-free land containing less than ten beegahs, Mr Thornton states that he found that those which were not registered were measured together with the mass of the land, in the villages where they were situated, and no notice whatever was taken of them The registered tenures under ten beegahs were, with few exceptions, resumed by the investigating officer, and many of them having at the time of settlement been confounded with the khaliseh, they cannot now be distinguished

261 Few claims to pensions came before Mr Thornton He states that it did not come under his notice that any dispossessed maafeedars were in a condition requiring support, and he was of opinion that the attempt to correct any errors which might have been committed in reference to maafeedars, would be attended with much difficulty and inconvenience.

262 In confirming the revised settlement of Mr Thornton, the Lieutenant-governor expressed his concurrence in the opinion that any interference which could now be exercised with regard to the maafee lands, would be unadvisable, and that it would be better to grant pensions to such of the former occupants of those petty tenures as might appear to stand in need of such means of support

HUMEERPORE DISTRICT

263 The proceedings relating to the settlement of Humeerpore are reported to us in paragraphs 203 to 211 of the Agra Revenue Narrative, dated the 20th February 1847, No 1

264 Of this district, the pergunnahs of Sumerpore, Moudha, Rath, Punwarree and Khurka were settled by Mr Allen, and those of Calpee, Humeerpore, Khurela and Koonch by Mr Muir

265 The settlement of this district had not been reported at the time of Mr Bird's departure from India, but as "everything was fixed," he enters at some length into the principles on which it had been conducted He remarks on the previous over-assessment of the district, and on the causes which produced erroneous impressions of its resources and capabilities The climate he describes as unhealthy, and the land as incapable of irrigation The reductions which have been made in the jumma, he does not consider to be excessive, and he is of opinion that no increase can be demanded at the termination of the present settlement, although a re-distribution of the jumma will be advisable

266 The reduction of the large byachara tenures, and the establishment of individual responsibility, is a measure which calls forth the approbation of Mr Bird, since he considers that it divests resistance to the demands of Government of combination and vigour, and ensures the co-operation of the well-disposed of the community The late Lieutenant-governor, in his general review of the settlement, paragraph 17, does not admit the correctness of these premises and conclusions with respect to the reduction of the superior tenures, and the present Lieutenant-governor is of opinion that departures from established usages require great caution and judgment

267 The respective reports of Messrs Muir and Allen contain much information relative to the geography, agriculture, manufactures, soils, and general characteristics and capabilities of the district Each of these gentlemen enters at very great length into the past history of the portion of the district settled by him, describes it as having been greatly over-assessed, and brings to prominent notice the causes which led to, and the results which followed, its over-assessment These subjects, and the various points connected with them, were carefully reviewed in our despatch, dated the 24th April 1835 (No 3), in which we took a retrospect of the affairs of the district from the time of its cession to the British Government by the Peishwa, in 1803-4 The views taken in that despatch are fully borne out by the present reports, and it will therefore be unnecessary to enter into a recapitulation of them

268 The soil of Bundelcund is described as being incapable of irrigation, from the circumstance of its opening into large fissures, in which the water is lost, and from the depth at which water lies below the surface Cotton and al * are the two principal articles of trade For the growth of the former, Bundelcund is represented as peculiarly adapted, and at one period the purchases on account of Government are said to have amounted to 40, and those on account of private individuals to 18, lacs of rupees

269 Adverting to the wretched and impoverished state of the district, and deeming the object of the settlement to be to regain the lost confidence of the people, the settlement officers proceeded with a view to the determination of the amount of relief to be granted, rather than the amount of increase to be demanded

270 The settlement was based on the double classification of land and villages, the latter being determined with reference to the former After having ascertained the average rent-rates of the different soils, the settlement officers formed from them their revenue rates, with due advertence to the fiscal history of the village to which they were to be applied By each of these gentlemen the greatest care seems to have been taken to guard against the adoption of excessive rates They appear to have been, throughout, actuated by a desire to promote the welfare of the people, justly deeming the interests of Government to be identical with it.

271 Mr Allen describes the soil of Punwarree as very inferior to that of the other pergunnahs settled by him This natural disadvantage is aggravated by the intersection of the boundaries of foreign states, the princes of which possess an influence so great, that none but their relatives can venture to take villages, and the variations in the rates of assessment on this pergunnah are consequently very great

272 Of the pergunnahs settled by Mr Muir, Pergunnah Koonch possesses the best natural capabilities, and is chiefly cultivated by Koormies, to whose great industry and agricultural skill allusion has been made in our review of the settlement of the Cawnpore district.

273 The prevailing tenure in Bundelcund is byachara, according to which an extensive brotherhood is responsible for the revenue, and their individual shares and responsibilities are determined by conventional rules As the whole community almost invariably made common cause with individual defaulters, these tenures are liable to create difficulties in the realization of the just dues of Government, and it was therefore deemed expedient, by the settlement officers, to declare the separate thokes separate mehals.

274 The number of estates which had fallen into the hands of Government furnished clear and lamentable evidence of over-assessment. In consideration of this latter circumstance, the settlement officers furnished lists of estates which they recommended for restoration to their original proprietors

| | Estates. | Jumma. |
|---|---|---|
| Mr Muir - | 51 | Rs 72,327 |
| Mr Allen - | 35 | 34,979 |

275 The police have been provided for in money payments, in consequence of which, there is an apparent, but not real, decrease in the jummas of many villages It was not considered just to make an increased charge on that account, and therefore it often happens that estates pay the same jummas as formerly, while the Government receipts are diminished.

276 The financial results of the settlement exhibit an acre rate, on the area in actual cultivation, of 2 rupees in the pergunnahs settled by Mr Muir, and Rs 1 10 1 in those settled by Mr Allen The average acre rate of the whole district will thus be Rs 1 12 8. In Mr Muir's pergunnahs, the former jumma was 6,66,200 rupees, and the present is 6,03,784 rupees, showing a decrease of 62,416 rupees The present jumma in Mr Allen's pergunnahs is 6,71,833 rupees, the highest jumma of the previous settlement having been 8,01,311 rupees, and the average jumma of the last five years 7,81,286 rupees, showing a decrease of 1,19,478 rupees on the highest, and 1,09,453 rupees on the average jumma of the previous assessment The total decrease, therefore, is 1,81,894 rupees, or, if the average of the last five years be taken for Mr Allen's pergunnahs, 10,025 rupees less than that sum As the jumma is russeedee, the decrease is, in the first instance, somewhat greater than that above shown

* A fine red dye

277 In the resumption of maafee land, when any doubt existed of the justice or propriety of resuming it, the question has been set aside for future investigation All patches under 10 beegahs in the bonâ fide possession of needy maafeedars, have been unconditionally released Resumed maafee lands have been settled at very light rates with the maafeedars, to whom pottahs were granted, detailing all particulars.

278 In Mr Allen's pergunnahs “ no rent-rates have been recorded or thought of for land not now under cultivation,” because it was thought that the proprietor should be left to make his own terms “ without being fettered in his endeavours to improve his estate by any fanciful rates recorded at the time of settlement ” With regard to the waste land in Mr Muir's pergunnahs, he deemed it “ a matter of most pressing importance that strong inducements should be held out for bringing it under the plough ,” and he has accordingly “ prevailed on the zemindars to embody a provision in the rent roll, specifying a low and progressive rent for reclaimed land, and binding themselves to continue possession to the reclaimer at reduced rates ”

279 Great care appears to have been bestowed on the preparation of the Assameewa jummabundees, and on the revision of the kistbundee

280 Mr Muir proposed the transfer of six* villages to Jalown, and also the incorporation of Pergunnahs Calpee and Koonch with that district

281 These proceedings met with the approval of the Board of Revenue, who brought to favourable notice the zeal and activity of Messrs Muir and Allen They concurred in the recommendations of the local officers for the reinstatement of the old zemindars The reductions in the jumma were not deemed to be larger than the state of the district required, and it was observed that no increase could be demanded It was noticed that no provision had been made for a road fund

282 The Lieutenant-governor's attention was called to the subdivision of byachara estates The Board were of opinion that the constituting of separate thokes, separate mehals, and the separation of land and jumma on each particular puttee, had been regarded by the people as a declaration of the independence of each puttee This, they were of opinion, was intended at the settlement, and they could not “ bring themselves to consider that the orders of Government, which destroy this independence, were founded on good policy, or in accordance with the provisions at the settlement ”

283 The Board add that they “ desire to notice this the more, because Government have so frequently, and so seriously pressed upon them the great importance of the settlement and of Act I of 1841, as enabling the revenue authorities to ascertain the individuals in a putteedaree estate who were in balance, and empowering them to deal with that individual default, whereas the result arrived at is, that instead of dealing with individual default, those who are not defaulters are to be made to pay or suffer the penalty of those who are ”

284 The Lieutenant-governor gave his sanction to the revised jumma, and the reinstatement of the old zemindars on the 13th April 1845, reserving any further observations for another opportunity

285 Accordingly, on the 30th of the same month, the Lieutenant-governor communicated to the Sudder Board of Revenue, that the result of a visit which he had paid to Bundelcund had increased his confidence in the soundness and moderation of the settlement He considered that credit was due not only to Messrs Allen and Muir, but to Messrs. Taunton and G. H Alexander, who had subsequently taken charge of the district.

286 He thought Mr Allen had exercised a sound discretion in forming the separate thokes into separate mehals The properties, he remarked, were distinct, sometimes lying in one place, but more generally intermixed Mr Muir appeared to have made this change more extensively, although the 158th paragraph† of his report might appear to leave a doubt whether the new mehals have been entirely separated from one another

287 The Lieutenant-governor observed that there was no substitution of “ individual” for joint responsibility Both officers had stated that the new mehals contained several puttees, which implies a joint responsibility He remarks, “ the communities were before large and unwieldy, they are now small and manageable The responsibility is now as before, primarily, individual, secondly and ultimately joint ” He did not suppose that the people conceived that their joint responsibility was dissolved. He dwells at very great length on this subject, because it appeared to him “ both from the reports of the settlement officers and the remarks of the Board, that these circumstances have not received that full consideration which their importance demands

“ The British Government has found existing in the North-western Provinces, a curious and intricate state of property, to which the people are warmly attached The Government commenced by disregarding the peculiarities of the tenures, and soon induced a most deplorable state of confusion Zemindaree, talookdaree, moostajurree settlements, and sales of estates for arrears of revenue, made without inquiry or consideration, produced extensive ruin and distress. The Special Commission, under Regulation I of 1821, and detailed settlements under Regulation VII. of 1822, have been the appropriate and effectual remedies The sound principle has now been asserted and acted on, that it is the duty of the Government to ascertain and protect all existing rights, those of the poor and humble villager, as well as those of the rich and influential talookdar. In so far as this is done with care and diligence, will the measure be successful in placing property on a sound and healthy footing

† “ In all cases, the greater part, in some the whole, of the culturable land was completely divided In others, even the waste land was held separately, and little more than the right of the village in common ”

"There is a further process to which attention may be directed, and that is, the gradual alteration by the people themselves of those customs or usages in their communities, which have arisen under a form of Government very different from that which now exists, and which are ill adapted to foster that industry which it is the tendency of the present state of things to encourage These changes require much care and judgment They will succeed in proportion as they are understood both by the officers of Government and the people, and are fairly carried out

"This operation should be conducted with much care in Bundelcund, where the bej burra tenures prevail What has been done in Humeerpore appears to have been well done, and has been hitherto successful"

288 The Board were desired to communicate to Messrs Allen and Muir the approbation with which their exertions were regarded.

289 With respect to the road fund, the Lieutenant-governor observed that 1 per cent on the Government jumma has been contributed for that purpose, a judicious management of which, will, he considers, exert a most beneficial effect on the district

Banda District

290 With paragraphs 213 to 216 of the Agra Revenue Narrative, dated 20th February 1846, (No 1), were transmitted to us certain proceedings relating to the settlement of the district of Banda

291 The visit of the Lieutenant-governor to Banda, as communicated to the Board of Revenue in his letter, dated the 12th April 1845, was not attended with the satisfactory results which followed that to the district of Humeerpore The settlement which had been effected by Mr Wright had failed The failure had been variously attributed to over-assessment, bad seasons, or defective record of rights But though original over-assessment had acted as injuriously in Banda as in Humeerpore, the recent assessment did not appear to be more heavy in the former than in the latter Neither did the last three seasons appear to have been particularly unfavourable But the failure was chiefly ascribable to two causes 1st The hostility between the collector, Mr Masson, and the settlement officer, Mr Wright 2d The erroneous record of rights arising from Mr Wright's imperfect knowledge of the bej burrar tenure, which prevails largely in Banda The note on this subject recorded by the Lieutenant-governor for the guidance of the local officers, contains some valuable information on the varieties of this peculiar tenure

292 The settlement proceedings have been made over to Mr Rose, who has been invested with full powers of revision Instructions have been issued for his guidance, and the Board have been requested to afford him every assistance in the shape of additional establishments

293 Some more recent proceedings with respect to this district will be noticed in our concluding remarks

Allahabad District

294 The proceedings connected with this district were reported in the Revenue Narrative, dated 15th April 1841, paragraphs 79 to 84 The district is considered to be in a very flourishing and prosperous state, and does not appear to have suffered much heretofore from over assessment It comprises the 15 pergunnahs named below,* the two latter of which were settled by Mr Speirs in F 1239-40 (A D 1832-33 ) The remainder have been settled by Mr Montgomery

295 The settlement is characterized by two facts worthy of notice, namely, that an unusually large increase has been obtained on the revision, amounting to nearly two lacs of rupees, and that the measures of the settlement officer were carried on and completed with a remarkable degree of expedition

296 At the same time, the proceedings justify the belief, that the settlement is fair and equitable, and it is reported to have given general satisfaction When the arrangements had, moreover, been in force for a whole year, the revenue is stated to have been collected easily and without arrear, and without any coercive measures

297 The district appears, from its position and peculiarities, to possess advantages singularly calculated to ensure its agricultural prosperity, being always secure of an extensive demand for its produce during the continuance of the annual fair In ordinary times, the price of grain at Allahabad is stated to be high, but it appears that prices are never liable to the great fluctuations which occur elsewhere, and that even in the year of the famine, so disastrous to other districts, the home market was amply supplied and the variation from other years by no means great

298 Mr Montgomery had apparently the advantage of having, for the scene of his operations, a district remarkable for the enjoyment of a more than ordinary amount of agricultural and financial prosperity, and in not being obstructed and thwarted in the conduct of measures, always from their nature unpopular, by the existence of distress or discontent among those whose interests were confided to his care

299 The survey was commenced in February 1838, and finished in February 1839 The preparations of the papers for settlement were commenced in June 1838, and the assessment was completed by the end of April 1839

300 Mr Montgomery's operations appear to have been carried on on a very extensive scale,—the principal part of his system being, that, instead of having, as was formerly the case only one establishment at work, he had 10, whose duties were quite separate and independent of each other, and whose work it was his duty to superintend

301 Mr Montgomery states, that he found no difficulty in superintending these several establishments, that he was able to do so in addition to his other duties, that they all worked on one system, which the superintendents were conversant with, before they were entrusted with the duties, and that the whole was effected with much less trouble than the preparation of one pergunnah under the old system

302 In one portion of the district, special circumstances rendered Mr. Montgomery's adjudication unusually difficult, viz, the Pergunnah of Kyraghur It is of great extent, having an area of 675 square miles, and yielding a jumma of 3,38,726 rupees. During a period of nearly two centuries it had been held by a family of Ghurwar Rajpoots, the head of whom, at the time of the settlement, was Rajah Lal Chutpal Singh

303 Mr Montgomery represents that nothing could exceed the misery and wretchedness of the inhabitants of the pergunnah, who have been entirely under the control of the Rajah,

and exposed to the greatest tyrranny and hardship. The villages are described as depopulated to the extent of nearly half their inhabitants, and the soil is only cultivated to the extent of half its capability Notwithstanding so much misery and misrule, however, the old village communities have, it appears, in most instances, clung tenaciously to their estates In some villages these communities have uninterruptedly held their estates in farm from the Rajah, others have only so held them occasionally, and some have never so held them at all A stranger, when he has in any case been put over their heads, has generally underlet the estate to them

304 The Board's principle of making the settlement with the mocuddums, or village communities, in all talookdarree estates, when such a state of things is found to exist, is noticed by Mr Montgomery as having been "most wisely, for the happiness of many," recognised by Government The existence of proprietary communities with a right of management and occupancy, is found in this pergunnah, he states, in a more or less perfect state, according as the several communities had more or less power to withstand the Rajah's influence, he being considered the head, or talookdar, and as such, of course, entitled to his talookdarree allowance, and nothing more

305 Mr Montgomery reports that he accordingly made the settlement with the village communities where they were found to exist, and where no communities were in existence, the settlement was made with the Rajah In mocuddummee estates, an allowance of 18 per cent was granted to the Rajah, the gross amount of whose talookdarree allowance is 47,823 rupees

306 The assessment of the amount of the Government demand in this pergunnah appears to have been somewhat difficult, in consequence of the ruined condition in which many of the villages were found

307. The settlement of Pergunnahs Barrah and Chowkundra, which was completed by Mr Speirs under Regulation VII. of 1822, expires in F 1254 (1847), but Mr Montgomery has extended the term till the end of F. 1276, making it to correspond in period with the general settlement of the district.

309 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 21,89,957 rupees, being an increase of 2,64,800 rupees on the amount of the previous assessment

312 The proceedings connected with the revision and settlement of this district have been transmitted with the Revenue Narratives of the dates noted in the margin

313 Mr Bird, in his report, describes the district as very fertile, and most advantageously circumstanced, and he expects that, after the lapse of the present term, it will yield a large additional revenue, which may be expected to arise from the assessment of the increased area brought under cultivation, and from an enhanced rate on the lands assessed at the present time

314 The striking characteristic of this settlement is the extraordinary increase obtained in the amount of the Government jumma, the revenue being raised from seven lacs to twenty lacs The increase, which is observable in all the pergunnahs, arises partly from the enhancement of the Government demand in villages considered to have been formerly too lightly assessed, and partly from the large quantities of additional land brought under assessment, on the results of the professional survey •

315 The demand now fixed is stated to have been evenly distributed over the whole district, to be "moderate to a degree unexampled in other districts," and to have been collected without difficulty

316 With the exception of jungle grants, which are to run for 50 years, the duration of settlement has been fixed at 20 instead of 30 years, the Sudder Board being of opinion that at the expiration of the shorter period, a jumma averaging Rs 1 8. per cultivated acre may fairly be fixed, by which an aggregate revenue of 30 lacs would be obtained without injury to the prosperity of the district, and without causing any difficulty in collection.

317 The released nankar villages in the possession of the Rajah of Bansee, Pergunnah Russoolpore Ghans, were the subject of much discussion The lands in question were released in perpetuity by the special deputy collector employed on the trial of maafee cases, but the Sudder Board, believing that the facts did not warrant the decision, and that nankar is not an hereditary tenure, directed an appeal from so much of the decision as ordered a perpetual release, leaving the lands to the Rajah for life

318 The appeal was decided in favour of Government, by the Sudder Commissioner at Patna, Mr Reade, the settlement officer, appealed to the Lieutenant-governor in favour of the Rajah, whom he described as deserving of every indulgence and liberal consideration, on the score of his poverty and pecuniary embarrassment, as well as of the great antiquity and respectability of a family at one time the most influential in the district

319 The Rajah's income was derived from his nankar villages, and from a nankar money allowance The villages were given 400 years ago, as a mark of favour by the Emperor of Delhi, to the family, who had enjoyed them uninterruptedly ever since, and whose title had been repeatedly acknowledged The allowance had been enjoyed only since F 1186 (A D 1779), and was in its nature temporary and variable The settlement officer recommended that the money allowance, which had been suspended from the date of the demise of the late Rajah should cease altogether, but he strongly urged that the nankar villages, 87 in number, should be confirmed to the present Rajah and his heirs in perpetuity

320 The Lieutenant-governor did not consider it expedient to give up entirely, the benefits secured by the decision of the special Commissioner at Patna, nor to abandon the principle laid down by the Sudder Board, that such lands, granted nankar, are fairly resumable by the State But in the specific case, he did not deem it desirable to enforce the total resumption He directed that the present Rajah should be continued in possession for his life, without the right to alienate or dispose of any portion of the grant That on the death of the incumbent Rajah, the name of his successor should be reported to Government who would make an extension of the grant in his favour, such renewal to be necessary on every lapse

321 The money allowance was declared to have lapsed

322 The pergunnah of Tilpore is the subject of a report by the settlement officer, in whose opinion the proprietary right of the entire pergunnah belonged to the family of the ex Rajah of Bootwul

323 On the assumption of the management of the territory in 1804, an allowance of 4,000 rupees per annum was sanctioned by Government as a subsistence for the Rajah's family This allowance was from time to time increased as an equivalent for what was taken from the family, and, at the period of the settlement, amounted to 700 rupees pe month The actual occupants of the land were then allowed to engage with Government free from the payment of malikana The settlement officer recommended that the Rajah's stipend should be fixed definitively at 1,000 rupees per month, in lieu of all claims, especially considering that his zemindarree right has been acknowledged, and that the rent-free tenures originally assigned to him as part of his maintenance had been resumed

324 The Board were not satisfied as to the existence of any well-founded proprietary right on the part of the family They were of opinion that the titular Rajah of Bootwul had never held possession of Tilpore "within the memory of man, or within a period traceable by history, or by authentic tradition"

325 At the same time, in maintaining what they considered an important principle, that a title which had become obsolete in the course of events, is not to be pleaded as property, or as giving any claim to compensation, they disclaimed all desire to stand between the ex-Râjah and the liberality of Government.

326 The Lieutenant-governor deemed Mr Reade's observations in support of the Rajah of Tilpore's claims so far worthy of consideration, as to induce him to confirm the proposition for the assignment to the Râjah and his lawful heir of an allowance of 1,000 rupees per mensem.

AZIMGHUR DISTRICT

327 This district comprises the pergunnahs noted below* The settlements were completed by Mr. Thomason, with the assistance of Mr Montgomery, reported in the Agra Revenue Narratives, dated 8th February 1838 (No 1), paragraph 81, and 12th August 1839 (No 3), paragraph 79, and briefly noticed in our despatch, dated 31st March 1841 (No 4)

328 Mr Bird represents this to be a most fertile, productive, well irrigated, and well cultivated district, possessing every element of agricultural prosperity" He considers the pergunnahs of Deogaon, Mahomedabad and Nizamabad, to be fully cultivated and assessed, but, with regard to the latter, he is of opinion that, as it was "the theatre of the first attempts at settlement before the present was formed, the vile corpus of fiscal experiment," it was not so satisfactorily done as the rest, and should, therefore, be revised at the expiration of the present settlement, with a view to the equalization, but not to the enhancement of the Government demand He considers that the rates in the other pergunnahs ought not to be enhanced, but that the revenue "may fairly yield an enhancement proportioned to the increase of cultivation "

329 In addition to the several reports of Messrs. Thomason and Montgomery, on the last ten of the pergunnahs now under notice, Mr Thomason drew up a report on the completion of the settlement embracing the whole district This document possesses more than ordinary interest, involving a careful record of the principles and details of the settlement, and a scientific and discriminating inquiry into the diverse and intricate landed tenures prevailing in Azimghur He describes the different persons in whom the proprietary right rests, illustrating by historical instances the mode in which it has been acquired, and defines the various holdings, and the rights and liabilities of different classes and individuals.

330 The country is represented by him to be well irrigated and fertile Its principal products are sugar, indigo and opium The former is the staple produce, for the cultivation of which the soil appears to be peculiarly adapted It yields a very high rent, generally 12 or 15 rupees per acre, and in Pergunnah Muhal, where the finest sugar land (which is stated to yield as abundantly as some of the old West India lands) is situated, it ranges as high as 30 or 40 rupees per acre It has been calculated that the district annually produces 288,916 cwt of sugar of the first, and 115,989 cwt of sugar of the second quality, all the raw produce being manufactured within the district, and exported in the refined state

331 With regard to indigo and opium, neither the climate nor the soil is peculiarly favourable to the former The jealousy of the zemindars, on account of the receipt by the koormies, who are the chief cultivators of the poppy, of advances from the Opium department, retards the cultivation of the latter, and the high price of, and great demand for, sugar, operates as a check on both Mr Thomason is of opinion that the cultivation of the poppy plant might be greatly extended, as the eastern portion of the district is peculiarly adapted for its production

332 The principles by which the settlement officers were guided, appear to differ materially in respect to the basis of assessment from those which were observed in other districts, there was also an increase of jumma in every pergunnah As the former assessment was light, less caution was considered necessary in fixing the Government demand than in over-assessed districts Mr Thomason states, that although the rates are high, it must be borne in mind that sugar, opium and indigo are the most remunerative crops, and that these crops were, in 1833-4, at which time the rates were assumed, in small demand, and the market much deranged The few cases of recusancy, and the collection without balance of the revenue in those pergunnahs in which the new settlement had, at the time of Mr. Thomason's report, come into operation, furnished evidence of its moderation and equality.

333 Throughout the whole of this district the greatest perplexities were occasioned by the intermixture of lands and villages, and in many instances, transfers were found necessary to clear them up, the adjustment of boundary disputes, and the determination of the relations subsisting between different persons and classes of persons, were therefore matters of very great difficulty Arbitration was generally resorted to for these purposes, but the venality of the arbitrators, which became matter of notoriety, demonstrated its inexpediency. Although Mr Thomason does not contemplate this portion of the settlement with satisfaction, he is of opinion that the good which has been effected preponderates over the evil, and that the errors thus produced cannot be revised except in a civil court.

334 Great labour and attention appear to have been bestowed on the adjustment of the rights of coparceners, and of the rates payable by them and by non-proprietary cultivators; and this measure has given universal satisfaction

335 In the formation of his revenue rates, Mr Thomason being of opinion that many objections existed against adopting the nature of the soil as the basis for the classification of the land, and deeming the better recognised method of distinction between the rates per mijhar mittoo (according as the land is situated near to, or distant from, the village site) to be uncertain, divided the land into rubbee and kurreef, meaning by the former, land capable of producing sugar-cane and the higher crops, and by the latter, rice land These denominations of land were again divided under subordinate heads, and this plan was stated to be of great assistance in judging of the capabilities of the land and the resources and management of the cultivation

336 One of the most remarkable features of the present settlement is the great quantity of resumed rent-free land In the three Pergunnahs of Deogaon, Muhal and Mahomedabad, alone, it amounts to 45,424 acres, bearing a jumma 42,841 rupees, while in the same pergunnahs there are but two cases of release in perpetuity All claims to hold land rent-free have been investigated and disposed of An uniform principle was observed in the settlement of this class of tenures, which, it appears, has been made with the person legally in possession of the zemindaree right, protection being given to under-tenants against encroachments

337 The organization of an efficient police, and the introduction of an improved system of keeping the records and accounts, received the careful attention of the settlement officers area, and Rs 2 2 6 on the area in actual cultivation The previous assessment was 10,38,958 rupees, and the present assessment is 13,57,419 rupees, which gives an increase of 3,18,457 rupees.

338 The financial result of the settlement shows an acre rate of 1 rupee on the whole area,

339 The proceedings of the settlement officers met with the unqualified approbation of the Commissioner, Mr Currie, the Sudder Board and the Lieutenant governor The Sudder Board noticed, in a marked and prominent manner, their sense of obligation to Mr Thomason, who had heartily entered into their views, perfectly comprehended their plans, and carried them into execution with great skill and judgment The exertions of Mr Currie and Mr Montgomery were also favourably noticed, as well by the Lieutenant-governor as by the Board

340 The only individual case which appears to demand observation is that of Talookah Zuhur, Pergunnah Kowreah, which furnishes an example of the refusal of a purchaser to engage with Government for the payment of the revenue This talookah had long been a source of annoyance to the revenue authorities, and although lightly assessed, the revenue had been collected with difficulty It was settled by Mr Bird in F S 1238 The estate was sold by public auction to Girdharee Loll, and purchased from him, by private sale, by Baboo Note Singh The son of the latter, Shurhundial, refused to have anything to do with the settlement, and it was let in farm to the old zemindars

341 Much discussion took place respecting this estate The Commissioner, with whom the Board concurred, proposed a revision of the settlement, with a view to the reduction of the assessment, which he thought too high, and a formal purchase of the estate from Shurhundial

342 The Lieutenant-governor stated that he would be prepared to take the subject into future consideration; but that any reduction in the government demand must be preceded by some arrangement, under which the old zemindars might be restored to their possessions, and reap the benefit of the reduction

343 The principles of the settlement in this district involve some points of great importance, with reference, especially, to the divisions and subdivisions of rubbee and khureef lands, as the basis of the assessment

GHAZEEPORE DISTRICT.

344 The settlement of this district not having been completed before Mr Bird withdrew from the superintendence of the revenue arrangements in the North-Western Provinces, is not reviewed in his report The settlement proceedings were forwarded with the Revenue Narrative, dated 1st April 1844

345 Ghazeepore being one of the districts permanently settled by Mr Duncan in 1790, the proceedings of the settlement officers had of course less reference to the assessment than to other arrangements which the plan of settlement was framed for the purpose of carrying out

346 The larger portion of the district appears to have been allotted to Mr Raikes, who was considered by the revising authorities to have conducted his proceedings with judgment and ability, and to have been peculiarly successful in removing the objections and dispelling the apprehensions of those who viewed the Government measure as only preliminary to the abolition of the permanent settlement

347 Although the generality of the estates in Ghazeepore had been permanently assessed, there were several which, from various causes, had not been so In these, a moderate assessment was made, which, it was proposed, should be permanent, and which was fixed at the rate of the assessment on the surrounding permanently settled villages

348 Our attention has been drawn to the measures adopted in the Pergunnah of Burreehabad, from the peculiar circumstances attending its past history

349 It appears that the lands in question, estimated to yield 25,000 rupees annually, were many years since alienated from the Benares zemindaree, and conferred in rent-free tenure on Benee Ram Pundit, a native of rank and influence, high in the confidence and esteem of the Governor-general (Mr Hastings), as a suitable provision for himself and his family, and in reward for good service performed towards the Government

350 The document making the above assignment is dated in May 1783, but whether the Court's sanction was ever obtained to the measure, is stated by the settlement officer to be doubtful, still the property is designated in Mr Duncan's settlement as "Benee Ram's jagheer" At his death, in 1792, it passed to his brother, and at the demise of the latter in 1810, it reverted to his widow, and her title to succeed was recognised by the local Government In the year 1820 doubts arose as to the validity of the tenure, and an investigation was ordered, the result of which was considered to establish that the grant was only a life-tenure, and that the incumbent's title was invalid Under the circumstances, however, the local Government determined, as an act of special grace, to continue the grant for the life of the widow On her death, in 1837, measures were adopted for bringing the pergunnah under assessment A perpetual settlement, commencing with the year 1839, was accordingly made at 42,099 rupees

351 In our despatch under date the 23d August 1837, No 10, we directed that the grand nephews of the original grantees should have the option of engaging with Government for the estate, whenever it might be resumed

352 The Lieutenant-governor considering these orders, and thinking it evident that the Government of the day intended to make a permanent provision for the descendants of the person on whom the grant was bestowed, in acknowledgment of valuable service to the State, refused to ratify the settlement until the orders in question should have been distinctly carried out, and the persons pointed out by us should have been given the option of engaging for the estate

JOUNPORE DISTRICT

353 The papers relating to the settlement of this zillah were forwarded with the Revenue Narrative, dated 11th December 1843, No 7

354 The district is described as differing little in tenures, climate, or any peculiar characteristic, from Ghazeepore It was included in Mr Duncan's settlement of 1790. The principal objects of the recent proceedings were the assessment of such tracts as had been declared liable to the payment of revenue, and the obtaining an accurate record of the village institutions.

355 The revision of the settlement has extended to about one-fifth of the whole district. In the remaining four-fifths the settlement officer was not authorised to interfere to the same extent as in the mehals which were open to settlement

356 The survey met with some opposition at first, but when the intentions of Government became better known to the zemindars, and their apprehensions of the subversion of the permanent settlement were allayed, they became satisfied with the proceedings, and a large majority of them, even in the permanently settled estates, came forward willingly to file their administration papers and statements of liabilities and shares, and, in most instances, bound themselves, of their own accord, to contribute to the 1 per cent road-fund

357 The assessment of the district exhibits an increase on the amount of the jumma of 1790, of 88,383 rupees, being an increase of 20,925 rupees on the actual jumma of the district, with the addition of 67,458 rupees, by the transfer of villages from zillahs Azimgurh and Benares

358 The only case which attracts special notice is that of Talookah Budlapore in Pergunnah Paree, in which the arrangement effected by the settlement officer has been ultimately reversed by the Court of Sudder Dewanny Adawlut

359 The telookdar in the instance in question was set aside by Mr Chester with a money allowance, and the alleged zemindars were admitted to direct engagements as Sudder malgoozars

360 It appears, however, that the Sudder Board did not feel warranted in authorising such a measure, and took on themselves to modify Mr Chester's proceedings

361 In this case, as in most other similar cases which have come under our notice, the purpose of the settlement officer was to protect from oppression those under the sway of the party dispossessed

362 The Board, however, directed that the talookdar should be offered the option of resuming charge of the talookah on the following terms, viz that the village zemindars should continue to pay the jumma to the talookdar, as they had done previously to the settlement, and that, so long as they continued to pay it punctually, it should not be in the power of the talookdar to dispossess them, that the tenures of the village zemindars should be heritable and transferable as hitherto, and continue to be annually shown in the putwarree's accounts as heretofore The talookdar to have the option, on default, to proceed by distraint, or summary suit against the individual zemindars

363 The terms thus offered were rejected by the talookdar, who claimed to be replaced in the position in which he stood previously to Mr Chester's settlement, and denied that the individuals who had been treated by that officer as village zemindars really possessed that character The suit accordingly proceeded, and was decided against the talookdar by the Principal Sudder Ameen before whom it was tried

364. The same terms were again offered to and again rejected by, the talookdar, who instituted an appeal to the Court of Sudder Dewannee Adawlut That court reversed the decision of the Principal Sudder Ameen, and directed the appellant to be replaced in the position of talookdar, as before the settlement, thus quashing, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-governor, all the arrangements, both fiscal and judicial, which had been made by Mr Chester The talookdar has accordingly been replaced in possession of the talookah as an undivided muhal, subject to the payment of the original mocururree jumma

365 We observe that some suits are still pending, in which the talookdar seeks to obtain possession of villages, which, during her exclusion, had been sold on account of arrears of revenue incurred by parties installed by the Government, and it is apparent to the Government that whatever the decision on these suits may be, some embarrassment must be encountered, that, on the one hand, if the sales should be cancelled, the auction purchasers will set up a claim to compensation and refund of purchase-money, and, on the other, if they should be upheld, the talookdar will be deprived of a portion of her estate, and may demand a reduction of the jumma which she now pays

Benares District.

Appendix, No 19.

366* The proceedings relating to the settlement of this district had not been completed at the period of Mr Bird's departure from India. They were forwarded with the Revenue Narrative, dated 10th May, 1846 No 2, paragraphs 239 to 248.

367. The settlement arrangements were originally divided between two officers, viz., Messrs Chester and Wylly, the former having the revision of the pergunnahs to the north, and the latter of those to the south, of the Ganges, but Mr Wylly having been compelled by ill-health to relinquish his duties, Mr Chester had to complete the settlement of the whole district It comprises the pergunnahs named below * •

368 In most of the pergunnahs which underwent revision, there were very few estates open to re-assessment, the greater number having been included in Mr Duncan's permanent settlement

369. The jealousy and suspicion of the zemindars were excited in this, as in other permanently settled districts, and were not so easily removed They appear to have dreaded some covert design of interfering with their permanently assessed jummas. This is partly attributed by the officiating Commissioner (Mr Morrieson) to the haste with which the arrangements were conducted Had the settlement been conducted more leisurely and deliberately, so that "what was going on in one part might be thoroughly understood before another was touched," he considers that the whole might have been carried out, not only without opposition, but with the perfect concurrence of the people

370 With respect to the soil, the produce, and the condition of the people, there are considerable variations in the different pergunnahs In those close to the city of Benares and to the Sudder station, the soil is rich and well cultivated, while in others it is poor, and the people far from prosperous

371 The report of the settlement officer is little more than a brief abstract of his proceedings The officiating Commissioner, therefore, reviewed minutely the circumstances of the entire district The zemindars of the permanently settled mehals were invited to file their own statements of shares and liabilities, and to record their internal village arrangements, if they thought proper to do so In those cases in which they declined, their estates were allowed to remain in statu quo Generally speaking, the zemindars, it is said, became ultimately satisfied of the advantage of defining and recording their rights, and the majority consented to give 1 per cent over the Government jumma, for the road-fund In all estates open to a revision of settlement, those parties who could prove a title to the zemindarree were admitted In all cases in which it was found that the jumma of the permanent settlement had been set aside, and an excess taken, the Government demand was made to revert to the standard of F 1197

372 In a financial point of view, the result of the settlement is not, in the opinion of Mr Chester, at all favourable As compared with the assessment of F. 1197, there is an increase of 22,498 rupees, as compared with the demand of the year preceding the revision, an increase of 2,673 rupees It is not, therefore, he observes, from the increased receipts that the Government should look for a return for the expense entailed by the settlement operations, but he expresses a hope, that when the irritation and uncertainty which has attended the unpopular measures of settlement shall have been removed, the people may be led to acknowledge that their rights, instead of being infringed, have been secured and confirmed.

373 The Rajah of Benares advanced the following claims in relation to the Pergunnah of Kote Astah

1st To the zemindarree of the whole pergunnah His pretensions to this had been long since set aside, and various decisions of the civil courts on the subject had been recorded against him or his predecessors

2nd To the rights of istumrardar and mocurrureedar of the pergunnah. The preceding Rajah had held both these titles, but the allowances had been decided to be for life only, and had ceased under the Board's orders in 1837

3d To the jagheer of Pindra, likewise possessed by the preceding Rajah, but not included in the Board's orders

374 This claim also was declared invalid, but the Lieutenant-governor directed that, as a favour, the grant of the jagheer should remain unimpaired to the Rajah during his life.

375 In the Talookah Kernadary, Pergunnah Kuswa, questions arose relative to the claims of the resident malgoozars of the talookah to be allowed to enter into direct engagements with Government for the revenue as zemindars

376 At the settlement, F 1197, a clause of the regulations provided for the maintenance in possession of the malgoozars, who were not to be dispossessed by the Rajah, without the sanction of the officers of Government It is stated, however, that the Rajahs contrived, without authority, and in contravention of the above regulation, to turn out of their tenures nearly all the old malgoozars In the suits instituted by the malgoozars against the Rajah, the civil courts decided in favour of the latter, on the ground of his having been in possession beyond 12 years

377 It appears that for some years the Benares courts were of opinion that the suits brought by the malgoozars were not properly cognizable by them, and that afterwards, when that opinion was overruled, and fresh suits were instituted, it was contended that the period for hearing them was past, and they were finally rejected

378 With reference to the above facts, the senior member of the Board considered that the Government was pledged to maintain the settlement, and that the talookah should be brought under the operation of Sec 3, Regulation IX of 1825

379 On the other hand, the junior member (Mr Boulderson) considered that there was no plea for the direct interference of Government in these claims

380 The Lieutenant-governor was of opinion that the greatest injustice had been inflicted on the malgoozars first, by the Rajahs, who for 25 years had disregarded and defeated an enactment specially passed at the permanent settlement, for the protection of the malgoozars, and secondly, by the decisions which have debarred them from remedy, because they failed to sue in a court which was closed to them He further declared, that Mr Boulderson entirely mistook the nature of the question, the Rajah's tenure not being talookdarree, as assumed by him, but the whole proprietary right having been declared to vest in the village zemindars, with whom the former Government had made a permanent settlement The Rajah, he held, was merely tehsildar, and took advantage of his position, from the remissness of the local authorities, to usurp a right for which there was no foundation in previous custom or in law.

381 The financial result of the settlement shows an average acre-rate of assessment on the area in actual cultivation of Rs 1 15 5

382. The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is Rs 8,17,067 9 being an increase in the jumma of F 1197 settlement, of 20,005 rupees, and on the jumma of the year preceding the present settlement of 1,681 rupees

MIRZAPORE DISTRICT

383 This district had not been reported on at the period of Mr Bird's resignation of his duties connected with the revenue settlement

384 The proceedings were forwarded with the Revenue Narrative, dated 10th May 1846, No 2, paragraphs 222 to 235, they relate to the settlement of the pergunnahs noted below *

385 The settlement was conducted by Mr Raikes and Mr. Wynyard

386 The proceedings form the subject of four different reports, viz, two by Mr Raikes and two by Mr Wynyard

387. Mr. Raikes's first report has reference exclusively to Talookah Mujwa The proceedings were not attended with any difficulty in the adjustment, and met with no opposition or expression of dissatisfaction from those whose interests were affected by them The talkookah is situated in Kuswur, a pergunnah belonging to the Benares division, though fiscally subordinate to Zillah Mirzapore

388 In the zemindarree estates, Mr Raikes abstained from all interference with the demand of Government for revenue, or of zemindars on assamees for rent. His object being merely to record, and not to alter the state of things, he confined his measures to the survey and demarcation of boundaries and such other detail arrangements as the form of settlement rendered necessary In all other estates in the talookah, Mr Raikes's measures showed an increase of 851 rupees on such lands as in F 1197, were held amanee, and nankar and maafee Owing to the superior quality of the soil, the revenue was stated to be collected without difficulty

389 Mr Raikes's second report relates to the Pergunnah of Kuntit, which is a very extensive one, consisting of five tuppahs, and covering an area of 806,791 acres, of which about one-third was under cultivation

390 The case of the Rajah of Kuntit has some points of importance

391 It appears that after a lengthened possession of the estates, the old Ghurwar Rajahs of Kuntit were expelled about 75 years since by the family of the Rajah of Benares At the commencement of the British rule over the territory, Mr. Hastings gave the Kuntit Rajah, then returned from exile, "a jagheer or malikana, to the estimated value of 37,500 rupees," being 10 per cent on the land revenues of the pergunnah In lieu of pecuniary payment, the Talookah of Bijeypore was given as an equivalent to the Rajah, who, however, never ceased to urge his claim to the whole zemindarree

392 It is stated that he would have been restored by Mr Duncan to all his rights, at the time of the permanent settlement, but from the fear of exciting the jealousy of the Rajah of Benares

393 At the demise of the person to whom the malikana had been granted, it was resumed, and Talookah Bijeypore settled in zemindarree with his son, at a permanent jumma of 10,000 rupees In making the present settlement, Mr Raikes admitted the

Rajah to zemindarree engagement in all cases of lapsed farms, or where others had been unable to establish a prior claim There was still a question as to the permanent character of the assessment of 10,000 rupees The Commissioner was decidedly of opinion that the settlement should be considered as fixed, and the Sudder Board also viewed it as perpetual, but it was stated that no confirmation of it had been received from us, such confirmation being necessary in a case in which the jumma, instead of being regulated by the assets, is in a shape which renders it virtually a jagheer

394 Mr Raikes drew attention to the fact, that in the part of Mirzapore, which had been subject to his revision, the actual assessment of land had occupied but a small portion of his time and attention, the general moderation of the Government demand having rendered the work of assessment very easy His principal labours had been the investigation and settlement of zemindarree and putteedarree claims, and all questions of disputed rent or succession, all of which he seems to have adjusted to the satisfaction of the revising authorities

395 Mr Wynyard's two reports on the remaining portion of the district enter with much minuteness into the history of the pergunnahs which came under his revision Much of the country is described as barren, wild and unhealthy, with a population devoid of civilization or knowledge of husbandry He encountered much difficulty in fixing the Government demand, from the fact that, in many parts he found the system of making payments in kind very prevalent, as likewise an almost insuperable objection on all sides to the introduction of money payments He took the opportunity of recording the opinion, which his researches in the district had led him to form, that a permanent settlement is unfair alike to the Government and the proprietors He adds, that the general statement will support his assertion, by exhibiting some villages where the Government jumma presses very severely, and others in which the Government demand might be doubled or trebled, and an ample profit be still left to the zemindars

397 The aggregate amount of the revised jumma is 6,70,680 rupees, which gives a decrease on the jumma of the preceding year of Rs 1,600 15 4¼, but an increase over the jumma of F 1197, of 61,851 rupees

DELHI DIVISION

398. The proceedings relating to the settlement of the Delhi division, which comprises the districts noted below,* were submitted to us with paragraphs 79 to 92 of Agra Revenue Narrative, 10th May 1846 (No 2), with the exception of those which had reference to the Pergunnahs of Rewaree Boruh Shahjehanpore, Ferozepore, and Poonahana, in the district of Goorgaon, which we received with the paragraphs marginally noted.

399. Mr Bird states that over-assessment, mismanagement, and a neglect of sound administrative principles have prevailed in this division. He reviews the distinct conditions of the irrigated and unirrigated land The first he describes as flourishing and populous, and he anticipates that the condition of the cultivators will steadily improve, since the pressure of over-assessment has been removed He does not consider that there is any prospect of increasing the irrigated area

400. With regard to that portion which depends altogether on the seasons, and which, consequently, yields a very precarious return to the husbandman, he states that extreme moderation is, and for a long time will be necessary, as it is of " more importance to give the people a taste for accumulation and the arts of life, by leaving a large proportion of the produce raised in their own hands, and forming them to habits of regularity and punctuality, by the punctual collection of a very low revenue, than to attempt to obtain from this tract any increase of resources for the State," and he therefore considers that no increase can be demanded on a revision of settlement, unless Government should hereafter open a canal, fed from some other stream than the Jumna, in some other quarter

ZILLAH PANEEPUT

401. This district comprises the Pergunnahs of Paneeput Bunyur and Paneeput Khadir, and Soonput Bunyur and Soonput Khadir The Pergunnah of Paneeput had been settled by Mr A. Fraser, but as the work was considered to have been unsatisfactorily performed, the completion of the settlement was entrusted to Mr. Mill, and on the occasion of his illness, transferred to Mr Edmonstone

402 Adverting to the importance of an accurate record of measurement in a district like Paneeput, where the tenure being exclusively byachara, the minutest subdivisions of land exist, and having satisfied himself of the total uselessness of the previous record, and the inefficiency of the measures taken by Mr Mill to remedy this defect, Mr Edmonstone applied for, and received permission to remeasure the whole district Mr Edmonstone appears to have bestowed more than ordinary pains on the survey, and on the completion of his operations he was convinced that he had " secured as correct a record of measurement, and as accurate a detail of the extent of each biswadar's possession and rights," as it was possible to prepare.

403 Between the results of Mr Fraser's and Mr Edmonstone's measurement of the cultivated area of Pergunnah Paneeput there was a great discrepancy, the former making it 22,129 acres less than the latter The solution of this discrepancy was not to be found either in general agricultural disaster, drought, or mal-administration Nor had there been any recent excavation of canals, by which a powerful impulse could have been imparted to agriculture. Cultivation had been temporarily abandoned on the commencement of Mr. Fraser's settlement, but not to a sufficient extent to account for so great a difference as 22,129 acres. Mr Edmonstone was therefore of opinion that one of the two measurements must have been incorrect, and taking into consideration the precautions which he had adopted to ensure accuracy, and the great improbability of proprietors receiving, without remonstrance or appeal, a record so adverse to their interests, as his would have been if incorrect, he did not consider it possible that an error of this nature could have been committed by him

404 The benefits of irrigation are extensively bestowed on this district by the Jumna, canals and wells; and with such numerous and diffused means of counteracting drought, a general failure of crops is not to be apprehended. In determining the amount of assessment to be borne by irrigated land, advertence was always made to the mode in which it received its supply of water, and its contiguity to or distance from the sources of irrigation, because in seasons of drought, when irrigation is most needed, those lands which are remote from the canals may find their supply entirely cut off, besides which, the expense of keeping the channels in an efficient state is increased proportionally to their increased length

405 The mode in which the assessment on irrigated land was determined involves a principle of some importance Mr Edmonstone states his impression, that land " which lies within the possible limits of canal irrigation, and has at any one time been admitted to its benefits, rather than the area which was actually under irrigation at the time of measurement, has been described " This course he considers to be exempt from any risk of error, and the only one that could with propriety have been pursued, because " land which even in case of emergency commands a sufficient supply of water, may fairly be rated as

* Paneeput, Hurreeanah, Delhi, Rohtuc, Goorgaon

irrigated, whether at the time of survey it be so actually or not" In order to obviate the severity which might result from this system, a table of the quantity of land irrigated in each village for five years, from 1836-37 to 1840-41, was procured, and a reference to this, and to the amount of each crop found in the village at the time of measurement, were deemed to afford efficient checks

406 The Jat tribes, who are distinguished for their agricultural skill, and for the punctuality with which they make their revenue payments, abound in this district, and their orderly and industrious conduct exercises a beneficial influence over their predatory and indolent neighbours, the Goojurs But this is only perceptible in those parts of the country which are within the range of canal irrigation The construction of wells is attended with so much labour, that it deters them from exertion, and the vicinity of the Jumna contributes to the success of their predatory pursuits

407 Previously to the commencement of Mr Edmonstone's settlement, 25 estates had been let in farm, but he did not find it necessary, from recusancy or any other cause, to augment their number, of these, 23 were held by the heirs of Colonel Skinner Some of the estates in question, in which a proprietary right was universally acknowledged, were continued to the heirs for the whole period of settlement, at the especial request of the biswadars In some instances, there were still traces of a proprietary body, whose claims were, however, rejected Most of these villages had been greatly improved by Colonel Skinner, and Mr Edmonstone, while he was of opinion that "reasonable expectations and partially acknowledged rights in some* of these villages would seem to call for some concessions," concurred in the equity of the principle which "rejected their claim to reap the benefits resulting from the exertions of another, and referred them to the Civil Court for redress from their supposed grievances"

408 In this district there are no fixed rates The prescribed method of forming them was not found practicable on account of deficiency of data Mr Edmonstone made personal inspection the basis of his assessment, bearing in mind the fiscal history of each mouzah Lands irrigated from wells were more lightly assessed than those irrigated from canals, the expense of constructing and the labour of working the former being much greater.

409 All claims to hold land rent-free had been investigated and determined four or five years anterior to the date of Mr Edmonstone's report, but small patches under 10 beegahs were again brought under revision in his settlement, and were finally disposed of, apparently with a spirit of liberality and indulgence

410 While the divisions of Paneeput and Soonput Bangur had rapidly advanced, the two Khadir divisions had made very little progress in the development of their agricultural resources This Mr Edmonstone attributes to the former being cultivated by the Jats and other industrious classes, while the latter were held by unskilful and indolent communities. Other causes are to be found in the inadequacy of the agricultural population, who are continually emigrating from the Khadir to the Bangur divisions, and to the comparatively high assessment in the two latter pergunnahs, which had tended to deteriorate their condition, and to encourage the desertion, not only of cultivators, but even of proprietors and coparceners

411 In remarking on the formation of a record of shares and liabilities, Mr Edmonstone brought to notice a peculiar tax, denominated the "Kumeenee Ba'ach," levied on all non-agricultural residents (with the exception of artificers and a few others), who are considered unprofitable members of the community, in an agricultural point of view, as a consideration for the land occupied by their houses, the grazing of their cattle on the waste lands, and other privileges

412 The financial results of the settlement exhibit an average acre rate of Rs 1. 4 11 on the total area, and of Rs 2 8 on the area in actual cultivation In the three Pergunnahs of Soonput Bangur, Paneeput Khadir, and Soonput Khadir, it was found necessary to grant reductions, amounting in the aggregate to 52,542 rupees, but as an increase of 20,594 rupees has been obtained in Paneeput Bangur, the total decrease on the previous assessment is reduced to 32,668 rupees

HURREEANAH, OR HISSAR DISTRICT.

413 The settlement of the pergunnahs noted below* was effected by Mr S. S Brown, and includes the whole district, with the exception of 27 mouzahs of Pergunnah Futtiabad, Pergunnahs Ruttee and Tohana, and five mouzahs of the Futtiabad, and 10 of the Burwala Pergunnah, lately recovered from the Sikh States

414 Pergunnahs Mehim and Behwannee, formerly attached to the Rohtuc district, have been annexed to Hissar, but certain alterations in their jummas were contemplated, which had not been effected at the date of Mr S S Brown's report

415 Those pergunnahs of this district now under notice were reported on by Mr Brown seriatim, and their geographical and local peculiarities, and their agricultural resources, as well as those differences which were deemed of sufficient importance to influence the settlement, were duly noticed In addition to these pergunnah reports, he recorded some general observations on the settlement of the whole district

416, It appears that a revision of the settlement of this district as a whole was undertaken and effected by Mr Brown in 1839, but it was not maintained In the year 1840–41, having had the advantage of a personal interview with the senior member of the Board of Revenue, he was empowered to revise the settlement of the previous year

417 A reference to the record of past years showed, that, for a series of years, rather more than one-fourth of the Government demand had been remitted, and these remissions were ascribed principally to unfavourable seasons Mr Brown felt firmly convinced of the impolicy of a system of revenue " which makes a balance on account of casualties the rule, and a steady enforcement of the Government demand almost the exception " Experience had demonstrated to him the injurious effects of these remissions on industry and improvement Besides, such remissions opened a wide door to malpractices between the people and the officers of the collectorate

418, Taking into consideration these various circumstances, the only efficacious remedy appeared to Mr, Brown to be, a reduction sufficient to meet the variations of season, so far as they can be subjected to ordinary calculation, and the substitution of an average of profit and loss both for the State and the people, instead of nominal demands and irregular remissions The average collections of the last 10 years appeared to present a fair and equitable basis for the formation of an estimate of this nature

419 All the villages in this district had, up to F 1247, been classified and assessed as " barranee," and consequently Government had not participated in the fiscal advantages arising from irrigation In the present settlement, therefore, they come for the first time under consideration, as affording to Government the right of an enhanced demand, on account of advantages independent of and extraneous to the natural fertility of the soil

420 Care appears to have been taken to form a just estimate of the quantity of land receiving the benefits of irrigation, and the numerous advantages accruing therefrom appear to have been allowed their due weight in determining the Government demand In the assessment of individual villages, the facilities for and mode of their irrigation were taken into consideration, and as some could command the means of irrigation for all, and some only for particular crops, Mr Brown was of opinion that it would obviously have been unfair to have applied an uniform rate to these villages indiscriminately.

* Hansi, Toshaun, Sewanie, Burhul, Burwala, Hissar, Agrohar, Futtiabad

421 The village "ba'ach" appears to have been formerly determined here according to the usual consideration of the extent of rukbah and grazing land, and of the number of cattle, but as numerous Assamese had deserted agricultural for pastoral pursuits, the "ba'ach" fell very heavily on the remaining inhabitants With a view to the equal distribution of the rate among all the members of the community, whether cultivators or not, Mr Fraser, in the first 10 years' settlement, had introduced very generally the "choulucha"[*] system This change was considered to be entirely in favour of the cultivators, and it was expected that a great impulse would have been imparted to agriculture, but the reverse appears to have been the case The result is stated to have disconnected the cultivators from their former holdings, and to have given general dissatisfaction, except to those biswahdars in the more populous villages whose "ba'ach" the measure had lightened, or who had availed themselves of the opportunities it afforded of misappropriating the village funds

422 Mr Brown accordingly prohibited the "choulucha," and limited the "kummeenee" tax to the rate prevailing elsewhere The arrangement of details was left entirely to the decision of the communities, and in every instance the majority was in favour of a return to the original method of internal assessment, which was ultimately effected

423 The settlement of "zemindariee estates" is separately commented on by Mr. Brown, by which term he implies "the mouzahs acquired by non-resident proprietors by virtue of prior occupation and continued possession, and to which their title has now been regularly declared and recognised" These villages, of which Colonel Skinner was the principal holder, are managed by means of agents, and Mr Brown, considering that it would be unfair to assess them on an equal scale with the mouzahs occupied by the resident Khood Khosht Biswahdars (the payment of malgoozaree having been undertaken when the district was almost a waste), a third was struck off the jummabundees at the first revision of the settlement, and a further reduction allowed at the second, proportioned to that granted in the pergunnahs in which the lands were situated

424 Although Mr Brown felt persuaded that the force of habit would lead the people to expect, and to endeavour by every artifice to obtain, remissions, notwithstanding the great reduction that had been made, he was of opinion that a steady enforcement of the Government demand from year to year would lead to its satisfactory realization, excepting in seasons of general failure and famine, when it might still be necessary to grant remissions, but that the reduction would cover all partial failures

425 The acre-rate on the total area in this district is Rs. 0. 3 7½, and that on the cultivated area Rs 0 8 9, and the total reduction on the former jumma is 1,08,479 rupees.

DELHI DISTRICT

426 This district was originally settled by Mr Taylor, but in consequence of his appearing to have over-estimated its capabilities, it was made over to Mr M R Gubbins, and it appears to have been reported on by him in May 1843, but as several alterations were made, and as some villages had lapsed, the statements, revised and corrected, were submitted by his successor, Mr Lawrence, in a report dated in August 1844

427 The soil of this district is represented to be of a decidedly inferior quality Upwards of one-third of its area is uncultivated, and to a great extent unculturable, from the existence of rocky hills, wide ravines, and the débris of ancient habitations in the southern pergunnah, and from the lands in the northern pergunnah being strongly impregnated with reh In facilities for irrigation, and in the industry and skill of the population, the northern possesses great advantages over the southern pergunnah

428 Government having sanctioned advances for the repair of the hydraulic works at Chutterpore and Kirkee, in the southern pergunnah, much benefit was expected to accrue from the measure, it was anticipated that not only would a large tract of land, till then arid and uncultivated, be thoroughly irrigated and brought to bear rubbee crops, but that great encouragement would be held out to the landholders to undertake works of a similar nature

429 In the southern pergunnah the large tract of Dehir land is entirely dependent on the flooding of the Nujuf-gherr Jheel, whose chief channel of supply is the great Sahibee Nuddee, the waters of which have of late years been remarkably deficient The drainage of the Jheel was undertaken in 1837, completed in 1839, and the expense of the work, and the advantages that would accrue from it, were variously estimated Captain De Bude, in 1838, anticipated the redemption of 40,000 beegahs of land, yielding a revenue of 1,20,000 rupees, by an outlay of 40,000 rupees

430 Although there were not sufficient data to determine with precision the amount of money actually expended on this work, yet as the Treasury accounts showed an advance of 58,154 rupees to the Executive officers on this account, Mr Lawrence concluded that this was the amount actually expended on the drainage The only doubt in the minds of those who framed the estimates of the work appears to have been whether it was practicable to drain the Jheel sufficiently to admit of cultivation before the season for sowing had passed away But experience had so far shown that deficiency, rather than superabundance, of water had prevented any considerable extension of cultivation

431 Mr Lawrence found, on personal inspection, that rubbee crops were only grown along the banks of the watercourse, or cut, which carries off the water on a strip of land about 100 yards broad, that on the high land on either side, at the distance of a quarter of a mile, inferior crops were grown, and that the intervening space was fallow, and it was only in very rainy seasons that the full benefit of the Government outlay could be realized

432 It appears from Mr Lawrence's report, that the amount of land recovered was only 9,863 beegahs, and that only 8,136 rupees had been added to the revenue, but that even with this comparatively unfavourable result of more sanguine expectations, the outlay would be repaid in five years, and, in addition to the actual gain, must be considered the prevention of loss which had occurred in seasons of heavy rain by the inundation of the undrained Jheel

433. There are 346 Government villages in this district, but only 320, bearing a jumma of 3,57,852 rupees, were reported for sanction, the remaining 26, bearing an assessment of 15,709 rupees, remaining liable to alterations of assessment Besides these, there are 66 jagheer villages, with an area of 51,683 acres, of which 27 are for life, and 39 in perpetuity

434 The system of farming appears to have prevailed very largely in this district, 132 of the Government villages having been settled with farmers. Mr Lawrence remarks, that, when once this system has been thoroughly introduced, it requires a long course of years of attention to supersede it, the ignorance and supineness of the villagers so involving them in debt as to render them unable, even when willing, to resume the management of their lands He objects to the farming system, that the farmers think only of working out a profitable speculation, without regard to the general improvement of the country

435 Rather more than one-third of the tenures* in this district are zemindarree, the remainder being byachara, the great proportion of the former is, in Mr Lawrence's opinion, ascribable to these circumstances:—1st The seat of Government having been formerly in the vicinity, and the means consequently given to persons of influence to oust the ancient proprietors, and appropriate their lands 2dly The extensive system of farming And, 3dly The occupation of deserted land by influential persons

436 He contrasts the advantages of the zemindarree and byachara systems of tenure, and while he admits that the circumstances attending large byachara communities render them

them difficult to manage, he considers them to be well adapted to the disposition and habits of the people

437. Mr Lawrence confidently recommended his settlement for confirmation, adducing, in proof of its moderation, the fact that land had greatly risen in value since its completion.

438 The financial result of the settlement gives an acre-rate of Rs 2. 0 6 on the cultivated area There is an increase in the northern pergunnah of 4,351 rupees, and a decrease in the southern of 12,560 rupees, making a total decrease of 8,209 rupees. Mr Lawrence was of opinion, that independently of the injurious effects produced by over-assessment, the reductions that had been made in Panceput, Rohtuc, and Goorgaon rendered this decrease unavoidable He observes, "an assessment, moderate in itself, will become severe, if disproportioned to that paid in adjoining zillahs "

Rohtuc District.

439 The pergunnahs* comprising this district were settled and severally reported on by Mr M R Gubbins, Mr C Gubbins, and Mr J B Mill The dates of the reports of these three officers embrace a period of nearly four years

440 The reports of the settlement officers appear to be carefully drawn up, and contain full information respecting the resources and peculiarities of the district

441 The clustering of villages and tuppahs appears to prevail throughout nearly the whole district According to this practice, a number of villages are united into a body corporate, under the controlling power of one tuppadarree village, and all villages around it are generally included in the tuppah, without reference to caste. It is supposed that these unions had their origin in those disturbed times when connexions of this nature were necessary to the safety and protection even of large communities. Their influence over the people is still in a great measure retained, and in cases of feud, the cause of one village is generally espoused by the whole community The tuppahs of Mokra and Chunda, in Rohtuc Behree, appear to be very large, the former containing 27 villages, and the latter 22.

442 No rent-rates have been assumed, nor, indeed, does it appear that any exist in this district The methods by which the revenue rates were calculated are detailed by each of the settlement officers The usual considerations of the nature of the soil and the habits of the people, together with the information gained by personal inspection, appear to have formed the basis on which they were determined

443 The only points requiring special notice relate to the assessment of irrigated land. Pergunnah Mehun Behwanee is entirely destitute of irrigation, to the introduction of which its physical features appear to present great obstacles The ordinary practice of taking into consideration the nature of soil, and the facilities for irrigation, appear to have been observed in determining the amount of assessment to be borne by irrigated land in the Pergunnahs of Rohtuc Behree and Gohana But in Pergunnah Khurkunda Mandoutee an uniform rate has been laid on all irrigated land Personal observation in the pergunnah had led Mr C Gubbins to consider this the best plan

444 The grounds on which Mr. Gubbins formed this opinion are briefly these —Irrigation tends greatly to equalize the productive powers of the various denominations of soils, the light soils being very much better adapted to it than the clayey Indeed, Mr Gubbins observes, that he has seen the finest wheat, and even sugar-cane, growing on land classed as "bhoor"

445 There are two modes of irrigation, "tor" and "dal" Irrigation by the former mode, which is only practicable in low lands, is effected by merely breaking the doul, and allowing the water to drain into the fields The latter mode, which is used in the higher lands, consists in throwing water with the small leathern bucket into the field from a lower level The superiority of "tor" irrigation, under ordinary circumstances, is obvious, but no variation in the rates of assessment was deemed necessary by Mr Gubbins on this account, because, as the level of the water of the canal is not uniform, those villages which are ordinarily watered by "tor" may, in seasons of deficiency, be obliged to resort to "dal"

446 And, in conclusion, he observes "Again, villages which are distant from the canal incur much greater expense in digging and keeping in repair their watercourses, from their greater length, besides that every fall in the level of the canal causes great difference in the quantity of water which can reach their village, and occasionally the supply is stopped altogether"

447 The assumption appears to be, not that all irrigated land is equal in productive power, but that it is difficult, if not impossible, to make minute distinctions, applicable to the character and circumstances of different soils

448. The average rate per acre on the total area of the district is Rs 0 11 11, and that on the cultivated area is Rs 1 5 2, the low rate prevailing in Mehun Behwanee (Rs. 0 12 6) is ascribable to the absence of irrigation In every pergunnah a reduction of jumma has been granted, exhibiting an aggregate decrease of 1,38,617 rupees

GOORGAON DISTRICT.

449 This district comprises the pergunnahs noted below *

450. The pergunnahs of Rewarree, Borah, Shahjehanpore, and Jharsa were settled by Mr. Lawrence. The remainder were settled by various persons, but the final arrangements were effected and reports drawn up by Mr G C Barnes

451 General satisfaction appears to have been given to the native community, and unqualified approbation received from the superior authorities, by the settlement of Rewarree, Borah, and Shahjehanpore The pergunnahs of Ferozepore and Poonahana were settled and reported on by Mr Gubbins in 1838 Great difficulties appear to have presented themselves to his operations. Numerous checks were imposed on the aumeens, in order to insure accuracy in the kusreh measurement, but attempts had been made to falsify the kusrehs, and instances occurred of the aumeens being compelled, where these attempts had not been successful, to refund the bribes which they had received from the village communities Great pains appear to have been taken by Mr Gubbins in the classification of the soils, and in the endeavour to ascertain the rent-rates, that his revenue rates might be deduced from them, in accordance with the recommendation contained in the Board's circular, but he was ultimately compelled to relinquish the attempt

* Rewarree, Borah, Shahjehanpore, Ferozepore, Poonahana, Jharsa, Hutteen, Noh, Sonut, Palee Pakul, Pulwul, Hosdul, Tooroo

452 In the formation of his revenue rates he therefore adopted, as the basis of his calculations, the rates of collection that had formerly prevailed, the rates prevailing in adjoining pergunnahs, and his own experience and observation According to this process the average acre-rate on the uncultivated area in Ferozepore was 3 rupees, and that in Poonahana 2 rupees per acre, and an increase of jumma was obtained, amounting in the aggregate to 6,334 rupees

|---|---|---|
| Ferozepore | 1,705 | decrease |
| Poonahana | 8,039 | increase |
| Total | 6,334 | increase |

453 But experience soon demonstrated that the capabilities of these pergunnahs had been over-estimated Mr Gubbins was therefore induced to revise his proceedings in 1841 He found these pergunnahs over-assessed to an extent for which he was quite unprepared, and both pergunnahs had undergone a manifest deterioration since the settlement. In estimating the natural advantages and the artificial means of increasing them, possessed by Ferozepore, sufficient allowance had not been made for casualties of season It was found necessary to make a reduction of 30,675 rupees, which, however, left the average acre-rate* still higher than the rates in the conterminous pergunnahs In making this reduction, a reduction was also made in the assessment of Poonahana of 17,691 rupees

454 Although Mr Gubbins frankly acknowledges that the assessment originally determined on was under any circumstances too high, yet the calamitous drought of F 1245, and other natural causes, appear to have greatly contributed to its severity

455 Pergunnah Pulwul furnishes another example of over-assessment The first settlement of this pergunnah under Regulation IX of 1833 was made by Mr J Lawrence, and as it was that officer's first attempt, the Board of Revenue purposely withheld it from the notice of Government until time should have enabled them to pass a correct judgment on it The necessity of some reduction in the Government demand soon became evident, and the work of revision was entrusted to Mr G C Barnes He states that Mr Lawrence's settlement, which had been based on the most sanguine expectations, had been unfortunately preceded by a year† of great drought, which operated very severely on this district, from its limited means of irrigation The two succeeding years, far from having been calculated to abate the evil, are stated to have been very unfavourable, and to have baffled all efforts towards improvement Under such circumstances the pressure of high taxation had completely overwhelmed all classes, except the industrious Jats, whose preponderance in this pergunnah has been mainly conducive to the collection of the revenue The impoverished condition of the pergunnah left Mr Barnes no alternative but a summary reduction, subject to future modification, and he, accordingly, reduced the jumma by 41,069 rupees

| Former jumma | 2,27,364 |
| Revised jumma | 1,86,295 |

456 In their letter, submitting the correspondence to the Lieutenant-governor, the Board observed, "The unhappy system of high and always increasing nominal assessments, with constant, capricious, ill-considered remissions, has so fixed itself on the minds of the district officers, that they have in most cases shrunk from proposing such an amount of reduction as is necessary to form an assessment which the people can regularly pay and prosper, while, from the general want of record of all past proceedings, the Board have hitherto been unable on any good grounds to do more than offer general exhortation to moderation"

457 In a subsequent revision of the settlement of this pergunnah it was found necessary to reduce the Government demand to 1,72,737 rupees, which exhibits a total decrease on the assessment formerly paid of 62,136 rupees This relief the Board did not consider greater than the impoverished condition of the people demanded, and it was hoped that it would prove sufficient to enable them to recover from their distress The efforts of the Jats to stand up against the pressure of heavy taxation were most praiseworthy, and they are stated to have paid their revenue "from the hire of their carts, their personal labour, and every source from which they could derive any aid"

| Present jumma | 1,72,737 |

458 Pergunnah Jharsa was formerly contained in the jagheer of the Begum Sombre An increase of 3,343 rupees was made in its assessment, still the actual burden on the people was lessened Under the administration of the Begum they were subject to extortions by the aumils, by whom the estate was managed Large contributions were also received by the headmen under the plea of village expenses "The consequence is," says Mr Lawrence, "that in lapsed jagheers, the headmen regret, but the community rejoice, at the change of administration"

459 The district contains very fine salt beds, in the assessment of which some discrepancy appears to exist In Pergunnah Jharsa the manufacture of salt is considerable, and it is calculated might yield an annual revenue of 7,000 or 8,000 rupees, but the Government demand has been relinquished On the other hand, in Pergunnah Noh, Mr. Barnes states, that although salt lands were never avowedly assessed, yet they paid their revenue at a higher standard than other lands, and that he had therefore fixed on them a rate of assessment amounting to about Rs 3 8 per acre

460 The average rate per acre in this district is on the total area 15 annas, and on the cultivated area Rs 1 11 The present jumma is 10,88,485 rupees, and the former 12,27,748 rupees, showing a total decrease of 1,39,263 rupees

461 In submitting these proceedings to the Lieutenant-governor, the Board remarked that they completed the settlement of the whole division, with a few exceptions, and that it would be quite unnecessary for them to furnish in this the same detailed explanation that they had been in the habit of rendering in other divisions They observed, that after long continued and diligent personal researches, and appeals to all accessible sources of information, they considered these settlements moderate and equitable, and confidently recommend them for confirmation The soil they described as naturally sterile, and the population as emigrant, poor, and miserable. They made a few general observations respecting this division, and briefly noticed the arrangements that had been made in each district, but their remarks can be viewed as little more than a confirmation or recapitulation of those that are to be found in the report of Mr Bird, or in the pergunnah reports of the settlement officers The services of Mr S S Brown, Mr G F Edmonstone, Mr J. Lawrence, Mr G C Barnes, and Mr M R Gubbins were brought to the favourable notice of Government.

462. The Lieutenant-governor, after having personally visited every district in this division except Bhuttee, which was about to be separated from it, was persuaded that the new-formed settlements were, with few exceptions, light and equitable, and such as might in ordinary seasons be collected, leaving a fair profit to the malgoozars. In some of the baranee villages he observed, " seasons of drought and scarcity, especially if continuing for successive years, will cause distress, and need consideration; but again, in good years the profit from these villages is very large; and it may be fair, except in great calamities, to realize in good years what may have been suspended in bad years "

463. Adverting to the former existence of the want of method in the administration of the territory, and acknowledging the efforts of the Board to introduce greater regularity, the Lieutenant-governor was of opinion that the time had arrived when a further step might be taken in advance, and some amendment be made in the rules introduced by the Board into the Delhi territory on the 20th January 1837, especially in those which related to the collection of the revenue The Board were called on to report specially on this subject

464 The opinions entertained by the Lieutenant-governor of the soil and the people were very opposite to those expressed by the Board The soil he thought was fertile, if it could by any means be irrigated, the villages substantial and well built, and the inhabitants " as fine a body of well-clothed, independent, manly peasantry as any country can produce "

466 The fairness of the assessment of the canal villages, he observed, was entirely contingent on the maintenance of a supply of water in the canal, equal to that which existed at the time when the Government demand was fixed This had not hitherto been the case, and all the effects of drought had been experienced Balances had occurred in some villages, which he proposed to meet by remissions, until it should be ascertained by experience whether the efforts that were being made to keep up a constant supply in the canal would make the realization of the Government demand easy and fair, or whether there was a permanent error in the settlement

467 In noticing the settlement of the Rohtuc district, he recorded some interesting remarks on coparcenary communities

468 He deemed the report of Mr Edmonstone, on the Paneeput district, to be complete as far as it went, and creditable to his intelligence and judgment, but incomplete, in so far as it had omitted to notice the large istumraree tenures of the Kurnaul Mundals, which were given by Lord Lake in exchange for a jagheer in Moozuffurnuggur He considered that it was the duty of the Government to maintain in their integrity the rights of the proprietary community Captain Abbott was accordingly deputed to survey the istumraree holdings, with a view of determining the amount payable by each member of the community

469 The remaining observations relate to irrigation by means of bunds, and the regulation of the waters of the Badshapore nullah

470 We have now reviewed the settlement proceedings in the six divisions of Meerut, Agra, Rohilcund, Allahabad, Benares, and Delhi, which are all that are separately reported on by Mr Bird, we shall reserve for future notice the two remaining divisions of Saugor and Kumaon

Concluding remarks

471. To our concluding remarks on the settlement proceedings, which have formed the subject of the preceding examination, we shall prefix the following statements of the results of the settlements, compiled down to the date of the last received administration reports —

* This statement is left blank in the Revenue Proceedings

472 The results presented by these statements are highly satisfactory Making allowance for the large amount of nominal balances included in the jummas and balances of the earlier years of the series, and excepting the years 1839–40 and 1840–41, respecting which we should be glad to receive explanation, the revenue appears by the statement No 1 to have progressively increased; and that this increase has been realized without undue pressure on the people appears demonstrated in the statement No 2, by the progressive and great diminution in all the forms of proceeding for enforcing the payment of arrears.

473. We shall now consider, under the several heads of the objects proposed by the settlement, how far, according to the results of the preceding review, those objects may be deemed to have been successfully accomplished

1 Revision of assessment

474. The results under this head must be regarded as generally satisfactory The jumma has, in most instances, been carefully and considerately adjusted to the capabilities of the soil and the resources of the cultivators When this has not been done in the first instance, it has, for the most part, been accomplished by another revision In some instances further measures of concession appear to be necessary, in Banda especially In relation to this district, some very important observations are recorded by the Lieutenant-governor in the Revenue Narrative for the fourth quarter of 1848 The difficulty of restoring prosperity to a district which has suffered so greatly by over-assessment, and by the consequent continual change of proprietors, induces us to look with approbation on the reductions of jumma noticed in those observations, and which, we trust, will be sufficient for their end. But we think, as a special principle in the management of this district, the Government demand should be carefully kept somewhat below what would be its fair amount on the ordinary rules of assessment The greatest possible moderation appears to us essentially necessary to give encouragement to the agricultural community, and counteract the effect of the long process of deterioration which resulted from the opposite course

475 In Bhutheana also, where the collections almost invariably fall very far short of the jumma, leaving a large annual balance to be written off as irrecoverable, we think the settlement should be revised, and the jumma brought within the limits of the annual realization.

2. Better division of kists.

476. The introduction of the system of realizing the revenue by four instalments in the year appears to have been eminently beneficial to the minor zemindars and the inferior classes of cultivators. The fixing of these instalments, so as to admit of the produce being sold before the revenue should be demanded, was intended to have, and to a great extent unquestionably has had, the effect of liberating the ryot from the hands of money-lenders.

3 Demarcation of boundaries.

477 This, so far as it has gone, appears to have been well performed by the European officers to whom it was entrusted, and to have been attended with the best results both to the Government and to the village communities

4 Correction and arrangement of Tehsildarree accounts and records

478 This portion of the measures proposed may be considered to have been well carried out

5 Road fund.

479. This measure, which at first excited opposition in many places, appears to have been finally acquiesced in, and if not always, yet generally approved.

6 Provisions for village police.

480 This measure was, at first, evidently unpopular We are disposed to hope that, with careful supervision, it may be found satisfactory to the people.

7 Resumption of rent-free tenures.

481 It was always our desire that this measure should be carried out with great lenity and forbearance It many instances it has been so In others, the results have been attended with much hardship, especially when the settlements have not been made with the ex-maafeedars But the solicitude of the several Lieutenant-governors, and especially of the present,* has been carefully directed to remedying the evil in question by money provisions of more or less duration We think this the best method of disposing of such cases It provides for the incumbents and their families, and secures the ultimate rights of Government

8 Recasting or reduction of large tenures.

482 Under this head have been found the greatest differences of opinion, and the greatest practical embarrassments to the Government Numerous suits have been instituted by ousted talookdars in the civil courts, of which some have been decided against the Government, some in its favour, and many are still pending This class of suits will necessarily cease under the operation of Act XIII of 1848, which limits the time after settlement within which they can be instituted.

9 Demarcation of component portions of villages, and record of rights therein

483 This, which is usually called the Kusreh survey, is, in so far as its execution has been brought under notice, the most questionable portion of the entire series of measures, yet it was a work eminently necessary, and most especially so under the system of separate responsibility.

484 And this brings us to a question of great importance, and most difficult of solution, that of joint and separate responsibility in coparcenary mehals Separate responsibility, which is authorised by law to be granted whenever demanded, has been regarded as a great boon conferred on the industrious and meritorious members of village communities. The distinct sale of the shares of defaulting putteedars unquestionably has that tendency; and the option of pre-emption given to the shareholders would have great influence in maintaining the integrity of the community, but this well-intended provision has been, in a great measure, neutralized by mortgages for fictitious values, against which there appears to be no remedy but a valuation on fixed principles, at which the right of pre-emption shall be given to the community

485 There are great differences in the extent to which separate responsibility prevails. In some districts it is universal, in some the instances are numerous, in some few, in others none

486 The late Lord Metcalfe, Mr Robertson, and Mr. Thomason have all been strongly impressed with the superior advantages to the communities themselves of the system of joint responsibility It saves them from the intrusion of strangers, and from the liability to litigation on shares It leaves to them the entire management of their own internal concerns, subject to one common responsibility to Government.

487 The subject is admirably discussed in Mr Thomason's Minute of 25th September 1848 He does not propose an alteration of the law; to this we should be decidedly opposed, but he thinks that every means should be employed to induce the village communities to adopt voluntarily the system of joint responsibility; and in this view we fully concur

488 Another question is, whether the completion of a settlement should be postponed till the completion of partitions. We are of opinion that when there are sufficient data to determine the aggregate assessment of a village, the settlement officer may record it, and the revenue officers may subsequently carry the partitions into effect. It is very desirable, however, that mischief should not be allowed to result from long intervening delays.

489 Another question of importance is, whether an agriculturist, on the renewal of a settlement, should be allowed the full benefit of his improvements, or whether the Government should be held entitled to a share of the additional value which his capital and industry, aided by other circumstances, have added to the land. We are of opinion that the only satisfactory principle on which all future renewals of settlements can be made will be, that reference must be had to the value of the land at the time, a liberal consideration being given for the improvements attributable only to the efforts of the tenant himself, and especially with regard to such as are of a comparatively recent date, and with regard to which he has reaped the advantage only for a short period under the old settlement.

490 Another question of importance is, what will be the position, at the next settlement, of the talookdars who waived the question of their right to engagements, and received a malikana, generally of 18 per cent., on the jumma, for the life of the first incumbent, to be, except in peculiar cases, prospectively reduced, and finally fixed at 10 per cent. We desire to be more fully informed respecting the nature, extent, and duration of the agreement with with these talookdars, and whether the arrangement with them was made for the term of the settlement, or whether it was intended to be permanent.

491. We cannot conclude this despatch without stating the impression which the review of the settlement proceedings has left on our minds of the high honour reflected on the Civil Service by the zeal, industry, ability, and good feeling of the several officers employed, necessarily with differences in degree, but with so little room for exception, that it would be invidious to particularize where there is such ample ground for general satisfaction

492 We feel bound, however, to make an exception in favour of Mr R M Bird. In planning the operations which have been, on the whole, so well concluded, in so superintending their progress as to insure the cordial co-operation of all the officers employed in them, and in thus contributing so largely to their successful accomplishment, we may consider him as having a part in them altogether peculiar and distinct, and as being eminently entitled to our marked and special approbation

Afghan War Opinion that if the Chairs had had the power of recording their sentiments, and of consulting their colleagues in secret court, the Afghan war might never have taken place, the responsibility would then have rested entirely with the President of the Board of Control, if he acted in opposition to what might have been the universal sentiments of the directors, Sykes 1764, 1765——By this proposed power being given to the Chairs, witness contemplates a moral, and not a legal check upon the Board of Control, ib 1766. 1778——From the commencement of the Afghan war till its termination, a period of three years, the proceedings adopted were never communicated to the Court of Directors, and the expenses are not rightly known at the present time, ib 1768-1772.

1 Evidence as to the Constitution of the Presidency of Agra by the Act of 1833.

Changes made by the Act of 1834 with respect to the Government of Agra, and effect thereof, Melvill 410——Important difference between the position of the Lieutenant-governor of Agra and the Deputy Governor of Bengal, ib 424, 425——With respect to the civil services, it was determined to annex to Agra all those civil servants who held offices in that division of territory which was made to constitute the Presidency of Agra, Prinsep 844——The Agra Presidency was constituted by the Act of 1833, and Sir Charles Metcalfe was declared to be the first governor, ib 849——Great advantage has resulted from Agra being constituted a presidency, with a Deputy Governor, ib. 928——Power of the Governor-general in Council of appointing the Deputy Governor at Agra, ib 956, 957

Alexander, Colonel Robert (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Colonel in the Madras army, 2033——Has been in the service for thirty-three years, in different appointments, and was last adjutant-general of the Madras army, 2034, 2035——Witness signed the memorial to the Court of Directors respecting the distribution of the patronage, but he did not concur in all the views of the said memorial, 2036, 2037——Concurrence with the fourth paragraph of the memorial relative to the nomination to the service of the sons and relatives of those who had died in the Company's employment, these nominations should be obtained on public grounds instead of by private favour, as at present, 2038 2040 2043

The sons of officers should have some advantage in the expense of their education, as is the case in Her Majesty's service, 2038 2043——Witness also agrees with that portion of the fourth paragraph which refers to importunity in urging claims, these claims cannot be urged by mothers with due respect to themselves, 2038 2043——Opinion that the service has had a fair share of the distribution of the patronage, 2039 2045——Every officer should have an official channel of communication to the head of the Government of India, that is, either to the Chairman of the Court, or to the Court in its collective capacity, 2040. 2043 2046, 2047——Within witness's experience many officers, who have rendered invaluable but undistinguished service, fail in obtaining appointments for their relatives, 2041

There are many instances where patronage has been given entirely on public grounds, and without any reference to private influence, 2042 2071 2077——The servants of the East India Company have a peculiarly strong claim upon the Government they serve, inasmuch as their lives are passed away from their own country, and they thereby lose all other opportunities of providing for their families, 2044——Concurrence with the memorial in complaining " that there is no department or public functionary anywhere that has the power of rewarding, by the conferment of appointments in India on their sons, the public service of the most meritorious officers," 2048, 2049——It is not advisable that any fixed proportion of patronage, as a matter of right, should be reserved for officers of the Indian army, 2050, 2051 2062.

The memorial was chiefly got up by Captain Macgregor, who seems to have acted on behalf of the officers who signed it, 2052——Opinion that the sons of officers are provided for on public grounds on account of their father's services, 2053——The Court, as a body, have no patronage at their disposal, 2054——Officers in India are not allowed to address the Court, as a body, on the subject of patronage, 2055 2058——Witness is not aware of any instance of an officer at home making other than a private application to an individual director, 2056, 2057——Officers in India have probably as fair a share of patronage as officers at home, 2059, 2060

There is a great difference between an application to the military secretary of the Commander-in-Chief of the Queen's forces and an application to the authorities at the India House, it is peculiarly gratifying to an officer to apply directly to one holding the highest rank in his own profession, 2061 2067 2069 2072——Instead of patronage being considered a personal favour from an individual director, it should be regarded as a reward from Government for public services, 2063——It is very essential that the sons of civil servants should be in the military service, and vice versâ, and also that sons of officers in Her Majesty's service should get cadetships in the Indian army, 2064

Under any system for bestowing a certain amount of patronage on public grounds, there would doubtless be many disappointed candidates, these might still use private solicitation if they had proper opportunities, 2065-2068 2070——It should be a question for the Court of Directors how many appointments they could first bestow on public grounds, and then how many they could fairly reserve for their own private distribution, 2072–2076——If the apportionment of a certain number of appointments to the army were to act as a bar to appointments in the civil service, it would be an objection to any fixed proportion of patronage, 2079——Opinion that the adoption of such a system would not weaken the applications of the sons of Indian officers for employment in the Queen's service, 2080

Allowances Observations relative to the out-of-employ allowance which the covenanted servants of the East India Company receive; the allowance is regulated by the Court of Directors, Prinsep 958, 959.

APPEALS:

1 Generally.

2 Papers laid before the Committee

1 Generally:

Any aggrieved servant in the subordinate presidencies is not considered to have an appeal to the Governor-general in Council, but he must appeal to the Court of Directors, Prinsep 869——Right of appeal exercised by the Government servants to the Home Authorities if they suppose themselves aggrieved by any act of the subordinate Governments, Willoughby 1533, 1534.

2 Papers laid before the Committee.

General abstract report of appeals depending before the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut, North-western Provinces, on the 1st January 1850, and of the number admitted and disposed of in the year 1849, App 615——Abstract statement, showing the years in which were originally instituted regular suits and appeals depending before the Sudder Dewany Adawlut, the Judges, principal Sudder Ameens, Sudder Ameens, and Moonsiffs, in the North-western Provinces, on 1 January 1850, ib 618——Abstract statement of the appellate jurisdiction of the several tribunals in the North-western Provinces, showing what number of decrees in each class of them was appealable, appealed, affirmed, or reversed during the year 1849, ib 621

Applications for Appointments Particulars in reference to the cases of applications for appointments for the sons of Brigadier Wallace, Lieutenant Alexander Stewart, and Colonel Lewis Bruce, officers killed in action, these applications were unsuccessful until the present movement, and have since been granted, Macgregor 1857 1911, 1912——Evidence in detail relative to the applictions made to the Court of Directors for appointments for sons of officers killed in action, and who have performed great public services, and the difficulties and hardships experienced in obtaining such appointments, ib. 1863 et seq——Remarks relative to the continued applications made to directors for appointments, manner in which those applications are received, ib 1905–1910——The present mode of soliciting appointments from individual directors is very objectionable, but witness knows of no other system that could be adopted, Sir G Pollock 1952–1954——Proposal that there should be a committee to sift the grounds of applications for appointments, leaving the distribution of the patronage to the individual directors as it now stands, ib 1960–1969 1973

The present mode of conferring the patronage is very unsatisfactory, objectionable nature of the present practice of urging claims upon individual directors, Taylor 1988–1991——If applications were admitted, supported by the Commander-in-Chief, and perhaps by some of the superior officers, it would remove one cause of dissatisfaction, ib 1993——Inconvenience of the present mode in which persons who have claims from their public services have to make applications for appointments; it operates to exclude the applications of a considerable number of most deserving men, ib 2025

Every officer should have an official channel of communication to the head of the Government of India, that is, either to the Chairman of the Court, or to the Court in its collective capacity, Alexander 2040. 2043. 2046, 2047——Witness is not aware of any instance of an officer at home making other than a private application to an individual director, ib 2056, 2057——There is a great difference between an application to the military secretary of the Commander-in-Chief of the Queen's forces and an application to the authorities at the India House, it is peculiarly gratifying to an officer to apply directly to one holding the highest rank in his own profession, ib. 2061. 2067 2069. 2072——Instead of patronage being considered a personal favour from an individual director, it should be regarded as a reward from Government for public services, ib. 2063——The wives and widows of officers are often placed in a most humiliating position at the India House, in seeking admission to the several directors, this evil is unavoidable, Macleod 2085 2094.

appointments, which may be considered to rest on public grounds, are met, Melvill 235–237——Specific appointments in the gift of the Court of Directors, by selection from persons already in the Company's service, ib 257, 258——Objections to allowing a certain number of appointments to be made by the Court, as a Board, it would be disadvantageous, ib 278–281——Rule observed when the number of assistant surgeons or other officers to be appointed does not equal the number of the Court, ib 331——With regard to the composition of the establishment at the India House itself, appointments are made by the directors in rotation, ib. 370–373——Due consideration is given to the claims of meritorious old servants, opinion that to give a certain number of appointments, with reference to such claims, would act prejudicially to the officers of the Company, Shepherd 837, 838

2 Manner in which Appointments are made by the Government of India

In the absence of the Governor-general from Calcutta he generally allows the parties who administer the Government to distribute the patronage, except in political appointments, disadvantage would result from the Governor-general losing the right of appointing officers, Melvill 501–507——Under the provisions of the Act of 1833, appointments were made and gazetted to the secretariat of India, and of each presidency respectively, Prinsep 842, 843——All appointments are made by the Governor-general, with the consent of the Council, power of the members of the Council to prevent an appointment being made by minuting against it, provided there is a majority against the appointment, ib 948–955 957——In making appointments in India, witness believes that the period of service has always been one element of choice, ib 969——Approval of the present mode of appointment of officers to the civil service of Bengal, Millett 1616–1621

3 Necessity for the Government of India having the power of Appointment of the most efficient Officers to either the Civil or Military Service

Opinion that the general administration as regards the appointment of servants, and their promotion, should be left to the local Government, Melvill 347–351——Any regulation which would prevent the Government from making use of the most efficient men, whether military or civil, in those services, would be very injurious to the Government of India, Sir G R Clerk 1417–1423——It is very essential that the sons of civil servants should be in the military service, and vice versâ, and also that sons of officers in Her Majesty's service should get cadetships in the Indian army, Alexander 2064——There should be no rule as to appointments, and the Government should have absolute power over all the European ability in the country of placing it wherever they judged best for the public service, whether in the civil or military service, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2301

4 Papers laid before the Committee

Number of cases in which the Court of Directors have asked the sanction of the Commissioners for the Affairs of India for any relaxation of the rules for the admission of cadets and writers to the service, and instances in which that sanction has been given, from 1834 to 1851, App 347——Statement of the number of writerships, cadetships, and appointments to the Indian navy, allotted to the members of the Court of Directors and the President to the Commissioners for the Affairs of India respectively, in each year from 1834 to 1851, and of the number of such appointments not actually filled up on the 30th September 1851, ib 351——Number of writerships and cadetships given by the Court on account of special service, from 1834 to 1851, ib

them to the utmost liberality on the part of the Court and of the Government, one-fifth of the patronage is very insufficient, Macgregor 1858——The inadequacy of the general proportion of the patronage conferred on the Indian army tells, with peculiar severity on particular branches of it, ib ——In justice to the Court of Directors, witness must state that he is not aware of any instance in which an appointment has not eventually been obtained for the son of an officer killed in action, but it is a long and hard labour, ib. 1863

2 Opinion that the Claims of the Service have been liberally met.

From witness's general and extensive acquaintance with the Indian army, he has every reason to think that applications for appointments upon public grounds are generally attended to by individual directors, Sir G Pollock 1942-1945——Opinion that the military servants of the Company have their fair proportion of the patronage as compared with the other classes of servants, ib 1946 1950, 1951 1955——Opinion that the service has had a fair share of the distribution of the patronage, Alexander 2039 2045——Opinion that the sons of officers are provided for on public grounds on account of their fathers' services, Alexander 2053——Officers in India have probably as fair a share of patronage as officers at home, ib 2059, 2060

Opinion that the proportion of patronage accorded to the relatives of officers in the Indian army is very fair, instances of this in the case of witness's family, Macleod 2087 ——The patronage of the directors is fairly dispensed, particulars as to the appointments to cadetships conferred on orphans of Indian officers, Right Hon. Viscount Hardinge 2386——The returns show that of 4,832 cadetships given since 1834, 1,080 have been given to the sons of military officers, and that they have also received 164 civil appointments, Melvill 2470——These statements only refer to sons, they make no reference to nephews, grandsons, and other relatives of military officers, if those relations were included, the proportions would be much larger than witness has stated, ib.——Witness does not concur in the statement that not more than one-fifth of the patronage of the Company is given to the sons of officers of the Indian army, ib. 2470 2503——Considering the extent of the Indian army, and the important services in which it has been engaged during the last few years, the very small number of cases adduced goes far to prove that the claims of this branch of the service have been liberally met, ib. 2471.

3 Proposal for allotting One-third of the Patronage to the Army

Proposal that a portion of patronage should be set apart as a public fund to meet service claims, witness does not consider that such right of claim to those appointments would at all diminish the attachment of the servants of the Company to the service, or diminish their obedience to the Company, Macgregor 1847-1857——Witness conceives that it would be for the convenience of the directors themselves if a part of their patronage was set aside as a public fund from which to meet such applications, ib 1887—— Opinion that bestowing one-third of the patronage upon the Indian army, such a proportion would not be unfair to the other branches of the service, ib 1913-1915—— When witness proposes to assign a third of the patronage to meet service claims, he refers to the whole of the patronage, civil as well as military, ib. 1919——With regard to the proportion of one-third of the patronage proposed by witness for the Indian army, the same proportion might be given to the navy, and also the civil service, ib 1922-1925——The plan of giving a third of the patronage to the Indian army might affect the claims of the sons of officers in the Indian army to commissions in the Queen's service, and witness does not see why it ought not to do so, ib 1936——Their claims would be weakened, but would not disappear, because there would still be a great number of disappointments, and in those cases the claim to reciprocity would still exist, ib

4 Objections to allotting a fixed Proportion of the Patronage to the Army.

Application made to the Court of Directors that a portion of the patronage should be annually allotted as of right to belong to the army to meet public claims, such a system would be very disadvantageous, Melvill 239-241 343-346 362-364——It would not be advantageous to the military service of India to give a certain proportion of the appointments to the relatives of the military officers, Sir G. Pollock 1947——Any regulation to distribute a certain amount of patronage amongst the military servants of the Company would not be beneficial to the service, as it would close the door to any other description of application, Taylor 1994, 1995 1999-2009-2020——It is not advisable that any fixed proportion of patronage, as a matter of right, should be reserved for officers of the Indian army, Alexander 2050, 2051 2062——If the apportionment of a certain number of appointments to the army were to act as a bar to appointments in the civil service, it would be an objection to any fixed proportion of patronage, ib. 2079——Opinion that the

the adoption of such a system would not weaken the applications of the sons of Indian officers for employment in the Queen's service, Alexander 2080

Witness considers that children of meritorious officers should be treated by the Court of Directors as they are by the Commander-in-Chief of the Queen's troops, that is, receive commissions for their claims, this suggestion cannot be carried out, Macleod 2089–2093——If a certain proportion of the patronage could be set aside to meet the demands of the sons of distinguished officers, some relief might be given, but the general body of applicants, from their increased number, would be more liable to disappointment than at present, ib 2097–2100——Giving the officers of the Company a claim to appointments for their children would be going far to make the service of India an hereditary tenure, Melvill 2493, 2494——To disturb the present arrangement as to patronage, which works most beneficially for the servants of the Company, and to substitute for it one of distinct allotment of a number of appointments to meet claims, would be most mischievous, and would have a tendency to show that India was administered, in part at least, for the benefit of the servants of the State, ib. 2494 2503–2507

5 Efficiency of the Army under the present Mode of Nomination

No prejudicial effect is produced upon the efficiency of the army by the present mode of nomination, Sir G Pollock 1948——The present mode of nomination has not worked prejudicially to the military service in India, Taylor 1996——Advantage of having a feeling of emulation between the different military services in India, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2224

1. Evidence as to the Changes made by the Act of 1833:

Effect of the changes made by the Act of 1833 upon the Government of Bengal, Melvill 408, 409—— Formation of the separate Governments of Bengal and Agra under the Act of 1833, Prinsep 842——A separate Government of Bengal, it was found, could scarcely be constituted without a separate set of offices and separate records, ib 843——Way in which the measure was carried out in this respect, ib.——In the Secretary's and Political Department no addition was made to the establishment, but in the Judicial and Revenue Departments a deputy secretary for Bengal was appointed, ib——One of the first questions that arose was how to separate the services for Bengal and Agra, ib 844——And it was determined to consider as belonging to Bengal all those civil servants who held offices under the Government of Bengal, ib——With reference to the question of military, it is the army of the Presidency of Bengal, but the same army is also the army of the Presidency of Agra, ib 845-849

2 Opinion that it would be better to revert to the old System:

With respect to Bengal, witness would be glad if it were possible to revert to the old system, under which Bengal was administered by the Governor-general of India in Council, Melvill 411 414-417——The present arrangement of the Governor-general of India being also Governor of Bengal entails immense labour on that officer, any attempt to remedy this would raise practical difficulties in regard to patronage, ib 426-438——Opinion that the Government of Bengal would be most efficiently administered if it were administered by the Governor-general in Council, Prinsep 924, 925——The Government of Bengal has not been so well administered since the late Act as before, ib 929, 930——With regard to the present system of the Governor-general being the Governor of Bengal, and the old system of the Governor-general in Council exercising the local Government of Bengal as well as a general control over all India, witness gives the preference to the former system, because it is very awkward for the Governor-general in Council to hear appeals from his own acts as Governor of Bengal, in which the Council had no concern, Bird 1112-1114——The system of Government as regards Bengal was better anterior to the Act of 1834 than it has been since, Sir T H Maddock 1229, 1230——With regard to the Government of Bengal, witness would revert to the old system of having the Governor-general in Council to manage the business of the presidency, and leaving the patronage in his hands, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2364, 2365.

3 Observations relative to the Council of Bengal:

It was the intention of the Court of Directors that such members of the Council of India as might be qualified by being civil servants of the presidency should also be members of the Council of Bengal, Prinsep 858——But it was decided, under legal advice, that the two duties would be incompatible, consequently, to save expense, there has been no council appointed for Bengal, and the Court determined that no council should be appointed for Agra, for the same reason, ib——Opinion that the Governor-genéral of India should be the Governor of Bengal, appointing a deputy Governor, whose Council might be the Council of India, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2286, 2287.

On the constitution of the separate presidencies of Bengal and Agra a question arose with respect to the patronage, way in which this question was settled between the Governors, Prinsep 849——The present system requires that on the Governor-general leaving the presidency, one of the members of the Council shall be made Deputy Governor of Bengal, great disadvantages arising from the system, ib 926, 927——Arrangement made between the Governor-general and the Deputy Governor of Bengal as to the distribution of patronage, Bird, 1029-1033——Grounds for the opinion that selecting the Deputy Governor of Bengal from one of the members of the Council of India is inexpedient, ib 1034——Power of the Governor-general of appointing a Deputy Governor of

It would be a good arrangement if there was a Governor appointed for Bengal in the same way as there is a Governor appointed for Agra, Melvill 432——Inexpediency of the present arrangement of placing the Government of Bengal under the Governor-general, Bird 995–997——Recommendation that there should be a separate Governor of Bengal, and that the same arrangement which exists in Agra should be introduced into Bengal, ib 996, 997——If there is any objection to the appointment of a separate Governor of Bengal, witness sees no reason why the Government of Bengal should be vested solely in the Governor-general, the Council should have authority there, ib 1021, 1022——In the event of the appointment of a separate Governor for Bengal, he should have the patronage, in the same way as the Lieutenant-governor of Agra exercises the patronage, ib 1029–1033, 1035——Witness would not have the consideration of the patronage act as an obstacle to the appointment of a separate Government for Bengal, ib 1045, 1046——It is very expedient to separate the Government of Bengal from the office of the Governor-general of India, and to give that presidency an independent Governor, Sir T H Maddock 1162 1227——Opinion that it would be desirable to make the Presidency of Bengal a distinct presidency, under a Deputy Governor, or Governor distinct from the Governor-general in Council, Millett, 1591–1593

to act during the Governor's absence, 992-994——Inexpediency of the present arrangement of placing the Government of Bengal under the Governor-general, 995-997

Recommendation that there should be a separate Governor of Bengal, and that the same arrangement which exists in Agra should be introduced into Bengal, 996, 997——The exercise of patronage, under the circumstances in which it is exercised in India, confers no personal advantage on the Governor-general; if he were deprived of the patronage he would not lose influence or authority in India, 998, 999 1030 1035——The Governor-general in Council appoints to all the high offices, witness would not take away that power, but would leave all the other appointments to the discretion of the Governor of Bengal, in the same way as they are left to the discretion of the Lieutenant-general of Agra, 1000, 1001

Suggestion that an additional member from each of the presidencies should be appointed to the Council of India, who could explain any difficulties with regard to local circumstances, 1002——These members should be permanently resident at the seat of the Supreme Government, 1003-1008——The present regulation requires that before any expenditure is incurred in the minor presidencies, a reference should be made to the Council of India, 1009——Inconveniences resulting from this restriction, giving the subordinate Governments the power of expenditure within certain limits would be advantageous, 1009-1012——Opinion that the delay which takes place in the answer to despatches from India, by the mode of correspondence adopted in this country, has not been productive of inconvenience to the Indian Government, 1013.

The present system of sending the whole of the correspondence, and all documents upon any subject of which a despatch from India treats, is necessary and desirable, 1014-1016——Keeping a record of everything is a great and important check against abuses in India, 1015——Opinion that the civil service of India is highly efficient for the duties it has to perform, 1017——Witness would not suggest any change in the mode of nominating parties for the civil service in England; it is very safely and properly vested in the hands of the directors, 1018——The civil service of India is very fairly paid, it was better paid some time ago, 1019——Complaint in the civil service that the situations which they used to occupy are now, in a great measure, occupied by the unconvenanted service, and therefore promotion is not so rapid as it used to be, 1019——The uncovenanted service of India is most efficient, great improvements have been made in that service of late years, 1019, 1020.

If there is any objection to the appointment of a separate Governor of Bengal, witness sees no reason why the Government of Bengal should be vested solely in the Governor-general, the Council should have authority there, 1021, 1022——Power of the Governor-general of appointing a Deputy Governor of Bengal during his absence, 1024-1026——The salary of the Governor-general of Bengal is the same whether he retains the Government of Bengal or not, so that he has no pecuniary inducement not to make the appointment of a Deputy Governor, 1027, 1028——Arrangement made between the Governor-general and the Deputy Governor of Bengal as to the distribution of patronage, 1029-1033.

In the event of the appointment of a separate Governor for Bengal, he should have the patronage, in the same way as the Lieutenant-governor of Agra exercises the patronage, 1029-1033 1035——Grounds for the opinion that selecting the Deputy Governor of Bengal from one of the members of the Council of India is inexpedient, 1034——Statement as to what the general patronage of the Governor-general is, and how far it extends over the whole of India, 1035-1037——Suggestion that all petty patronage should be taken away from the Governor-general, but as regards the great political offices, the patronage should be left to him, 1038-1046——Witness would not have the consideration of the patronage act as an obstacle to the appointment of a separate Governor for Bengal, 1045, 1046.

Grounds for the opinion that it would be advisable to have two members on the Supreme Council who should represent the interests of Madras and Bombay, those members should be appointed in addition to the present members of the Council, 1047-1059 1068-1071——The existence of a Council at the subordinate Governments of Bombay and Madras forms a strong security for the full and free statement of any case of conflicting opinion, 1052——Great advantage would arise from the visit of the supreme authority to the different stations within his Government, at present in Bengal it is impossible, the Governor of Bengal cannot visit any station, however great the emergency may be, 1060, 1061——Generally speaking, the gentlemen who are selected for the Council are selected for their merits and services, and certainly not merely for their standing in the service, 1062, 1063

Explanation as to the conducting of the judicial administration by the uncovenanted servants of the Company, 1064——With reference to the salaries of officers, it has been laid down by a rule of the Court that nobody under a councillor is to receive more than 50,000 rupees a year, 1065, 1066——Necessity of retaining the present legislative control

trol over the subordinate presidencies, it would be wrong to have many places where legislative Acts could be passed, 1067——Witness would recommend the continuance of the legal member of the Council appointed from this country, as this officer has been productive of great convenience, 1072——The same functions could not be performed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, 1073

No advantage would result from the appointment of the heads of the Sudder or the Sudder Board of Revenue to sit in the Council on legislative questions, 1074, 1075——It is much better not to give different duties to the same officers, but to give officers particular duties, and to take care that those duties are properly performed, 1074——Further testimony as to the efficient state of the civil service in India, 1076–1078——With reference to the uncovenanted servants of the Company, they are not sufficiently remunerated, the system might be very much improved, and an efficient body of officers raised from the uncovenanted servants if they were better paid, 1079–1085——There are certain rules laid down as regards the pensions of all classes of officers, pensions are not given to all the uncovenanted servants, 1086, 1087

As the law now stands, it rests with the Court of Directors, under the control of the Commissioners for the Affairs of India, to appoint members of Council at Bombay and Madras, or to abstain from appointing them, as they may think the emergencies of the public service require, 1088–1101——The present number of two civilians in the Council is fixed by the Court of Directors, under the authority of the Act of Parliament, by specific instructions, 1101——Witness does not consider that having two members is of great importance, one man of high character, and possessed of due abilities, would be a sufficient check in all cases, 1102–1107——The Commander-in-Chief, ex officio, has no seat in the Council, he only occupies a seat there by appointment of the Court of Directors, 1102

It has always been the usage of the Governors-general to reserve to themselves all the higher appointments, leaving the subordinate patronage to the Lieutenant-governors of the several provinces, 1108–1111——With regard to the present system of the Governor-general being the Governor of Bengal, and the old system of the Governor-general in Council exercising the local Government of Bengal, as well as a general control over all India, witness gives the preference to the former system, because it is very awkward for the Governor-general in Council to hear appeals from his own acts as Governor of Bengal, in which the Council had no concern, 1112–1114——The improvement of the law in India did not keep pace with the improvement of the law in England, as in 1838 the Supreme Court were deciding under laws which were abolished by the Act of 1834, 1115–1123.

It has always been understood that no English law which has been passed was operative in India unless India was specially named 1124, 1125——Acts passed by the Government of India to make the law of Calcutta conformable to the law of England, and observations thereon, 1126–1133——Remarks relative to the usefulness of the legislative member of the Council of India, improvements effected by Mr Amos, 1128–1131——Opinion that it would not be advisable to change the seat of Government in India 1134–1137 1142——The Council being appointed to advise the Governor-general on all matters connected with the Government of India, it is witness's opinion that whenever the Governor-general is obliged to leave Calcutta he should be accompanied by the Council, so that he might have the benefit of their advice, 1138–1146

Way in which the Governor-general, during his absence from Calcutta, benefits by the Council in Calcutta, official correspondence conducted by the secretaries, 1146——Great difficulty and inconvenience connected with the present mode of election and canvass for directors in this country, disinclination of men eminently fitted for the direction to expose themselves to the inconveniences by coming forward as candidates, 1147–1152——The system of allowing votes by proxy tends very much to increase the trouble and difficulty, 1149

1 Evidence relative to the Constitution and Powers of the Board, Changes effected therein by the Act of 1833

The powers of the Board of Control were enlarged by the Act of 1834, Melvill 4——It was declared that all the powers of the Court of Directors should be subject to control on the part of the Board, except in particular cases with respect to the appointment of the servants and officers, ib——Paper submitted to the Committee of the House of Commons on official salaries by Lord Brougham in 1850, explanatory of the system adopted by the Board of Control, its constitution, and its duties, read, remarks thereon, Waterfield 519-523——The only alteration made since that period is the reduction of the number of junior clerks from thirteen to twelve, ib 524——The money necessary for the maintenance of the Board of Control comes from the East India Company, as authorised by the Act of Parliament, and is limited to 26,000 l a year, ib. 525 621——The amount drawn in 1851 was 23,200 l, ib. 526

There never has been any meeting of the Board of Control according to the provisions of the Act 3 & 4 Will 4, such a Board has never been formed, Waterfield 562-567 623——The present Board of Control only consists of the President and certain ex officio members, ib 563-579——The sums requisite for defraying the charges of the Board of Control are obtained from the India House by the President certifying every quarter that a certain amount is necessary for the expenses of the Board, ib 619-622——The undrawn amount of the sum that is annually allowed to the Board of Control merges in the revenues of India, ib 624, 625——With regard to the political powers of the Board of Control, the Act of 1833 made very little alteration, ib 626, 627——Increase in the business of the Board since 1830, ib 628

2 Explanation as to the Mode of transacting Business between the Board and the Court of Directors.

By the Act of 1834 it is provided that in cases in which the Court of Directors might doubt whether the instructions of the Board of Commissioners were consistent with the law, the Court of Directors might draw up a case, which, when approved by the Board, should be submitted to three judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, whose decision upon the point at issue should be final, Melvill 4——Considering the nature and extent of the business transacted between the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, the cases of serious difference are not numerous, mutual disposition evinced to compromise minor differences, and to struggle only for the principle at issue, ib 26——Power existing in the Board of Control of directing, by a communication to the Court of Directors, the adoption of any line of policy in regard to the administration of the affairs of India, ib 106-116——Observations in explanation of the mode of transacting business between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors. ib. 192, 193.

Differences of opinion between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors are generally settled in communication between the President and the Chairman, Shepherd 713——Course pursued by the directors when a despatch comes down to the Board so far altered as to require a remonstrance, ib——Opinion that the system of proceedings of the Court of Directors and the Board of Control is the best that can be devised, ib 714——The Board of Control and the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors manage conjointly all matters of imperial importance, necessity on such occasions for the Governor-general becoming identified with the Crown, Sir T H Maddock 1265, 1266——No injury arises from the slowness of communication with the Court of Directors, arising from the double branches of the Government here, Sir G R Clerk 1354

However much the President of the Board of Control may consult his colleagues on all important matters relating to India, the Board should still be fenced round with as many moral checks as possible, Sykes 1813, 1814——With regard to the transaction of business between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors there is, in many cases, great dispatch, ib 1822——In any future Act the power of the Board over the Home Treasury should be made as clear as that which they possess over the Treasury in India, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2247-2255——With the exception of the alteration suggested by witness, no material alteration should be made in the relative position of the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, ib 2265

1. Generally

Opinion that the civil servants of the Company have no cause to complain of the operation of the patronage, Shepherd 831——The appointments in India are with the Governors of the different presidencies, the members of Council having the power of dissent, Prinsep 966-968——How far any distaste might be imbibed against the civil service of India if the young men were to associate with those who were to be engaged in home appointments, Sykes 1802-1804——The circumstances in which civil servants are placed, from the mode of their appointment and promotion, may not be the most favourable one for drawing forth any very great exertion of their mental powers, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2298——Particulars of a plan worked out by Mr Wilson, the military secretary, for drawing the whole civil service through the army, ib 2300——It would be desirable not to detain civil servants in Calcutta on their first arrival, as this leads to extravagance and to their contracting great debts, ib 2302——Opinion against the amalgamation of the military and civil service of the presidencies, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2370——No improvement could be made as to the age at which young men are sent to India, ib 2403, 2404

2 Observations on the Efficiency of the Civil Service

The system of the civil service of India, that service being filled by men competent to discharge all its various duties, has undoubtedly worked satisfactorily, Prinsep 960-965——Witness has no reason to believe that by any other system a more efficient body of public servants could be provided, ib 964——Opinion that the members of the civil service generally are fully equal to the important functions they have to discharge, ib 971, 972——Opinion that the civil service of India is highly efficient for the duties it has to perform, Bird 1017——Testimony as to the efficient state of the civil service in India, ib 1076-1078

Great efficiency of the civil service of India; the education of this service is conducted on the most proper system, Sir T H Maddock 1184, 1185——Efficiency of the civil service of India, the education which they have in this country is calculated to make them efficient officers, Sir G R Clerk 1362, 1363——Sufficiency of the precautions taken in the appointment of persons to the civil service to secure an efficient service, the tests applied in the examination are sufficiently rigid, ib 1376-1378——Efficiency of the civil service of India, taken collectively, the officers are much more efficient in the discharge of the peculiar duties devolving upon them than could safely be calculated upon under any other system that witness has seen suggested, Willoughby 1494——Witness can bear the strongest testimony to the general purity and integrity of the civil service, and to its intolerance of anything approaching to corruption, ib.

On the whole, witness considers that the civil service in Bengal is very efficient, Millett 1615, 1616 1637——Opinion that the civil servants of the Company are a most efficient body, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2121——When Governor-general, witness's opportunities of obtaining a general knowledge of the qualifications and conduct of the civil servants of the Company were very limited, but to many individuals in that class, witness can bear the highest testimony as to their efficiency, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2298——Evidence as to the efficiency of the civil service, *Right Hon. Clerk, Sir George Russell, K C B (Analysis of his Evidence)—Has served for twenty-six years in India, principal offices witness has filled, 1333, 1334——Opportunities witness has had of judging of the mode of government of the North-western Provinces, 1335——The Government in those provinces is very efficiently administered, and it ought to be so, for it is more amply provided with good working machinery than any other Government in India, 1336, 1337——Difference in the mode of administration of the North-western Provinces and the Government of Bombay, the Governor of Bombay has a Council, which the Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces has not, 1338, 1339

Witness would not remove the Council from the Governor of Bombay 1340, 1341——The Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces receives his instructions from the Governor-general of India, the Governor of Bombay receives his instructions from the Court of Directors, 1342-1345——Objections to assimilating the system as regards Bombay to the system in the North-western Provinces, importance of the Governor of Bombay communicating direct with the Court of Directors, 1345, 1346——Grounds on which witness comes to the conclusion, that although a Council is of advantage at Bombay, there is no necessity for a Council in the North-western Provinces, 1347-1349

The Government of Bombay is entirely dependent upon the Governor-general in Council, as regards its expenditure, witness would not recommend any change in this practice, 1350-1353——No injury arises from the slowness of communication with the Court of Directors, arising from the double branches of the Government here, 1354——Grounds for the opinion that the voluminous description of the correspondence with the Home Government is necessary and advantageous, 1355-1357 1397——Witness would not suggest any change in the present mode of administration and powers of the Government of Bombay, 1358, 1359——It is not desirable that a member of the civil service of Bombay should be one of the members of the Governor-general's Council, 1360

The number of members of the Council of Bombay could not be diminished without disadvantage, 1361——Efficiency of the civil service of India, the education which they have in this country is calculated to make them efficient officers, 1362, 1363——Opinion as to the sufficiency of the pay of the public servants in India, 1364, 1365——It would be desirable to continue the members of Council longer than the usual period, namely, five years, 1366, 1367——With regard to the Governors, five years is sufficient length of service, from the harassing nature of their duties, 1366——The Government of Bombay does not pay its whole expenses, the whole receipts are much less than the expenses 1368-1373 1464

Remarks relative to the Indian navy, the Bombay marine is now called the Indian navy, in order that it may not be considered as a mere local marine, 1370, 1371——The control of the Governor-general in Council, in regard to the legislation of Bombay, is beneficial and necessary, 1374, 1375——Sufficiency of the precautions taken in the appointment of persons to the civil service to secure an efficient service, the tests applied in the examination are sufficiently rigid, 1376-1378——Large number of military men employed in the diplomatic service of India, the selections have been admirably made, and the system has worked well, 1379-1389——A knowledge of the native languages is essential to enable any officer, either in the Diplomatic or the Revenue Department, to be efficient, 1389-1392 1463.

If any means could be devised it would be advisable to allow greater scope for the selection of military officers for the performance of civil services, 1393, 1394——Opinion that there is no occasion for a general reference of every question which is now sent from India to England, many points might be decided by the authorities on the spot, 1395, 1396 1405-1416——No inconvenience arises from the joint control which is exercised by the Home Authorities and by the Central Government in India over the Government of Bombay, nature of the questions referred to each of these authorities, 1398-1405——The appointment of military men to civil offices does not operate as a discouragement to the civil servants, 1417, 1418

Any regulation which would prevent the Government from making use of the most efficient men, whether military or civil, in those services, would be very injurious to the Government of India, 1417–1423——Manner in which the patronage of the North-western Provinces is exercised by the Deputy Governor, the whole of the patronage being in the hands of the Deputy Governor is objectionable, 1424–1428——Manner in which the patronage of Bombay is exercised, there is no inconvenience in the Governor making the appointments in Council, 1429–1431——Evidence relative to the employment of the natives of India in the uncovenanted service, efficient discharge of the duties entrusted to them, insufficiency of the present remuneration in the native uncovenanted service, 1432–1454

There is very little analogy as regards the machinery of the Government and the distribution of patronage between the Government of the North-western Provinces and that of Bombay and Madras, 1455–1459——Any plan which should strip the Governor-general of a large portion of the patronage would not be conducive to the public good, 1460–1462——Generally speaking, witness thinks that Boards are not so efficient in territories recently acquired as individuals, but it does not follow that the present Board of Administration may not be better than the individual for the government of the Punjaub, 1465——Recommendation that all the officers employed in the Secret Political Department of Bombay should be sworn to secrecy, 1466–1471——Opinion that the power of the Court of Directors to recall the Governor-general is just and indispensable, 1472.

Colleges The power of changing the system of education at the two colleges rests with the Board of Control and her Majesty in Council, Shepherd, 832, 833——Reference to the appointment of Mr Escombe from Westminster School, ib 834, 835——No admission to the colleges can be obtained without a nomination from a director or from the President of the Board, ib 836

Commander-in-Chief Great advantage results from the Commander in-Chief having a seat at the Council Board, Melville 439, 440 459–462——Rank of the Commander-in-Chief when elected a member of the Council, witness sees no objection to the present regulation, ib 467–473——The Commander-in-Chief, ex officio, has no seat in the Council, he only occupies a seat there by appointment of the Court of Directors, Bird 1102——Observations with respect to the power of voting possessed by the Commander-in-Chief; he almost invariably votes with the Governor, and this is a great objection to his having a vote in the civil administration of the country, Willoughby 1490–1493——He should not vote except on military and political questions which may be connected with military operations, ib. 1492, 1493——Witness would not prevent the Commander-in-Chief voting in Council upon all occasions and confine his voting to military matters, Millett, 1629——Witness would continue the Commander-in-Chief as a member of Council if he were on the spot, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2294.

Committees of Directors Number of committees into which the directors are divided, functions of each of these committees, Melvill 13–16——The practice of dividing the Court into separate committees facilitates the business and prevents long discussions when the matters come before the Court, ib 78, 79——Opportunities which a director has for serving on any one of the three committees of the direction which he may prefer by exchanging with another member, Shepherd 767, 768——The Court is divided into three committees, the financial, home, and naval, the political and military, the revenue, judicial, and legislative, and probably in no other government are all questions that arise more thoroughly sifted, Sykes 1723——Investigation of business by the different committees of the Court, showing that it is not expedient to diminish the number of the directors, ib 1817–1820——Bye-laws for the government of the East India Company with regard to commitees, App 415——See also Bye-Laws.

according to the nature of the matter contained in the despatch, and the information that it is necessary to obtain, Prinsep 852——The present system of sending the whole of the correspondence and all documents upon any subject of which a despatch from India treats, is necessary and desirable, Bird 1014–1016——Opinion that the voluminous correspondence between the Government of India and the Home Authorities might be considerably reduced without inconvenience, reference to the course pursued between the superintending Governments in India and the subordinate Government of Agra, in proof of this opinion, Sir T H Maddock 1157, 1158 1231–1233

Grounds for the opinion that the voluminous description of the correspondence with the Home Government is necessary and advantageous, Sir G R. Clerk 1355–1357. 1397——The delay experienced in the correspondence with England is not greater than may be expected from the double authority that exists, first of the Court of Directors, and then of the Board of Control, Willoughby 1478, 1479——There is no doubt that it is highly important that that check and control should be maintained, ib 1480——The expense of copying and examining papers in India has increased yearly, on account of the increased business arising from the copies of the numerous papers that are sent home with every document, however minute, ib ——No inconvenience or injury results from the delay which occurs in the correspondence with the Home Government, the rapidity of communication obviates all those difficulties, Millett 1609——As to the correspondence between the Home Authorities and the Government of India, although some curtailments might be effected, the system insures the advantages both of an absolute and a responsible Government, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2359, 2360

1. Particulars relative to the Appointment of the Councils in India, and Mode of conducting Business
2. Necessity for the Governor-general being assisted by a Council.
3. How far Councils are necessary in the subordinate Presidencies

1 Particulars relative to the Appointment of the Councils in India, and Mode of conducting Business

The law gives the Court of Directors the power of determining whether there shall be a Council or not, and of how many members the Council shall be composed, Prinsep 858 ——The present number of two civilians in the Council is fixed by the Court of Directors, under the authority of the Act of Parliament, by specific instructions, Bird 1101—— Explanation with regard to the method of transacting business in the Council, Millett 1693–1696

2 Necessity for the Governor-general being assisted by a Council

It is not desirable to abolish the Councils, there is a greater prestige about a Governor with a Council than there would be about a Governor without one, Prinsep 858, 859 ——Witness does not consider that having two members is of great importance, one man of high character, and possessed of due abilities, would be a sufficient check in all cases, Bird 1102–1107——Opinion that the Governor-general should always be assisted by his Council in administering the affairs of the Bengal Presidency, Sir T. H Maddock 1301, 1302——Great utility of the Councils, objections to their abolition, the question of the abolition of Councils was warmly discussed in 1833, it was urged that the measure would confer on the Governor arbitrary authority, Willoughby 1484——The arguments used on that occasion, and especially by Lord Ellenborough, are unanswerable, ib —— Necessity for the Governor in his absence from the seat of Government being always attended by two councillors, ib. 1525, 1526.

3 How far Councils are necessary in the subordinate Presidencies.

Limitation of the number of members of Council to two at Madras and Bombay, Prinsep 858——How far it is advisable to give the assistance of a Council to a Governor of any of the presidencies of India, Sir T H Maddock 1163 1228——If it be intended to discontinue the Councils at the subordinate presidencies, witness would recommend that one member in each case be added to the Supreme Council, ib 1164——No advantageous change could be well effected in the Councils of Madras and Bombay if still retained, COUNCILS—continued.

retained, Sir T. H Maddock 1165——Grounds on which witness comes to the conclusion that although a Council is of advantage at Bombay, there is no necessity for a Council in the North-western Provinces, Sir G R Clerk 1347–1349——The number of members of the Council of Bombay could not be diminished without disadvantage, ib. 1361

Opinion that one civil and one military member would be sufficient for the Councils in the minor presidencies, Millett 1603 1623–1628——With respect to the Act of 1833, it would be well to make a formal distinction beween the legislative and administrative Councils, with reference to the control over the subordinate presidencies, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2113——When decisions in matters affecting the people of the Bombay or Madras Presidencies are taken at Calcutta by Bengalese servants, the latter, in taking such decisions, are quite ignorant of the manners and feelings of the inhabitants of these two presidencies, this is a strong reason for maintaining separate Councils at Madras and at Bombay, ib 2127, 2128——Witness is not aware that any decision of those two subordinate presidencies, with reference to the customs and habits of the people, has ever been overruled at Calcutta, ib 2129

Covenanted Service As far as relates to the covenanted branch of the service, the knowledge that no man's advancement depends on the will and caprice of those in power, operates very beneficially, Willoughby 1475 1494——It is proposed to give the natives covenanted situations, and put them in possession of the great civil offices, but in the present day, with the greatly increased facilities of communication and co-operation, no intelligent people under such circumstances would submit to our Government, Right Hon. Earl of Ellenborough, 2305——The line of demarcation between the covenanted and the uncovenanted service should be strictly preserved, otherwise natives might obtain commissions in the army in the higher grade, which would be extremely dangerous, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2426–2434.

1 Generally

Increase of business of the Court of Directors, comparing 1834 with 1851, number of despatches in each of those years, Melvill 10——Evidence as to the voluminous character of the despatches, and the length of time required to examine them, such an examination affords the Home Authorities a great amount of information, which enables them to come to a conclusion which otherwise they could not so well arrive at, ib 194–201——If the Court of Directors were to refuse to transmit a despatch the Board of Control would have no other power than that of applying for a mandamus to compel them to do so, Waterfield 527, 528 561 688–692

2 Evidence as to the Preparation and Transmission of Despatches.

Explanation as to the mode of preparing the despatches for transmission to India, every despatch from India is laid before the Court of Directors, Melvill 23 106–116——There is a constitutional objection to anybody signing a despatch to the Government of India but the Court of Directors, or some member of that Court, ib. 81——All despatches are addressed to the Governor-general of India, none are addressed to the Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces, ib 202–204——The despatches from India always always come to the Home Government in duplicate, one copy being for the Court of Directors and the other for the Board of Commissioners, Melvill 205–207——Despatches are always addressed in the same form, ib 393–395

The changes which have been made of late years in the mode of preparing the despatches has caused an increase of trouble and expense in India, and there are additional clerks entertained on the establishment of the Secretary's office for the purpose, Prinsep 853——Evidence with respect to the mode of preparing despatches for the Court of Directors upon matters of ordinary routine, ib 854——It has been the study of the secretaries, and necessarily so, considering the quantity of business which they have in India, to make the preparation of these despatches as mechanical as possible, ib —— In like manner, the reporting of the despatches from the subordinate authorities, which are reported in so much detail, is quite mechanical, ib ——The preparation of these reports, though the quarterly reports look very formidable, is in fact so mechanical, that it is not the great labour by any means of the Secretary's office, ib ——Statement of the progress of a despatch through the Court, showing that the efficiency of the Court would be materially impaired by any diminution of its number, Sykes 1723, 1724.

3 Opinion that no unnecessary Delay takes place in preparing and transmitting the Despatches to India

Length of time necessary for sending an answer in the shape of despatch to India, the delay that takes place is absolutely necessary, and any inconvenience is more than counterbalanced by the sifting the despatch undergoes, Melvill 24–27. 45–62 144–165 ——The system pursued with regard to the public despatches ensures a careful revision of all the proceedings of the local Government, Shepherd 708——Mode of dealing with despatches which demand prompt and immediate attention, ib 714, 715——Opinion that the delay which takes place in answering despatches from India, by the mode of correspondence adopted in this country, has not been productive of inconvenience to the Indian Government, Bird 1013——Witness is not aware that the Indian Government have experienced any serious inconvenience from the delay which takes place in receiving answers to despatches sent to the Home Authorities, *Sir T. H. 1 Evidence relative to the Appointment and Powers of the Court of Directors.

Since 1834 the directors have been more connected with India, of fifteen directors elected since that period, only one was wholly unconnected with India, Melvill 4 36, 37 ——Great power possessed by the Court of Directors, although the Board of Control controls every act of the Court, ib 20, 21——Power of the Court to record their dissent from

from the decisions of the Board of Control, ib 28, 29——The Court of Directors have the power of laying before the Court of Proprietors any papers not in the Secret Department which they may think fit, and the Board of Control have no power to prevent their doing so, Melvill 29——The number of the directors has not been any practical obstacle to the dispatch of business, though there are occasionally long discussions and long sittings, ib 76, 77

A reduction of the present number of directors would be most prejudicial to their efficiency and independence, Shepherd 725——Advantages that would result if there were a quorum of the Court necessary to conduct the proceedings, ib 729——Out of thirty directors six go out annually by rotation, ib 755——The directors may engage in any pursuit independently of the business of the Company , witness believes that other occupations increase their efficiency as directors, ib 771

2 How far it is advisable to effect any Alteration in the Constitution of the Court.

The effect of the change made in 1834 has been vastly to increase the efficiency of the Court of Directors in the administration of the Government of India, Melvill 10——The Court of Directors being composed of a great number of distinguished members of the public service in India, gives great power to the Court in their communications with the Board of Control, ib 88, 89——Opinion that men of eminence have only to come forward to be elected directors , allusion to the case of Mr Butterworth Bayley in proof of this opinion, Shepherd 722–724——Of late years the directors have been principally Indian , an effusion of English members is very desirable, ib 726——Any alteration in the present authority with respect to the choice of directors and proprietors of the Company could only be made by Act of Parliament, how far such an interference could be justified, ib 743–747 750–752

The Home Government of India would be greatly improved if military or civil servants of the Company could become directors immediately on their return home, Sir T H Maddock 1154——Such a change could only be made by some modification of the elective right of the proprietors, ib 1155——With regard to the proposal for reserving a certain number of seats in the direction for eminent individuals in the Indian service, the practical difficulties would be very great, and considerable jealousies would arise, Sykes 1776.

Witness would entirely abolish the power and position of the present Court of Directors, but if that body could be reduced in number, and be composed of men like Sir Richard Jenkins or the late Mr Charles Grant, there would be no objection to the continuance of the present system, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2312——The Court of Directors may still perform such duties as are connected with the receipt of their dividends, but their duties in connexion with the military, revenue, and judicial departments of the Government of India would be much better performed by a Council, ib 2332–2334——Witness does not know whether the directors perform their duties, or how they perform them, but under the present system he has no doubt that the Government is conducted differently at different times, when at the Board of Control witness conducted the Government himself, ib. 2345, 2346——Witness thinks that the present system of representation produces a very competent body of directors, Right Hon. Viscount Hardinge 2425——The present restrictions on the Court of Directors are, in witness's opinion, quite sufficient, ib 2439, 2440

Disqualification of Officers Evil effects of officers in the civil service of India being in embarrassed circumstances, suggestion that any one who is seriously involved should be deemed disqualified for such employment, Willoughby 1494——Opinion that henceforward it should be a rule that if a person was seriously involved in his pecuniary circumstances, the authorities in India should consider that a disqualification for high offices, ib 1584-1586

1 Generally

2 Opinion that the present Distribution of the Patronage by the Directors is fair and just

3. Objections to the present Mode of Distribution

1 Generally

There is very little analogy as regards the machinery of the government and the distribution of patronage between the Government of the North-western Provinces and that of Bombay and Madras, Sir G R Clerk 1455-1459——The Court of Directors, as a body, has no power of distributing patronage, it being divided in certain proportions among the members, Taylor 2000-2004——The Court, as a body, have no patronage at their disposal, Alexander 2054——Under any system of bestowing a certain amount of patronage on public grounds, there would doubtless be many disappointed candidates, these might still use private solicitation if they had proper opportunities, ib. 2065-2068. 2070——It should be a question for the Court of Directors how many appointments they could first bestow on public grounds, and then how many they could fairly reserve for their own private distribution, ib 2072-2076——The objection to the distribution of the patronage is that there are no means of appeal to any particular party, Macleod 2086. 2088, 2089

2 Opinion that the present Distribution of the Patronage by the Directors is fair and just

The custom of distributing the patronage of the civil and military services chiefly to the sons of the Company's servants is very beneficial, Shepherd 735——Opinion that the distribution of patronage by the directors is fair and just towards the families of the servants of the Company, reference to a statistical statement prepared under witness's instructions, on the 15th November 1843, in proof of the justice of this opinion, Sykes 1759——It appears to witness that the present mode of distributing appointments is the best calculated to give to each class its due proportion, at the same time maintaining the efficiency of the public service, Melvill 2494——Frequent precautions taken from time to time by the Court of Directors, in its collective capacity, to ensure the pure exercise of the patronage by individual members of the Court, ib 2495 2498-2502——With a view to show the Committee the attempt made by the Court to investigate even the motives which have led to an appointment, witness delivers in the documents which embody the statements made by each individual director in the case of civil and military appointments, ib 2496, 2497 ——Opinion that during the last twenty years the number of appointments tainted with any suspicion of corrupt motives in its distribution has been under twenty, and in some of those cases the Court took judicial means to bring the guilty parties to justice, ib. 2508, 2509——From witness's thirty years' experience of the exercise of the patronage by the Directors of the East India Company, it is his opinion that it has been purely and advantageously exercised with reference to the Indian service, ib 2511-2513

3 Objections to the present Mode of Distribution ·

The present mode of distribution is inconsistent with what witness understands to be the public trust involved in that patronage, Macgregor 1857——Statement of various cases to illustrate the working of the present system of the distribution of patronage, ib. ——A great part of what is now complained of in the distribution of patronage, arises out of the practice under the present administration of frequently conferring several

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS

1 Inconveniences of the present Mode of Election of Directors of the East India Company

2 Suggestions for the Improvement of the System.

1 Inconveniences of the present Mode of Election of Directors of the East India Company

Great difficulty and inconvenience connected with the present mode of election and canvass for directors in this country, disinclination of men eminently fitted for the direction to expose themselves to the inconveniences by coming forward as candidates, Bird 1147–1152——The system of allowing votes by proxy tends very much to increase the trouble and difficulty, ib 1149——Opinion that the present mode of election deters many proper candidates from offering themselves to the proprietary, grounds for entertaining this opinion, Sykes 1732, 1733——The expenditure of a candidate for a seat in the direction is very great, and is occasioned by travelling about the country, keeping committees, and having a permanent clerk to keep his books, ib 1735 1743——Witness's election cost him 2,228 l, he was seven years about it, and stood two contested elections, the refreshments for the committee were the only expense attending the actual election, ib 1735, 1736 1738 1741——The members of the committee are generally proprietors, and their services are gratuitous, ib 1744, 1745——Opinion that under the present system of electing directors there will always be the same cause of complaint as now exists as to the distribution of patronage, Macgregor 1847

2. Suggestions for the Improvement of the System

A system of self-election of the directors would be open to great objection, Shepherd 839——A portion of the directors should be elected by the proprietors, and the remainder by the Crown conjointly with the Company, Sir T H Maddock 1156 1234–1238. 1250, 1251——Proposition by which an improvement might be made upon the present system of electing the directors, ib 1250, 1251 1256, 1257

Plan suggested by witness with reference to the method of electing the directors, Sykes 1725 et seq ——The right to vote, which is at present restricted to holders of 1,000 l stock, might be extended to those representing 500 l stock, ib 1725——The adoption of witness's plan would probably insure an early seat in the direction to distinguished Indian servants, while men eminent in civil life at home would be brought in to preserve the ratios of classes, ib 1725, 1726——An Act of Parliament should be passed to meet the different questions in the system proposed for the election of the Court, ib 1728–1730——Witness has never suggested to the Court his plan for the election of directors, a similar plan has been found to work beneficially in the Royal Society, ib 1747–1749 1751

See also Bribery Canvass for the Direction Directors, Court of, 2 Proprietors, 3 Votes for Proprietors

Ellenborough, The Right Hon the Earl of (Analysis of his Evidence)—Period during which witness filled the offices of President of the Board of Control and Governor-general of India, 2225——The termination put by the law of 1833 to the East India Company's acting as a trading company has been advantageous to the Government of India, 2226——Opinion in favour of the change made by the Act of 1833, by which the Company were declared to hold their property of India as trustees for the Crown, for the service of the Government of India, 2227, 2228

Witness doubts whether the Act of 1833 conferred on the Board of Control a new power over the Home Treasury, when President of that Board in 1841, witness wished to change the destination of three steamers which had been ordered and were building in England, from Bombay to China, on account of the war in the latter place, and his wishes were carried out by the Court, but witness could not have compelled the Court to write a letter on the subject, as the provisions of the Act of 1833 relate to correspondence in India, and have no reference to correspondence in England, 2230–2255——In any future Act, the power of the Board over the Home Treasury should be made as clear as that which they possess over the Treasury in India, 2247–2255.

Witness would except from that power the control of the general expenditure on account of the home establishment, and with regard to the annual estimate now sent in to the Board, he would alter the law to make it conform to the practice, 2256–2264——With the exception of the alterations suggested by witness, no material alteration should be made in the relative position of the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, 2265——Explanation with regard to the system of previous communications with the Board of Control on the subject of letters to be submitted by the Court, and upon which opinions are to be given within two months, 2265

The Secret Committee may write a letter to the President of the Board upon the subject of any orders which he may direct them to send to India, but he would not give the Committee a power of officially recording a remonstrance against them, 2266–2269——Approval of the plan of previous consultation between the Chairs and the President of the Board, 2270 et seq ——On some matters witness would consult gentlemen unconnected with the Court in preference to taking the opinion of any member of it, as witness did on one occasion with Sir Richard Jenkins 2273–2279——A permanent secretary to the Board of Control is unnecessary, considering the ability of the senior clerks of the Board, 2280

Remarks with reference to the effect of placing the minor presidencies under the immediate control of the Governor-general, upon matters relating to them witness would have been glad if the Council had been assisted by some distinguished officers from those presidencies, 2281 2284, 2285——The Councils of the minor presidencies should be maintained, and the civil services raised to equal rank and consideration with the civil service of Bengal, 2282, 2283. 2296——Opinion that the Governor-general of India should be the Governor of Bengal, appointing a Deputy Governor, whose Council might be the Council of India, 2286, 2287——Remarks as to the power of the Governor-general of India when absent from his Council, 2288

Calcutta possesses great advantages as the seat of Government, remarks with regard to Agra, Delhi, and Simlah, 2289, 2290——If a man of eminence like Sir Lawrence Peel be appointed Advocate-general, there is no necessity to have a legislative councillor, 2291——The objection to a legislative councillor is, that he always desires to immortalize his service by making some alteration in the law, 2291——The Governor-general would be better assisted by some gentleman, who, in this country, might be appointed Under-Secretary

Under-Secretary of State, after five years he might return to England and be very useful in the discussion of all Indian subjects in Parliament, he might become the best Governor of a presidency, or, if not, the best Governor-general, 2291

Statement of the law respecting the sitting and voting of the legislative member of Council, minute written by witness on receiving a letter from the Court, requesting that the legislative member might be admitted to the Council on all occasions, 2292, 2293 ——Witness would continue the Commander-in-Chief as a member of Council if he were on the spot, 2294——Opinion against the appointment of Governors exclusively from the servants of the Company, 2295——Suggestion for enlarging the Council of India for legislative purposes, by adding civil servants from each of the presidencies, reserving to the Executive Council the power of passing by that Council in cases of emergency, 2297 ——Bodies of natives might also be formed to communicate with on all projects of law affecting their customs and religion, 2297

When Governor-general, witness's opportunities of obtaining a general knowledge of the qualifications and conduct of the civil servants of the Company were very limited, but to many individuals in that class witness can bear the highest testimony as to their efficiency, 2298——The circumstances in which civil servants are placed from the mode of their appointment and promotion, may not be the most favourable for drawing forth any very great exertion of their mental powers, 2298——Evidence respecting a plan prepared by witness when President of the Board of Control for effecting a change in the civil administration of India, by requiring as a qualification for the civil offices a service of a certain period in some native corps, 2299

Remarks as to the advantages which would result from the adoption of such a system, 2299-2301 ——Particulars of a plan worked out by Mr Wilson, the military secretary, for drawing the whole civil service through the army, 2300——There should be no rule as to appointments, and the Government should have absolute power over all the European ability in the country, of placing it wherever they judged best for the public service, 2301——The remuneration of civil servants may be considered sufficient, but not more than sufficient, 2302——It would be desirable, however, not to detain them in Calcutta on their first arrival, as this leads to extravagance and to their contracting great debts, 2302

As civil servants are allowed to retain their offices when they go on leave of absence to the Cape or Australia, there is no reason why they should not do so, if they come to England, but the whole system which permits a civil servant to return after three years' absence, and displace the gentleman who has been efficiently performing the whole of the duties of his office during that period, requires revision, 2303, 2304——Suggestions for remodelling the Home Government and the Government in India, 2305——Increasing want of consideration for the natives on the part of the civil service, and for the native soldiers on the part of the younger British officers, 2305

What is termed the insolence of office produced the insurrection in Saugur, 2305—— It has become essential to the safety of our present position in India to conduct the Government in the name and by the direct authority of the Crown, 2305——This would be a great advantage as regards the feelings of the native states, 2305——Importance of maintaining those states and of paying due consideration to the native princes, 2305—— Particulars of a conversation witness had with the late Dwarkanauth Tagore upon the subject of extending education amongst the natives, if the wishes of the advocates of education were carried out to the full extent, we should not retain possession of India, 2305

It is also proposed to give the natives covenanted situations and put them in possession of the great civil offices, but in the present day, with the greatly increased facilities of communication and co-operation, no intelligent people, under such circumstances, would submit to our Government, 2305——Suggestions for disposing of the patronage, if India should be placed under the direct government of the Crown, 2305-2306——Mode in which witness would form a council of twelve, to assist the officer entrusted by the Crown with the authority over India; the councillors, in the first instance, might be named in the Act of Parliament and vacancies might be filled up on the recommendation of the Governor-general or Governors of presidencies, 2305——But if the principle of election be preferred, the present constituency should be largely increased; the creditors of the Government in India should have a right to vote as well as the holders of East India Stock, and votes might with advantage be given to persons who had served a certain time in India, 2305

The patronage should be transferred to this Council, without enlarging the present share of the President of the Board of Control, 2306——It would be advisable to sell a portion of the patronage, in order that the aristocracy of the country might be induced to enter the service of India, 2306, 2307——Witness would remunerate the councillors by salary, 2308——The Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies would recommend as councillors the most eminent men who had served in India, and that would lead to their coming home somewhat earlier than they do now, 2308

The most eminent men are now deterred from putting themselves forward as candidates by the inconvenience of the canvass, but under witness's plan this difficulty would be obviated, 2308——The councillors might be made members of the Privy Council; but witness would not admit them to a seat in Parliament, 2308, 2309——One advantage of the change suggested would be the abolition of what is called the double government, but the President should have the same power of overruling this Council as he now possesses over the Court of Directors and as the Governor-general in India possesses with reference to the Supreme Council, 2310, 2311 2315

It may be doubtful whether the Governor-general's power of overruling his Council extends to matters of patronage, but it should be made applicable to those matters, 2311——Witness would entirely abolish the power and position of the present Court of Directors, but if that body could be reduced in number, and be composed of men like Sir Richard Jenkins or the late Mr Charles Grant, there would be no objection to the continuance of the present system, 2312——It is not necessary to change the constitution of the Government in India, 2313——There might be a practical advantage in giving the Council a negative in the appointment of the Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies, 2313

Objection to the appointment of the members of Council in India by the Court of Directors without any intervention of the Government of this country, the President of the Board of Control having no negative upon these appointments, 2313——They are not appointed as representing particular departments, but in consequence of some supposed claim to a seat in Council, inconvenience which arose from this circumstance upon the death of Sir William Casement, the military member of Council, at the time the Council had to deal with a mutinous army, and a legal gentlemen, who knew nothing of military matters, was substituted in Sir William's place, 2313

The members of the Council at home, under witness's proposal, would be immovable for six years, 2314——The origination of matters would best rest with the President himself, 2316——If any difference should arise between the President and a councillor upon any matter belonging to the department of the latter, the councillor should have the power of desiring the Council to be summoned, 2316——If the Council differed from the President they might have the power of recording their opinion in the same way that the Court of Directors now have that power, but the Council would be the advisers only, without the power of originating matters, 2317–2319

Giving the patronage to the Council, and reserving to the President the share which at present he possesses for public purposes, would not virtually be vesting the patronage in the Crown, as the members would sit for six years and be entirely independent of the power of the Crown, 2320, 2321——Some of the best men in the Indian service have been brought into it under the patronage of the President of the Board of Control, 2320——The salaries of the councillors should not exceed 1,000*l* or 1,200*l*, but they would be required to live in London, 2322——The Governor-general might be required to nominate two or three individuals for the office of councillor, and the President should make his election of the person to be appointed, 2322

The President would be solely responsible to Parliament if a report were called for, opinion that under the present system his responsibility is much diminished, 2323——It is absolutely essential, however, that he should be assisted by a Council who possess a knowledge of the details of the administration of the Government in India, 2323——Doubts whether the members of Council should be eligible for re-election, 2324, 2325——There is no objection to giving greater publicity to the proceedings of the Indian Government, but nobody in this country will attend to the subject, 2326——The Council would have the power of recording their dissent to any proposal made by the President, but in case of political despatches of the highest importance they might be transmitted, as at present, through a secret committee, without being referred to the Council, 2327–2331

The Court of Directors may still perform such duties as are connected with the receipt of their dividend, but their duties in connexion with the military, revenue, and judicial departments of the Government of India would be much better performed by a Council such as proposed by witness, 2332–2334——The Board of Control was, no doubt, intended to be a practical council, in former times Mr Pitt and Mr Dundas used to attend, but now, although the great officers of State are members of the Board, they never attend, and the whole authority is vested in the President, 2335, 2336

When President of the Board of Control witness always consulted the Duke of Wellington in all matters of difficulty, but he never consulted Sir Robert Peel when he was at the head of the Government, 2336——Examination with reference to the possibility of the Council proposed by witness falling into disuse, as the present Board of Control has done, 2337–2341——Although the Government of this country would not put at the head of the Board an incompetent man, it would still be necessary to leave the nomination of the members of Council in the hands of the Governor-general and Governors in India, 2342

In all its important features the Government of India must always rest with the Governor-general, all attempts in this country to interfere with the details of the Indian Government would be futile or injurious, 2343——The future good government of India will depend in a great measure upon the Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies, but for the purpose of enforcing the responsibility imposed upon them, and aiding them in their duties, it is important to constitute a Council of the most eminent men that can be found, by whom the opinion of the Home Authorities can be communicated to them, 2344

Witness does not know whether the directors perform their duties, or how they perform them, but under the present system he has no doubt that the Government is conducted differently at different times, when at the Board of Control witness conducted the Government himself, 2345, 2346——Whatever duties the Court of Directors now perform, witness would transfer to the Council proposed by witness, which, from the mode of appointment suggested, would be composed of the most fit men for those duties, 2347, 2348——The Governor-general of India occupies a position much above the influence of any improper motive in the selection of officers, 2349

Witness considers that whatever is now done by Parliament should be regarded in the light of an experiment, as he deprecates legislation on the subject of India under a weak Government, 2350——With reference to the administration of the Government in India, witness in marching through the country saw many things that gave him great pain, everything that has been done well in India, has been done by a few individuals, it has not been done by Parliament, 2351, 2352——By adopting the plan for this new Council, there would then be one Government for India, and the mischief of a divided authority would be avoided, 2353

There would be no objection to giving the new Council a negative upon the appointment of the Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies, and some check might be placed over the power of the President of the Board of Control, 2354, 2355——But witness would not give the Council the power of recall, as the expectation of a recall affects the relation of the Governor-general to the native states, in witness's case, it led to the resistance of the Government of Gwalior to the demands made of them, and to the war which followed, 2356

Ellenborough, Lord Letter from Lord Ellenborough to the Chairman and Deputy Chairman of the East India Company, dated 18 March 1835, relative to the transit duties levied in India, App 785——Despatch from the Earl of Ellenborough to the Court of Directors, dated 7 August 1842, transmitting a report of the Bengal Finance Committee, ib 356——Despatch from the Earl of Ellenborough to the Court of Directors, dated 17 February 1843, transmitting transcript of a letter from the Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces on the subject of a Report from the Bengal Finance Committee, ib 361——Letter from the Earl of Ellenborough to the Hon W W Bird, dated 24 September 1842, transmitting the Second Report of the Bengal Finance Committee, ib 364——Despatch from the Earl of Ellenborough to the Court of Directors, dated 22 April 1843, relating to the distribution of the civil service in the North-western Provinces, ib 400

Elphinstone, The Right Hon Lord (Analysis of his Evidence)—Was Governor of Madras from March 1837 to September 1842, 2101——Has also been in India for two years subsequently, but not in any public capacity, opportunity afforded by this visit for observing the different modes of conducting the Government of India, 2102, 2103——Opinion that the Act of 1833 has effected most injurious changes in the subordinate presidencies, and has led to considerable delay in the ordinary transactions of business, 2104——The minute supervision to which the subordinate governments are subjected by the Act of 1833 is a great check to all improvements, and causes a general want of respect towards such governments among their servants at large, 2105 2129-2131

Great delay in the transaction of business caused by the occasional visits of the Governor-general to Simlah, a distance of 2,000 miles from Madras, the object sought to be attained by the Act, namely, the centralization of power in a single controlling authority, is thus entirely defeated, 2105——Opinion that the necessity of reference to the Supreme Government upon all financial matters has not acted as any check to extravagance in the subordinate presidencies, the responsibility is now transferred to the central Government, who have no means of knowing what expenditure is judicious, and what unadvisable, 2106——The supreme control of the finances of the Government should continue in the hands of the Governor-general in Council, but the details of administration of the subordinate presidencies should be left to the Governors in Council of those presidencies, 2107

Opinion that the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay cannot well be placed on the same footing as the North-western Provinces, 2108——In order to effect this object, it would be necessary to amalgamate the army and civil service, objections to such amalgamation, 2109, 2110——It would not be advisable to confine the selection of persons for the offices of the subordinate governments to the Company's servants exclusively, 2111——With regard to the Act of 1833, it would be well to make a formal distinction between the legislative and administrative Councils with reference to the control over the subordinate presidencies, 2113——How far it would be expedient to have members of the Legislative Council from the subordinate governments, 2113

With reference to proposed legislative enactments affecting the habits and customs of the people, it might be advisable to have at each presidency a sort of consultative council of natives, whose opinions on such subjects might occasionally be required, such a measure should be introduced with great caution, 2114——The superiority existing in the North-western Provinces may be partly attributed to the greater energy of the people over the natives of Bengal or the south of India, 2115——The assessment of the revenue in the North-western Provinces by Mr Bird, as being more light and equal, and the greater expenditure out of revenue upon public works in these provinces than in any other part of India, may also account for their superiority over Bengal or the south of India, 2115 2137

On the arrival of witness at Madras, the revenue was rather below the expenditure, after some years they were equalized, and the revenue has since been gradually increasing, 2116——That provision of the Act of 1833 which throws open all employments to the natives of India without distinction of colour or religion, had not much effect in Madras when witness left that presidency, the cause of this may be referred to the numbers of natives then employed in the revenue and in the judicial departments, 2117——Opinion that the operation of that provision should be gradually extended, but that the natives should not be appointed to the covenanted civil service, 2118, 2119——It is very desirable to give writerships to natives who are properly qualified for them, this object can be more easily attained by affording them the means of education in India rather than in this country, 2120

Opinion that the civil servants of the Company are a most efficient body 2121——Promotion by seniority is more the rule in Bengal than in Madras, 2122——Mode of promotion at Madras with regard to meritorious civil servants, 2123——In Bengal promotion is carried out by a removal from the revenue branch to the judicial branch of the service, 2123——Opinion that the furlough for three years is a long leave of absence, and should be curtailed, especially now that communication with England has become so accelerated, 2124——It would be advisable to change the law limiting absences for illness to places within the charter of the Company, 2125

The languages and habits of the inhabitants of the Madras Presidency and of the Bombay Presidency are as distinct as those of any countries in Europe, 2126——When decisions in matters affecting the people of the Bombay or Madras Presidencies are taken at Calcutta by Bengalese servants, the latter in taking such decisions are quite ignorant of the manners and feelings of the inhabitants of those two presidencies, this is a strong reason for maintaining separate Councils at Madras and at Bombay, 2127, 2128——Witness is not aware that any decision of those two subordinate presidencies, with reference to the customs and habits of the people, has ever been over-ruled at Calcutta, 2129——The interference of the Supreme Governments with the subordinate Governments is chiefly objectionable as limiting all control of expenditure, 2129, 2130

The Regulation of 1833, which so much confined the expenditure of the subordinate governments, was found so inconvenient, that the latter are now allowed to spend as much as 500 l without referring it to the Supreme Government, this change was most probably sanctioned by the Court of Directors, 2132, 2133——Injurious effects of sending to Calcutta for the sanctioning of all matters of expenditure exceeding 500 l, these effects are the greater, inasmuch as the Supreme Government seldom sanction anything, and, in consequence, the subordinate officers at the presidencies are less zealous than they otherwise would be, 2133, 2134 2138 2141–2145——How far the great restriction on all public outlay in Madras has checked the good government of that presidency, 2135 2192

There were frequent instances of the Supreme Government disallowing certain expenditure at Madras which was recommended by witness and his Council as necessary for the proper government of the province, 2138 2153——With regard to the revenue of Madras during witness's government there, the change from a deficiency into a small surplus is attributable to a succession of good seasons, that is, to natural causes, and not to any variation in the system of government, 2139, 2140——The Supreme Government at Calcutta are not blamable for any delay in matters relating to Madras, the great distance between those places, and the natural obstructions to a rapid transit, occasion much necessary delay in the transaction of business, 2146, 2147

to the Legislative Council of India, 2148 2194——And the general control should remain in the hands of the Governor-general, 2148 2194——Opinion that all questions of expenditure should be referred, not to the Supreme Government, but to the Court of Directors, who are much more liberal in such matters, 2149 2188 2193——There are generally some members in the Court of Directors who are locally conversant with the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras, whereas in the Supreme Council of Bengal there has never been any member from either of those presidencies, 2150–2152

Reference to the great works of the Cavery Anecut, which were sanctioned by the Court of Directors, these works are of the greatest importance for the purposes of irrigation, and, if submitted to the Supreme Council, most likely would not have been allowed, 2154–2159——Further consideration of the distinction to be maintained, with regard to the natives, between the covenanted and uncovenanted service, if it be desirable to exclude the natives from the highest office, no system can be less offensive than the present, 2160–2162——It is very desirable that the Governors of their respective provinces should make tours of inspection every year, but not for any great length of time, suggestion for preventing too long an absence, 2163 2168–2171——Some provision should be made, giving certain powers to the Governors of the subordinate presidencies whilst absent on these tours of inspection, the present law, which is doubtful in its bearing on this question, should be definitely settled, 2164–2167 2172–2176

The Council in Madras should be maintained with the Governor, the occasional absence of the latter would not prevent communication with his Council on all matters of importance requiring a joint consideration, 2177–2180——Even when the Governor is at the presidency a great part of the business is carried on in writing by circulating the papers, 2180——With regard to improvements at Madras, the Supreme Government refused to sanction the construction of a road from Madras to Bellary, as recommended by witness's Government, 2182——Further reference to the works of irrigation in Tanjore, there are no better means for improving the finances of India, and the condition of the people, than by the construction of works of this nature and of roads, 2183–2187 2189

The power of control given by the Act of 1833 to the Bengal Government has impeded the improvement of the Madras Presidency, 2190, 2191——All enactments relating to Madras or Bengal should be sent to the Governors in Council of those presidencies for their opinion and report, 2195 2220–2222——Distinction drawn between legislative acts and administrative acts, as regards the sources from whence they ought to emanate, 2196——Opinion that the presidencies should be limited to a certain sum of expenditure yearly, with powers to lay out that amount in any way they please, 2197——It would be a very good system to frame estimates of expenditure for the succeeding year in each presidency, and to submit those estimates to the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, 2198–2200 2211, 2212

With regard to the system of education at Haileybury College, it is generally understood that too much attention is paid to the study of Sanscrit and of some of the native languages, 2201–2203——Opinion that the state of our provinces is generally superior to that of the neighbouring native states, 2205–2207——Further reference to the present system of granting furloughs to officers, when on sick leave the officers should be allowed to go where they liked, but ordinary furloughs should be granted, under certain limits, 2208, 2209 2214, 2215——Opinion that it will be a long time before there is a railroad from Madras to Calcutta, and still longer before there is one from Madras to Simlah, 2213

The principal cause of the successful management of the smaller native states is that the revenues are collected and the administration conducted by the immediate officers of the Government, 2216, 2217——The prosperous condition of Mysore is chiefly attributable to the manner in which it is governed by General Cubbon, 2217–2219——Opinion that the disinclination of the Supreme Government to sanction expenditure in the subordinate presidencies arises from a natural preference to attend more especially to the wants of their own presidency, 2223——Advantage of having a feeling of emulation between the different military services in India, 2224

Estimates Manner in which the estimates as regards the wants of the service in India are prepared, Melvill 227–229 340–342——It would be a very good system to frame estimates of expenditure for the succeeding year in each presidency, and to submit those estimates to the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2198–2200 2211, 2212——Much of the objection which the minor Governments have to the control exercised by the Supreme Government in matters of finance would be done away with, if a budget of the resources of each were prepared, and the expenditure apportioned according to the necessities of each, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2367——The budget should be referred to the Home Authorities for approval, ib 2368, 2369

1 Remarks relative to the Power of the Board of Control to regulate the Expenditure of the East India Company

Under the last Act the Board of Control have power over every part of the expenditure of the East India Company, with the exceptions laid down by the Act, Waterfield 693–704——Any proposition to expend money, however small the amount, must be submitted for the Board's decision; frequency of the Board declining to accede to, and proposing to diminish the grants, ib 696–704

2 Control exercised by the Supreme Government of India over the Expenditure of the minor Presidencies

The present regulation requires that before any expenditure is incurred in the minor presidencies a reference should be made to the Council of India, Bird 1009——Inconveniences resulting from this restriction, giving the subordinate Governments the power of expenditure, within certain limits, would be advantageous, ib 1009–1012——The Governor of Bombay is restricted in expenditure only so far as regards the permanent establishments, Sir T H Maddock 1196 1221–1226——The Government of Bombay is entirely dependent upon the Governor-general in Council as regards its expenditure, witness would not recommend any change in this practice, Sir G R Clerk 1350–1353

3 Statement as to the Inconveniences arising from this practice.

The interference of the Supreme Government with the subordinate Governments is chiefly objectionable as limiting all control of expenditure, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2129 2130——The Regulation of 1833, which so much confined the expenditure of the subordinate Governments, was found so inconvenient, that the latter are now allowed to spend as much as 500 l without referring it to the Supreme Government, this change was most probably sanctioned by the Court of Directors, ib. 2132, 2133——Injurious effects of sending to Calcutta for the sanction of all matters of expenditure exceeding 500 l , these effects are the greater, inasmuch as the Supreme Government seldom sanction anything, and in consequence, the subordinate officers at the presidencies are less zealous than they otherwise would be, ib 2133, 2134 2138 2141–2145

1 Generally

Opinion that the Governor-general in Council should have a greater control than he now has over the financial department, Sir T H Maddock 1168 1195——The rule of referring all matters of finance, however trifling in amount, to the Governor-general in Council, is inconvenient and productive of delay, Willoughby 1476——Course adopted to remedy this inconvenience, ib——On the whole, witness is of opinion that in matters of finance a great latitude of discretion might with advantage be allowed to the subordinate Governments, provided they are competent and efficient, ib——Opinion that the necessity of reference to the Supreme Government upon all financial matters has not acted as any check to extravagance in the subordinate presidencies, the responsibility is now transferred to the Central Government, who have no means of knowing what expenditure is judicious and what unadvisable, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2106——The supreme control of the finances of the Government should continue in the hands of the Governor-general in Council, but the details of administration of the subordinate presidencies should be left to the Governors in Council of those presidencies, ib 2107

1 How far any Alteration should be made in the present system of Government in India

Statement as to the existing checks against abuses in the constitution and Government of India, and improvements suggested therein, Prinsep 865–869——Suggestions for re-modelling the Home Government and the Government in India, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2305——It is not necessary to change the constitution of the Government in India, ib 2313—— In all its important features, the Government of India always rests with the Governor-general, all attempts in this country to interfere with the details of the Indian Government would be futile or injurious, ib 2343——The future good government of India will depend in a great measure upon the Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies, but for the purpose of enforcing responsibility imposed upon them, and aiding them in their duties, it is important to constitute a Council of the most eminent men that can be found, by whom the opinion of the Home Authorities can be communicated to them, ib 2344——Approval of the present system of double Government, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2398, 2399

2 Changes effected in the Government by the Act of 1833

Previously to 1834 there were three Governments in India, by the Act of that year the Government of all India was placed in one general central Government, denominated the Governor-general of India in Council, Melvill 399——Explanation as to the constitution and powers of this central Government, ib 399-403——Change made by the Act of 1833, as respects the manner of conducting the Government of India, Prinsep 843

4 Control exercised over the Government by the Home Authorities, whether Advantageous to conduct the Government in the name of the Crown

All powers of the Government of India are exercised subject to the orders of the Home Authorities, agreeably to the Act 13 Geo 3, c. 9, Melvill 399——Power of control possessed by the Central Government over the creation of new offices, and also with regard to the expenditure of money, ib 418–421——All instructions for the Government of India must proceed from the Court of Directors, or the Secret Committee, the East India Company is the only authority known in India, the President of the Board of Control cannot send out instructions, Waterfield 561——Opinion that the Government of India is not a system of mutual check between the Company and the Crown, all substantive power of the Court is under the control of the Crown, Sir T H. Maddock 1284 et seq——It has become essential to the safety of our present position in India to conduct the Government in the name and by the direct authority of the Crown, Right Hon. the Earl of Ellenborough 2305——This would be a great advantage as regards the feelings of the native states, ib

1 Evidence as to the Appointment and Powers of the Governor-General of India

Limit upon the Governor-general of India as to the expenditure of money by him without the sanction of the Court of Directors, Melvill 477–480——With regard to papers and documents sent home with despatches to the Court of Directors, the Governor-general in Council is acquainted therewith, as everything sent home to the Court is sent also to the Supreme Government, ib, 489–492——No inconvenience ever arose from the offices of Governor-general and Commander-in-Chief being united, but witness would not recommend the perpetual union of those offices, ib. 494–500——Course pursued with reference to the appointment of Governor-general or Governors of presidencies, Shepherd 733.

1 Evidence as to the Appointment and Powers of, &c.—continued

Nature of the supervision and control exercised by the Governor-general over the proceedings of the Governments of the subordinate presidencies, Prinsep 857——Before the last Act the Governor-general acted with his Council in the administration, now he acts independently of his Council, this was the most imperfect part of the scheme established by the Act of 1833, ib 921–924——Opinion that the Governor-general could administer the affairs of India, and conduct the administration of the Presidency of Bengal at the same time, ib 931——The Governor-general is certainly a servant of the Crown, inasmuch as he receives all his most important orders from the Crown through the secret committee of the directors, this committee acting independently of the Court, and bound by an oath not to divulge their proceedings, Sir T. H. Maddock 1315–1317——Instance in which the Governor-general might act in direct opposition to the known sentiments of the Court, and as a consequence, of the President, exercising the power at his disposal, Sykes 1791——The general control should remain in the hands of the Governor-general, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2148. 2194.

2 Remarks relative to the Absence of the Governor-General from the seat of Government, Inconvenience resulting therefrom

Inconvenience resulting in the Indian Legislature from the occasional absence of the Governor-general in the provinces, on such occasions a division of authority has been made between the Governor-general and the President of the Council, copy of Act passed to meet such contingency delivered in and read, Sir T. H. Maddock 1160——The absence of the Governor-general from the seat of Government is a great hindrance to business, he should be restrained from going away except in cases of emergency, Millett 1703–1707

3. Explanation as to the Mode in which the Business is conducted during his Absence

Power of the Governor-general to appoint a deputy, both in cases of absence and when he is present, Melvill 409——Difference of opinion which has arisen as to the respective power of the Governor-general when absent from Calcutta, and the President in Council remaining on the spot, ib 441–443——Local Act passed on the Governor-general leaving Calcutta, arranging the division of business, and defining the powers of the Council during his absence, ib 448–451. 511——During the absence of the Governor he exercises all his powers, the patronage is dispensed by him, just in the same way as when he is present, Willoughby 1536–1538

Manner in which the powers which are now delegated to the Governor-general on leaving Calcutta are defined, Millett 1699——Remarks as to the power of the Governor-general of India when absent from the Council, Right Hon. the Earl of Ellenborough 2288——Witness would extend the power which the Governor-general possesses, when absent from his Council, of overruling any legislative measures passed in Council to measures passed when he is present in Council, Right Hon. Viscount Hardinge 2379–2384.

4. Suggestion that certain Members of the Council should always be attendant upon the Governor-General

Suggestion that the Council should be so constituted, that a portion of it, as an Executive Council, might accompany the Governor-general in his absences from the seat of Government, and that another portion might remain, with certain legislative powers granted to them, this suggestion involves an increase in the numbers of the Council, Sir T H Maddock 1160, 1161. 1192–1194——Opinion that the well-being of India, which the Governor-general has to superintend, would be promoted by the Council being invariably attendant on the Governor-general, Millett 1684–1692.

5 Manner in which the Patronage is distributed during his Absence:

Importance of the Governor-general retaining the patronage of the Bengal Presidency, otherwise he would lose much of his authority and influence, Prinsep 934——The Governor-general in Council appoints to all the high offices; witness would not take away that power, but would leave all the other appointments to the discretion of the Governor of Bengal, in the same way as they are left to the discretion of the Lieutenant-general of Agra, Bird 1000, 1001——Statement as to what the general patronage of the Governor-general is, and how far it extends over the whole of India, ib 1035–1037——Suggestion that all petty patronage should be taken away from the Governor-general; but as regards the great political offices the patronage should be left to him, ib 1038–1046——It has always been the usage of the Governors-general to reserve to themselves all education at Haileybury is very useful, but from its exclusive nature, a higher intellectual standard, by the study of law and political economy, might be obtained from the Universities, Sykes 1799–1801 1808, 1809

Opinion that in the system of education pursued at Haileybury more time should be devoted to European subjects, and less time to the study of Oriental languages, Shepherd 734 788 et seq ——Too much attention is paid to Oriental literature at Haileybury, for the acquisition of which there are greater facilities in India than in this country, Willoughby 1499——With regard to the course of education at Haileybury College, too great attention is given to the Oriental languages, which can be best acquired in India, Millett 1616–1618——Opinion that the study of Oriental languages is carried too far at Haileybury College, Sykes 1799——With regard to the system of education at Haileybury College, it is generally understood that too much attention is paid to the study of Sanscrit, and of some of the native languages, *Right Hon. Observations with respect to appointments made from Haileybury College, the test of qualification is sufficiently high to ensure proficiency in the public service, Melvill 271–277 282–300 365–369——No original appointments to the civil service of India can be made, except in favour of persons who have passed through Haileybury College, ib 300——Manner in which the examiners, whose duty it is to test the qualifications of the candidates from Haileybury College, are appointed, ib 301–306——The principal and professors of Haileybury are appointed by the Court of Directors, with the approbation of the Board, ib 307–309

Opinion in favour of retaining the legislative member of the Council, 2362——And of leaving the nomination to seats in the Council with the Court of Directors, 2363—— With regard to the Government of Bengal, witness would revert to the old system of having the Governor-general in Council to manage the business of the presidency, and leaving the patronage in his hands, 2364, 2365——A change in the seat of Government from Calcutta would not be desirable, 2366

Much of the objection which the minor Governments have to the control exercised by the Supreme Government in matters of finance would be done away with if a budget of the resources of each were prepared, and the expenditures apportioned according to the necessities of each, 2367——This budget should be referred to the Home Authorities for approval, 2368, 2369——Opinion against the amalgamation of the military and civil services of the three presidencies, 2370——And against the appointment of a Lieutenant-governor in place of the Councils which now exist at the minor presidencies, 2371

Efficiency of the civil service, 2372——Promotion by seniority, if strictly observed, would be objectionable, 2373, 2374——A member of Council generally retires after a service of five years, and, on the whole, this is desirable, 2375, 2376——The scale of remuneration in the civil service is not too high, 2377——Remarks on the systems of education at Addiscombe and Woolwich, 2378——Witness would extend the power which the Governor-general possesses when absent from his Council, of overruling any legislative measures passed in Council, to measures passed when he is present in Council, 2379–2383——Remarks on the connexion between the Board of Control and the Secret Committee, 2384

The patronage of the directors is fairly dispensed, particulars as to the appointments to cadetships conferred on orphans of Indian officers, 2386——The Secret Committee should have the power of recording their dissent to orders of the President of the Board of Control, which they are obliged to transmit to India in their own name, 2386–2391——It is essential that the orders of the Secret Committee should be signed by the Chairman and Deputy Chairman, in order that they may see that the subject matters are within the jurisdiction of the Secret Committee, 2392, 2393

The Chairman and the Deputy Chairman should be acquainted with everything relating to the Government of India, whether emanating from the Court or the Secret Committee, but certain proceedings, such, for instance, as witness's admonishing the King of Oude, should only be disclosed to the Court at the discretion of the President of the Board of Control, 2392–2397——Approval of the present system of double government, 2398, 2399——As regards the teaching of Eastern languages at Haileybury, the general observation is, that the young men would acquire more in one month in India than in six months in this country, 2400, 2401——On arriving in India they are practically fitted for the first situations they have to fill, 2402

No improvement could be made as to the age at which young men are sent to India, 2403, 2404——Opinion that a free press may be dangerous in Eastern countries, especially during a campaign, 2405, 2406——Officials in India are not allowed to answer articles in newspapers, nor should that be permitted, 2407, 2408——But much good might be effected by publishing certain information relating to public measures in the newspapers, submitting the same to the Government of the presidency previous to publication, 2407–2409——The libellous portion of the press in India has very little influence, but causes much annoyance, 2410——For want of some restriction on the press, information calculated to injure British rule in India is translated into the Persian newspapers, and thus circulated, not only throughout India, but through the adjacent countries, 2411–2413

The Governor-general communicates freely with the President of the Board of Control, and, as a matter of courtesy, with the Chairs, but all orders of political importance must be transmitted to the Governor-general through the Secret Committee, 2414–2417——The necessity of canvassing for the direction deters many gentlemen of high qualifications from becoming candidates, suggestion for empowering the Court to appoint a certain proportion of the directors from men who have been distinguished as Company's servants in India, 2418–2424——Witness thinks, however, that the present system of representation produces a very competent body, 2425——The line of demarcation between the covenanted and uncovenanted service should be strictly preserved, otherwise natives might obtain commissions in the army in the higher grade, which would be extremely dangerous, 2426–2434

It would not be desirable to form a council of natives who might be consulted on matters affecting their customs or religion, when an Act on those subjects is proposed the draft is published in the native languages three months before the Act is carried into effect, and full weight is given to all objections taken against it, 2435–2438——The present restrictions on the Court of Directors are in witness's opinion quite sufficient, 2439, 2440——Upon important matters an answer to a despatch from India might be expected in three months, and on matters not requiring deliberation the time occupied might be less, 2441–2443——The legislative councillor should attend the Council as at present, although restricted to voting upon legislative matters, witness would not substitute the Advocate-general in his place, 2446–2452

In some cases the Governors of presidencies might be chosen from the civil service of the Company, but more frequently there is an advantage in selecting them from Europe, 2453——Young statesmen would be more fitted for the future conduct of Indian affairs by travelling through the country than by being attached to Governors in India in the capacity of Under-Secretaries of State, 2454, 2455——Evidence as to the appointment of military officers in the civil service, the system has acted very beneficially, 2456–2469——Explanation relative to the pension of 1,000 l a year enjoyed by the civil officer at the end of his service, 2466, 2467——A military man employed in a civil situation continues to rise in military rank, and his services would be available, if required, in the event of war, 2468, 2469

Heads of the Sudder No advantage would result from the appointment of the heads of the Sudder, or the Sudder Board of Revenue, to sit in the Council on legislative questions, Bird 1074, 1075.

HOME COUNCIL FOR INDIA

1 Suggestion for the formation of a Council to assist the Governor-General in the Government of India.

2. Powers proposed to be given to this Council

1. Suggestion for the formation of a Council to assist the Governor-General in the Government of India:

Mode in which witness would form a Council of twelve to assist the officer entrusted by the Crown with the authority over India, the councillors, in the first instance, might be named in the Act of Parliament, and vacancies might be filled up on the recommendation of the Governor-general or Governors of presidencies, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2305——But if the principle of election be preferred, the present constituency should be largely increased, the creditors of the Government in India should have a right to vote as well as the holders of East India stock, and votes might with advantage be given to persons who had served a certain time in India, ib.——Witness would remunerate the councillors by salary, ib 2308——The Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies would recommend as councillors the most eminent men who had served in India, and that would lead to their coming home somewhat earlier than they do now, ib

The councillors might be made members of the Privy Council, but witness would not admit them to a seat in Parliament, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2308, 2309——An advantage of the change suggested would be the abolition of what is called the double Government, but the President should have the same power of overruling this Council as he now possesses over the Court of Directors, and as the Governor-general in India possesses with reference to the Supreme Council, ib. 2310, 2311. 2315——The members of the Council at home, under witness's proposal, would be immovable for six years, ib 2314——The salaries of the councillors should not exceed 1,000*l* or 1,200*l*, but they would be required to live in London, ib 2322——The Governor-general might be required to nominate two or three individuals for the office of councillor, and the President should make his election of the person to be appointed, ib.

The President would be solely responsible to Parliament if a report were called for, opinion that under the present system his resposibility is much diminished, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2323——Doubts whether the members of Council should be eligible for re-election, ib 2324, 2325——Examination with reference to the possibility of the Council proposed by witness falling into disuse, as the present Board of Control has done, ib 2337–2341——Although the Government of this country would not put at the head of the Board an incompetent man, it would still be necessary to leave the nomination of the members of Council in the hands of the Governor-general and Governors in India, ib 2342——By adopting the plan for this new Council, there would then be one Government for India, and the mischief of a divided authority would be avoided, ib 2353

2. Powers proposed to be given to this Council.

The patronage should be transferred to the Council without enlarging the present share of the President of the Board of Control, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2306——There might be a practical advantage in giving the Council a negative in the appointment of the Governor-general and the Governors of presidencies, ib 2313——The origination of matters would best rest with the President himself, ib 2316——If any difference should arise between the President and a councillor upon any matter belonging to the department of the latter, the councillor should have the power of desiring the Council to be summoned, ib——If the Council differed from the President, they might have the power of recording their opinion in the same way that the Court of Directors now have that power, but the Council would be the advisers only, without the power of originating matters, ib 2317–2319

Giving the patronage to the Council, and reserving to the President the share which at present he possesses for public purposes, would not be virtually vesting the patronage in the Crown, as the members would sit for six years, and be entirely independent of the power of the Crown, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2320, 2321——The Council would have the power of recording their dissent to any proposal made by the President, but in the case of political despatches of the highest importance, they might be transmitted, as at present, through a secret committee, without being referred to the Council, ib 2327–2331——Whatever duties the Court of Directors now perform, witness would transfer to the Council proposed by him, which, from the mode of appointment suggested, could be composed of the most fit men for those duties, ib 2347, 2348——There would be no objection to give the new Council a negative upon the appointment of the Governor-general

general and the governors of presidencies, and some check might be placed over the power of the President of the Board of Control, Right Hon. the Earl of Ellenborough 2354, 2355——But witness would not give the Council the power of recall, as the expectation of a recall affects the relation of the Governor-general to the native states; in witness's case it led to the resistance of the Government of Gwalior to the demands made of them, and to the war which followed, ib 2356.

3 Papers laid before the Committee

1 Authority conferred on the Board of Control with regard to the Home Treasury, by the Act of 1833

The great alteration made with regard to the powers of the Board of Control in the Act of 1834, was that the Act gave to the Board a control over the Home Treasury of the East India Company, Waterfield 627——Opinion that the President of the Board of Control has a power to dip into the Home Treasury of the East India Company for political purposes, reference to a Return before the House of Commons in support of this opinion, Sykes 1791 1795-1798——Evidence with reference to the doubt that has been expressed concerning the power existing in the Board of Control over the Home Treasury, and generally over the operations at home, of the East India Company, the practice is quite in conformity with the Act 3 & 4 Will 4, Melvill 2514-2519 2521, 2522——If the President of the Board of Control desired an additional force of steamers to the Indian navy, it is witness's opinion that he could originate that question, ib 2523-2525——He would state to the Court of Directors by letter, with reference to the state of India, and to the strength of the Indian navy, that it appeared to the Board to be desirable that an additional force should be provided, and he would request the Court of Directors to consider the subject, and prepare the draft of a communication upon it, ib 2523——If the Court do not adopt the view of the President of the Board, he has power to give effect to his opinion, as the law now stands, ib 2526, 2527

2 Doubts as to whether the Act of 1833 gave the Board of Control any Power over the Home Treasury

Witness doubts whether the Act of 1833 conferred on the Board of Control a new power over the Home Treasury, when President of that Board, in 1841, witness wished to change the destination of three steamers, which had been ordered, and were building in England, from Bombay to China, on account of the war in the latter place, and his wishes were carried out by the Court, but witness could not have compelled the Court to write a letter on the subject, as the provisions of the Act of 1833 relate to correspondence in India, and have no reference to correspondence in England, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2230-2255——In any future Act the power of the Board over the Home Treasury should be made as clear as that which they possess over the Treasury in India, ib 2247-2255——Witness would except from that power the control of the general expenditure on account of the Home Establishment, and with regard to the annual estimate now sent in to the Board, he would alter the law to make it conform to the practice, ib 2256-2264.

Leave of Absence. It would be advisable to change the law limiting absences for illness to places within the charter of the Company, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2125——As civil servants are allowed to retain their offices when they go on leave of absence to the Cape or Australia, there is no reason why they should not do so if they come to England, but the whole system, which permits a civil servant to return after three years' absence, and displace the gentleman who has been efficiently performing the whole of the duties of his office during that period, requires revision, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2303,2304 ——See also Furloughs

Legislation. Laws passed by the Government of India, although they have immediate effect, are liable to be disallowed by orders from home, Melvill 399 508-510——The legislative power being exclusively vested in the General Government of India, was a wise provision of the Act of 1833, as it insures uniformity where such is desirable, and a more perfect and matured deliberation in the enactment of laws, Willoughby 1477——The power of legislation should be reserved to the Legislative Council of India, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2148 2194——Witness considers that whatever is now done by Parliament should be regarded in the light of an experiment, as he deprecates legislation on the subject of India under a weak Government, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2350 ——See also Supreme Government Trade and Navigation

Legislative Council of India Witness has not given much consideration as to whether any advantage would result from the number of the Legislative Council being enlarged by including within its body other public servants, heads of departments, Prinsep 909——No doubt a larger body would give more mature consideration to the different subjects which might be brought before it, but it might be more difficult to manage, ib 909-912——Difficulties in the way of appointing residents in Calcutta to assist in the deliberations of the Legislative Council, in the same way as residents do in many of our colonies, ib 910——How far it would be expedient to have members of the Legislative Council from the subordinate governments, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2113——Suggestion for enlarging the Council of India for legislative purposes by adding civil servants from each of the presidencies, reserving to the Executive Council the power of passing by that Council in cases of emergency, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2297

1 Particulars relative to the Appointment and Duties of the Legislative Member of the Council of India

Observations as to the new office created by the Act of 1834 for the Government of India, called the Legislative Councillor, nature of the duties of this officer, the working of this new office has been successful, Melvill 482-488——The Legislative Councillor who is appointed from England used formerly to sit and vote in the Councils, referring to the Executive Government of India as well as to legislation, Prinsep 885-887——This was objected to by Lord Ellenborough, and his sitting was discontinued, ib. 886-888——The Court being sensible that there was no inconvenience in his sitting, the practice has since been restored, ib 885-891——The main object of the appointment of the Legislative Councillor was the preparation of a general code of laws for India, progress made in the preparation of such a code, ib 892, 893 899-908

With regard to any system for the future legislation of India, there should be some member of the legislative body well conversant with the laws of England, instance of the objectionable working of the present system, by which, in 1850, an Act was passed affecting the religious rites and ceremonies of the Hindoos, and thereby causing great offence to a large body of the people of India, Sir T H Maddock 1321——Statement of the law respecting the sitting and voting of the legislative member of Council; minute written by witness on receiving a letter from the Court requesting that the legislative member might be admitted to the Council on all occasions, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2292, 2293——The Legislative Councillor should attend the Council as at present, although restricted to voting upon legislative matters, witness would not substitute the Advocate-general in his place, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2446-2452.

2 Great Advantage has resulted from the Appointment of this Officer, necessity for the continuance of the Officer

There is no doubt that the appointment of a Legislative Councillor from England has improved the constitution of the Council, the Act of 1833 prescribes that he shall only sit and vote on questions connected with legislation, Prinsep 860-863——How far witness considers it desirable to retain this fourth or legislative member of the Council, ib 864——Practical benefit which has resulted from the existence of the office of Legislative Councillor, ib 894-898——Witness would recommend the continuance of the legal member of Council appointed from this country, as this officer has been productive of great convenience, Bird 1072——The same functions could not be performed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, ib 1073——Remarks relative to the usefulness of the legislative member of the Council of India, improvements effected by Mr. Amos, ib 1128-1131

The continuance of the legislative member of Council is desirable under the present system of Indian legislature, Sir T H Maddock 1322-1324——Objections to the discontinuance of the Legislative Councillor, the Indian Government has benefited by the existence of that councillor, Millett 1647, 1648——Opinion in favour of retaining the legislative member of the Council, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2362

3 Opinion that there is no necessity to have a Legislative Councillor

If a man of eminence like Sir Lawrence Peel be appointed Advocate-general, there is no necessity to have a Legislative Councillor, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2291 ——The objection to a Legislative Councillor is, that he always desires to immortalize his service by making some alteration in the law, ib ——The Governor-general would be better assisted by some gentleman, who, in this country, might be appointed Under-Secretary of State, after five years he might return to England, and be very useful in the discussion of all Indian subjects in Parliament, and he might become the best Governor of a Presidency, or, if not, the best Governor-general, ib

Macgregor, Captain Robert Guthrie (Analysis of his Evidence )—Captain in the Indian army, has been thirty years in the service, 1840——Copy of the memorial addressed to the East India Company as to the mode of distributing the patronage, and the inadequate consideration of the claim of the servants of the Company to patronage in favour of their sons, 1841——This was signed by General Welsh as senior officer, he being deputed to sign it by the other parties whose names were annexed, the number who coincided in the opinion expressed in the memorial was 220, 1842, 1843——Witness was deputed by General Welsh to state the ground on which that memorial was founded, 1844

The details of the facts are not entered into at all in the memorial, it is a kind of statement of the general argument of the service of the officers in the Indian army in favour of a certain proportion of the patronage being given to them, 1845——There has been made public in the Court of Proprietors a return of the military patronage, including the summary and direct cadetships for the twelve years from 1840 to 1851, but witness is not aware of any public return of the patronage between 1834 and 1840, 1846——Way in which witness would provide for the present inadequate consideration of the claims of the two services upon the patronage of the East India Company, 1847 et seq

Opinion that, under the present system of electing directors, there will always be the same cause of complaint as now exists as to the distribution of patronage, 1847——Proposal that a portion of the patronage should be set apart as a public fund to meet service claims, witness does not consider that such right of claim to those appointments would at all diminish the attachment of the servants of the Company to the service, or diminish their obedience to the Company, 1847–1857——Witness would not object to the allotment of that portion of the patronage being vested in the directors of the East India Company collectively, 1850——There is a much stronger claim for this change now than there was previous to 1834; 1852

The claims of old officers for ensigncies for their sons are readily attended to at the Horse Guards, and complied with, as far as the means at the disposal of the Commander-in-Chief will admit, 1856——Statement in corroboration of the memorial addressed to the East India Company, 1857——It is an admitted fact that there is no department at the India House, and no public functionary there, or anywhere, that has the power of rewarding, except as of private gift, the service of the most meritorious officers, 1857——Frequency of officers who have submitted their claims to appointments for their sons on services alone, having been refused, 1857——The present mode of distribution is inconsistent with what witness understands to be the public trust involved in that patronage 1857

Witness is prepared to go into some examination of the returns submitted by the Court of Directors, both in 1833 and at this time, as to the distribution of the patronage, evidence generally upon the subject of those returns, 1857, 1858——Statement of various cases to illustrate the working of the present system of the distribution of patronage, 1857——Reference particularly to the cases of applications for appointments for the sons of Brigadier Wallace, Lieutenant Alexander Stewart, and Colonel Lewis Bruce, officers killed in action, these applications were unsuccessful until the present movement, and have since been granted, 1857 1911, 1912——Return of the distribution of the Court's military patronage during twenty-one years, from 1813 to 1833, and observations thereon, 1857

Return of the direct cadetships and seminary appointments for twelve years, from 1840 to 1851, and remarks thereon, 1858——It is impossible from this return to say what proportion of the appointments was given to the Indian army and what proportion was given to the Marine and Ecclesiastical departments, 1858——If those two branches were excluded, and if the return was extended to the whole nineteen years instead of the twelve arbitrarily selected by the Court, the result would be that only one-fifth of the patronage would be shown to have been given to the Indian army, 1858——Witness is confirmed in that opinion by a different return derived from the East India House, in which it appears that seventeen and a half per cent was the proportion of the patronage for the seven years, 1836 to 1843, being under one-fifth, which, in witness's estimate, he gave the Court credit for, 1858

Return of the direct cadetships from 1 January 1836 to 15 November 1843, 1858——Statement of the main arguments on behalf of the Indian army to a larger proportion of the patronage, 1858——The deserts of the Indian army are such as entitle them to the utmost liberality on the part of the Court and of the Government, one-fifth of the patronage is very insufficient, 1858——The inadequacy of the general proportion of the patronage conferred on the Indian army tells with peculiar severity on particular branches of it, 1858——In justice to the Court of Directors, witness must state that he is not aware of any instance in which an appointment has not eventually been obtained for the son of an officer killed in action, but it is a long and hard labour, 1863

Evidence in detail relative to the applications made to the Court of Directors for appointments for sons of officers killed in action, and who have performed great public services, and the difficulties and hardships experienced in obtaining such appointments, 1863 et seq——Statement of the case of Lieutenant-general Samuel Smith, of the Bengal cavalry, who endeavoured to procure appointments for his sons and did not succeed, he having been in the service fifty-one years, 1863–1868——Case of Colonel Charles Carmichael, who applied for an appointment for his nephew, the son of an officer of high distinction in the civil service, without success, 1870–1877. 1891–1894——Case of Lieutenant-general Greenstreet, who applied for an appointment for his son, which was refused, he at the same time receiving from the Court of Directors his medal with eight clasps, 1877–1883

Case of the application of the widow of Colonel Birch for an appointment for her son, frequent applications made in this case, but always unsuccessfully, 1883–1885 1918——Case of Lieutenant-colonel Geddes, who has applied for an appointment for his nephew, the son of Dr Geddes, superintending surgeon on the Madras establishment, but without success, 1885——A great part of what is now complained of in the distribution of patronage arises out of the practice, under the present administration, of frequently conferring several appointments upon a single family, instance of an individual who had twenty-three appointments at different times conferred upon him, 1885–1887—— Applications made by Lieutenant-colonel Budd for an appointment for his son, which utterly failed, 1885——Lieutenant-colonel Gregory Jackson was equally unsuccessful in his application for an appointment for his son, having no interest, 1885

Exertions used by Colonel Richmond to obtain an appointment for a son, but without success, 1885, 1886——Unsuccessful applications made by Mrs Hunter to procure an appointment for her grandson, whose father died three years ago in the command of a regiment of native infantry, 1886, 1887 1895–1904——Case of the widow of Lieutenant-colonel Bulkeley, who, after repeated applications, has been unable to obtain a commission for her son, 1887——Witness conceives that it would be for the convenience of the directors themselves if a part of their patronage was set aside as a public fund from which to meet such applications, 1887——Under the present system, the administration by the directors of their patronage is as good as can be expected from any similar body of men so elected, but that admission must not be interpreted into an approval of the system itself, 1887

To facilitate the conferment of the patronage under a new system, there might be appointed to the chairman or to the committee of patronage a secretary from among their own establishment at the India House, or chosen from the service, one acquainted with the cases of the applicants, 1887——In Her Majesty's service there is no difficulty at all in the distribution of the military patronage by a single head, 1887——And witness believes that as little difficulty would be experienced in the administration of the Indian patronage through a single official medium, instead of continuing the necessity of applying to so many different quarters, 1887——As regards this patronage, the Indian officer is exposed to a necessity to which he is not subjected as regards any other patronage, and to which no class but his own are subjected, 1887

The mode of distributing the patronage of military appointments in India most acceptable to the service would be, that the administration of that part of the patronage which might be assigned as a public fund to meet service claims should be confided to the judgment and honour of a Board of officers, appointed by the direction, but not members of the Court, 1888–1890 1920, 1921——Remarks relative to the continued applications made to directors for appointments, manner in which those applications are received, 1905–1910——Opinion that in bestowing one third of the patronage upon the Indian army, such a proportion would not be unfair to the other branches of the service, 1913–1915——Witness doubts that there are many instances of the directors bestowing appointments upon the sons of officers who have distinguished themselves when they were wholly unacquainted with them, solely on account of their father's services, 1916, 1917

When witness proposes to assign a third of the patronage to meet service claims, he refers to the whole of the patronage, civil as well as military, 1919——With regard to the proportion of one-third of the patronage proposed by witness for the Indian army, the same proportion might be given to the navy, and also the civil service, 1922–1925 ——As to the qualification, the same qualification should be required from a candidate under the system proposed as under the present system, 1932——Reason for witness believing that there exists a greater disposition to distribute the patronage on public grounds as the period for the renewal of the charter approaches, 1933–1935

The plan of giving a third of the patronage to the Indian army might affect the claims of the sons of officers in the Indian army to commissions in the Queen's service, and witness does not see why it ought not to do so, 1936——That claim would be weakened, but would not disappear, because there would still be a great number of disappointments, and in those cases the claim to reciprocity would still exist, 1936

Macgregor, Captain See Patronage, 1

Macleod, Lieutenant-general (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Lieutenant-general in the Indian army, 2081——Was originally in the Engineers corps, and has served altogether between fifty-six and fifty-seven years, 2081——Witness signed the memorial to the Court of Directors with regard to the distribution of patronage, reasons for so doing, 2083 et seq ——Opinion that it is impracticable to carry out the suggestions of the memorial, 2084 2086 2088 2093——The wives and widows of officers are often placed in a most humiliating position at the India House in seeking admission to the several directors, this evil is unavoidable, 2085 2094——The objection to the distribution of the patronage is that there are no means of appeal to any particular party, 2086 2088, 2089.

Opinion that the proportion of patronage accorded to the relatives of officers in the Indian army is very fair; instance of this in the case of witness's family, 2087—— Witness considers that children of meritorious officers should be treated by the Court of Directors as they are by the Commander-in-Chief of the Queen's troops, that is, receive commissions for their claims, this suggestion cannot be carried out, 2089–2093——If a certain proportion of the patronage could be set aside to meet the demands of the sons of distinguished officers, some relief might be given, but the general body of applicants, from their increased number, would be more liable to disappointment than at present, 2097–2100

Maddock, Sir Thomas Herbert (Analysis of his Evidence)—Has served in India for thirty-three years in different capacities, 1153 1332——During the last three years has been Deputy Governor of Bengal and President of Council, 1153 1332——The Home Government of India would be greatly improved if military or civil servants of the Company could become directors immediately on their return home, 1154 1238, 1239 ——Such a change could only be made by some modification of the elective right of the proprietors, 1155 1255——A portion of the directors should be elected by the proprietors, and the remainder by the Crown, conjointly with the Company, 1156 1234–1238 1250, 1251——Opinion that the voluminous correspondence between the Government of India and the Home Authorities might be considerably reduced without inconvenience, reference to the course pursued between the superintending Government in India and the subordinate Government of Agra in proof of this opinion, 1157, 1158. 1231-1233

The system of Government in India has been greatly improved by the last Charter Act, which confines the power of general and local legislation to the Supreme Council, 1159——Inconvenience resulting in the Indian Legislature from the occasional absence of the Governor-general in the provinces, on such occasions a division of authority has been made between the Governor-general and the President of the Council, copy of Act passed to meet such contingency delivered in and read, 1160——Suggestion that the Council should be so constituted that a portion of it, as an Executive Council, might accompany the Governor-general in his absences from the seat of Government, and that another portion might remain, with certain legislative powers granted to them, this suggestion involves an increase in the numbers of the Council, 1160, 1161. 1192-1194.

It is very expedient to separate the Government of Bengal from the office of the Governor-general of India, and to give that Presidency an independent Governor, 1162. 1227——Since the last Charter Act Bengal has never had, for any length of time, a permanent resident Governor, 1162——How far it is advisable to give the assistance of a Council to a Governor of any of the presidencies of India, 1163 1228——If it is intended to discontinue the Councils at the subordinate presidencies, witness would recommend that one member in each case be added to the Supreme Council, 1164——No advantageous change could be well effected in the Councils of Madras and Bombay, if still retained, 1165——Mode of communication from the minor Presidencies to the Governor-general in Council, no other system can be more convenient, 1166-1168.

Opinion that the Governor-general in Council should have a greater control than he now has over the Financial Department, 1168-1195——Witness cannot understand why the Court of Directors allow the Indian Government no control over the Indian navy, which, under the present system, is not managed economically, 1168 1221-1226——Much advantage would result if all the orders and instructions from the Home Authorities to the subordinate Governments were communicated through means of the Governor-general in Council, 1169——There is no limit by law to the period of a member's seat in the Supreme Council, but the Court of Directors have declared their intention to limit such period to five years, how far it is desirable to maintain this limit, 1170-1172——A similar understanding prevails with reference to the tenure of the office of Governor or Governor-general, the Home Authorities have the option of extending the period or otherwise, 1170 1178.

The directors have occasionally prolonged the tenure of office as regards the Council of Bengal and the Supreme Council, 1173——Opinion that till very recently there was no limit to the period of a member's seat in the Council at Madras, since 1834 the limit of five years has applied to all the presidencies, 1173-1176——Witness is not aware that the Indian Government have experienced any serious inconvenience from the delay which takes place in receiving answers to despatches sent to the Home Authorities, 1177——Instance of the Governor-general's office being prolonged in the case of Lord Auckland, who continued nearly six years in India, 1179——Similar instance as regards Lord William Bentinck, who was Governor-general for seven years, before and after the last Charter Act, 1180

Opinion that the Crown should have a joint power with the Court of Directors in the recall as well as in the appointment of the Governor-general, 1182, 1183——Great efficiency of the civil service of India, the education for this service is conducted on the most proper system, 1184, 1185——It would not be prudent to reduce the remuneration of the civil servants of the Company to a lower scale than the present, 1186——Witness is only aware of one instance in which the Court of Directors have exercised their power to recall the Governor-general, 1187, 1188——Evidence showing that there is no necessity or expediency for removing the seat of Government in India from Calcutta, 1189, 1190——Since the introduction of railways into India and the increased communication with Europe by steam, it is less desirable than ever to remove the seat of Government to Bombay, 1191

The Governor of Bombay is restricted in expenditure only so far as regards the permanent establishments, 1196 1221-1226——General evidence respecting the power of the Crown and the Court of Directors, jointly or severally, to recall or dismiss any servants of the Company, from the highest to the lowest grade, 1197 et seq——Opinion that in the case of any difference of opinion respecting the recall of the Governor-general, the power of the Court should yield to that of the Crown, 1206-1210. 1281.——Inconsistency of the law as regards the office of Governor-general of India and that of the subordinate servants of the Company, the power of the Court to recall the Viceroy of such an empire, as representative of the Crown, is very anomalous, 1215-1220 1260-1272——The system of Government, as regards Bengal, was better anterior to the Act of 1834 than it has been since, 1229, 1230.

The nature of the canvass deters many distinguished men from becoming candidates for directors, how far there is anything humiliating in this canvass, 1239–1249 1252–1255——Proposition by which an improvement might be made upon the present system of electing the directors, 1250, 1251 1256, 1257——Instance of the deterrent effect of the canvass in case of witness, who on that account would not become a candidate, 1255——The authority and position of the Governor-general in India might be weakened if it were known among the natives that he was liable to be removed by the Company without the consent of the Crown, 1260——All orders of the Court of Directors must be approved by the President of the Board of Control, 1262–1270

The orders of the directors to the Governor-general would be carried out as at present, even if the power of recall were transferred to the Crown, 1262——The Board of Control and the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors manage conjointly all matters of imperial importance, necessity on such occasions for the Governor-general becoming identified with the Crown, 1265, 1266——The Indian navy is one of the covenanted services, and the officers rise by gradation, just as in the military service, 1273, 1274——The small marine force under the Bengal Government is not a covenanted or commissioned service, nor is it subject to the Mutiny Act, 1275, 1276 1278, 1279——The Indian navy have a separate Mutiny Act, 1278

The Bengal steamers are regular ships of war, and have done the greatest service in the China war and in the Eastern Archipelago, great hardship and injustice suffered by this service, 1280——The Governor-general, on his assumption of office, takes an oath of fealty to the East India Company, 1282

[Second Examination ] It is objectionable in principle to give the power of recalling the Governor-general to a certain proportion or majority of the Court of Directors, 1283——Opinion that the Government of India is not a system of mutual check between the Company and the Crown, all substantive power of the Court is under the control of the Minister of the Crown, 1284 et seq——The patronage of all the appointments in India, excepting a few of the higher offices, is vested in the East India Company, 1286–1288——Further evidence respecting the recall of the Governor-general, there is great anomaly and inconsistency in giving such power to the Court of Directors, 1287 1299, 1300 1303 et seq

The East India Company are precluded from interfering with the Governor-general in questions of peace or war, on such occasions, the Crown, acting through the Secret Committee of the Company, gives all instructions, and is responsible for the result, 1290–1295——The Secret Committee incur no responsibility in the case of important diplomatic questions, or of peace and war, such matters rest almost exclusively with the President of the Board of Control, 1294–1298——Further opinion that the Governor-general should always be assisted by his Council in administering the affairs of the Bengal Presidency, 1301, 1302——The law already provides the course to be pursued in case a Governor-general should be accused of a ruinous or improper system of government; opinion that on such occasions the Crown is at least as responsible as the East India Company, and should possess the entire authority of recall or otherwise, 1309, 1310.

Opinion that there is no analogy in law between property in East India stock and the empire of India, 1311——Further reference to the oath of fealty taken by the Governor-general, it cannot be deduced from this oath that he is in any greater degree the servant of the Company than of the Crown, 1313–1315 1320——The Governor-general is certainly a servant of the Crown, inasmuch as he receives all his most important orders from the Crown, through the Secret Committee of the Directors, this Committee acting independently of the Court, and bound by an oath not to divulge their proceedings, 1315, 1317——All instructions to the Governor-general relating to the whole internal economy and administration of Indian affairs are invariably controlled, and, it may be, dictated, by the President of the Board of Control, who might still exercise the same power during any long period of universal peace that may occur in future years, 1318, 1319

With regard to any system for the future legislation of India, there should be some member of the legislative body well conversant with the laws of England, instance of the objectionable working of the present system, by which, in 1850, an Act was passed affecting the religious rites and ceremonies of the Hindoos, and therey causing great offence to a large body of the people of India, 1321——The continuance of the legislative member of Council is desirable under the present system of Indian legislature, 1322, 1324——Reference to the education of the civil servants of the Company at Haileybury, no alteration is necessary with regard to the amount of study spent in acquirement of the native languages, 1325–1327——Suggestions with respect to the patronage of the Bengal Presidency, 1328–1331

Melvill, James Cosmo (Analysis of his Evidence)—Secretary to the Court of Directors of the East India Company, 1——Has been forty-four years in the service, and during nearly thirty years at the head of departments, 2——Statement as to the changes in the constitution of the Government of India, at home, caused by the Act of 1834, 3 and 4 Will 4, c 85, 3, 4——Previously to 1834 the East India Company were a trading company, and were also invested with the Government of India, under the Act of 1834 they ceased to trade, and were restricted to the Government of India, 4——Since 1834 the directors have been more connected with India, of fifteen directors elected since that period only one was wholly unconnected with India, 4 36, 37——Previously to 1834 the proprietors could only vote by ballot personally, which was secret voting, under the Act then passed they were allowed to vote by proxy, that is open voting, the result of this has been largely to increase the number of votes given, 4

Up to 1834 the Company had large territorial claims upon India, under the Act of 1834 those claims were all relinquished, and from thenceforward the Company were declared to hold the property of India as trustees for the Crown, 4——The powers of the Board of Control were enlarged in 1834 to meet the altered circumstances of the case, 4——It was declared that all the powers of the Court of Directors should be subject to control on the part of the Board, except in particular cases with respect to the appointment of the servants and officers, 4——The powers of the Secret Committee, which had previously been limited to cases of peace or war, or negotiations with native States and Princes of India, were in 1834 extended, 4.

Previously to 1834 the Court of Directors had the power of making grants of money to any one person, not exceeding 600*l* in one sum, and any annuity not exceeding 200*l.* a year, without reference to the Board of Control, under the Act of that year, all money grants are subject to that Board, 4-6——By the Act of 1834 it is provided that in cases in which the Court of Directors might doubt whether the instructions of the Board of Commissioners were consistent with the law, the Court of Directors might draw up a case, which, when approved by the Board, should be submitted to three judges of the

Court of Queen's Bench, whose decision upon the point at issue should be final, 4—— Powers possessed by the Court of Proprietors beyond that of electing directors, 5, 6 ——There is no limit to the power of the Court of Proprietors in making grants of money, 6

Advantage of the Court of Proprietors possessing the power of discussion with regard to the affairs of India, questions are raised and discussed there, instead of being raised and disusseed in Parliament, 7——It certainly was contemplated by the parties to the arrangement of 1834 that the General Court should have the power of discussion, 7—— At present no quorum is required to constitute a General Court of Proprietors, it would be an improvement if there were one, 8, 9——The effect of the change made in 1834 has been vastly to increase the efficiency of the Court of Directors in the administration of the Government of India, 10——Increase of business of the Court of Directors, comparing 1834 with 1851, number of despatches in each of those years, 10——The Chairman and Deputy Chairman are chosen by the Court of Directors, by selection from among their own body, 11, 12

Number of committees into which the directors are divided, functions of each of these committees, 13–16——Remarks ralative to the attendance of the directors, 17–19 39–41——The Chairman and Deputy Chairman attend every day, and once a week they confer personally with the President of the Board of Control, 17——Great power possessed by the Court of Directors, although the Board of Control controls every Act of the Court, 20, 21——The President of the Board of Control, as the adviser of the Crown, recommends for particular offices in India, as Bishops and Judges of the Supreme Court, to which the Sovereign appoints, 22——The Board of Control is expressly prohibited from nominating or appointing any servants of the Company, or from interfering with the absolute right of the Court to recall and dismiss their servants at pleasure, 22

Explanation as to the mode of preparing the despatches for transmission to India, every despatch from India is laid before the Court of Directors, 23 106–116——Length of time necessary for sending an answer in the shape of despatch to India, the delay that takes places is absolutely necessary, and any inconvenience is more than counterbalanced by the sifting the despatch undergoes, 24–27 45–62 144–165——Considering the nature and extent of the business transacted between the Court of Directors and the Board of Control the cases of serious difference are not numerous, mutual disposition evinced to compromise minor differences, and to struggle only for the principle at issue, 26—— Power of the Court to record their dissent from the decisions of the Board of Control, 28, 29

The Court of Directors have the power of laying before the Court of Proprietors any papers not in the Secret Department, which they may think fit, and the Board of Control have no power to prevent their doing so, 29——Observations with respect to the Secret Committee, nature and jurisdiction of this committee, how far any enlargement of the powers and jurisdiction was made by the Act of 1834, 30 83——Improvements suggested in the constitution and powers of the Secret Committee, advantage of maintaining this committee as a channel of communication with the Government of India, 31–33 80–87——Changes made in the Home Establishment consequent upon the Act of 1834, 34.

Detail as to the constitution of the Home Establishment, there are four distinct departments or offices; nature of each branch department, 35——Remarks relative to the Secretary's Department, number of officers employed, and nature of the business transacted, 35——Statement with reference to the number of officers in the Examiner's Department, and nature of the duties of the office, 35——Observations as to the duties of the military secretary, 35——Nature of the duties of the statistical reporter, establishment of officers in this department, 35——It is the practice of the Court of Directors to allot to the President of the Board of Control a share of the patronage equal to that which is given to the Chairman, 42–44.

The Court of Proprietors cannot call for any papers which are in the Secret Committee until those papers have been laid before the Court of Directors, 63–73——Manner in which despatches which pass through the Secret Committee are recorded and deposited, 64, 65——Generally the Court of Proprietors show great deference to the opinion of the directors, 74, 75——The number of the directors has not been any practical obstacle to the despatch of business, though there are occasionally long discussions and long sittings, 76, 77——The practice of dividing the Court into separate committees facilitates the business, and prevents long discussions when the matters come before the Court, 78, 79

There is a constitutionnl objection to anybody signing a despatch to the Government of India but the Court of Directors, or some member of that Court, 81——The Court of Directors being composed of a great number of distinguished members of the public service in India, gives great power to the Court in their communications with tbe Board of Control, 88, 89——Remarks relative to the length of time that matters are kept within within the province of the Secret Committee, it may occasionally happen that subjects are kept too long by them, in which the necessity for secrecy has ceased, 90–105——Reference to the case of the papers relating to the occupation of Scinde, the Punjaub, and Affghanistan, periods they were retained by the Secret Committee, 93–102.

Great advantage has accrued to the public service from keeping matters relating to the administration of a newly-conquered province within the jurisdiction of the Secret Committee, 103–105—Power existing in the Board of Control of directing, by a communication to the Court of Directors, the adoption of any line of policy in regard to the administration of the affairs of India, 106–116——Selection of the members of the Secret Committee by the Court of Directors, from among their own number, 117–119—— The operations against Affghanistan were commenced and completed, and all the expenses incurred, whilst within the province of the Secret Committee, and before the result was communicated to the Court of Directors, 120–123——In the business called secret, the Board of Control has the absolute power of giving orders, which the Secret Committee are bound to carry out, the only objection that the Committee can make is, that the orders so given are not within the provisions of the law, 124–137 166–169.

In all cases of declarations of war it is within the power of the Board of Control to act, through the Secret Committee, without the concurrence of the Court of Directors, 138–143——Every acceleration of the mode of communication has had the effect of accelerating the transaction of business at the India House, 157–159——The military correspondence with India is conducted with marvellous promptitude, 160–165——Opinion that the more the orders from home are deliberately framed, the more likely they are to commend themselves to the attention of the local Government, 170——If the change were made that the whole power of the Home Government were held by a Secretary of State, or by the Court of Directors, independently of the Board of Control, it would be very mischievous, 171.

The local Government of India have, by statute, the power of addressing the Secret Committee upon any subject connected with the Government of India that they consider it right to keep secret, 172–174 179–181——The change which took place in the right of voting under the Act of 1834 was an improvement, 175–177——It would not be advantageous to allow civil and military servants of long standing to vote without being holders of stock, 178——Opinion as to the effect of giving power to the Secret Committee to make any communication, upon any question of war or otherwise, which is now kept secret for a considerable period, 182, 183——With respect to the power of the President of the Board of Control to institute proceedings of war and peace, he is responsible to Parliament for the exercise of that power, 184–191.

Observations in explanation of the mode of transacting business between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors, 192, 193——Evidence as to the voluminous character of the despatches, and the length of time required to examine them, such an examination affords the Home Authorities a great amount of information, which enables them to come to a conclusion, which otherwise they could not so well arrive at, 194–201

[Second Examination ]—All despatches are addressed to the Governor-general of India, none are addressed to the Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces, 202–204——The despatches from India always come to the Home Government in duplicate, one copy being for the Court of Directors and the other for the Board of Commissioners, 205–207——Remarks relative to the introduction of the "P C" system as to despatches, it being the marking of despatches with regard to which previous communication has taken place between the Chairman and the President of the Board of Control, 208–210—— Witness does not think it advisable in the case of the Secret Committee declining to sign a despatch, that they shall have the power of making an appeal, or of entering a protest upon the Board's orders, 211——The business of the India House has greatly increased in consequence of the bi-monthly communications; there has been no material increase in the staff of clerks, 212.

With regard to the delay which takes place in settling despatches, the length of time they remain in "P C" does not arise from neglect or inattention of the Board of Control; whatever delay occurs arises from the sifting process which the draft undergoes, 213–221——Evidence as to the system of patronage in filling up appointments to the services in India, 222–237——Manner in which the estimates, as regards the wants of the service in India, are prepared, 227–229 340–342——All appointments are made by the Court of Directors, a proportion is allotted to the Board of Control by courtesy, 230. 232, 233——Manner in which claims to appointments which may be considered to rest on public grounds are met, 235–237——Application made to the Court of Directors that a portion of the patronage should be annually allotted as of right to belong to the army, to meet public claims, such a system would be very disadvantageous, 239–241. 343–346. 362–364

The proposal to sell a portion of the patronage on the public account is altogether untenable, the sale of appointments is never resorted to by the Government of this country, 242, 243——The efforts of the Court of Directors have been great, and still continues, to prevent their appointments from being sold, 242——The possession of the patronage gives importance and position to the Court of Directors, the exercise of patronage by the Court has been, upon the whole, judicious and satisfactory, 244, 245——Objections to the patronage of the East India Company being transferred to the Queen's Government, 246 332——Observations as to the number of chaplains in the service of the Company, manner in which appointed, the archdeacons are selected from among the chaplains, 247–255

The volunteers for the Bengal Pilot Service are appointed by the Court of Directors in rotation, 256——Specific appointments in the gift of the Court of Directors, by selection from persons already in the Company's service, 257, 258——With regard to promotions in India, they are entirely made by the local Government without the interference of the Home Authorities, 259 377–385——Remarks relative to the appointments held by natives, they are confined to the uncovenanted service, distinction between the covenanted and uncovenanted service, 260–267 386——Witness is not aware of any case of an individual having a claim upon public grounds to an Indian appointment who had sought for it and had failed, 268–270 330——Observations with respect to appointments made from Haileybury College, the test of qualification is sufficiently high to insure proficiency in the public service, 271–277 282–300 365–369

Objections to allowing a certain number of appointments to be made by the Court, as a Board, it would be a disadvantage, 278–281——No original appointments to the civil service of India can be made, except in favour of persons who have passed through Haileybury College, 300——Manner in which the examiners, whose duty it is to test the qualifications of the candidates from Haileybury College, are appointed, 301–306——The principal and professors of Haileybury are appointed by the Court of Directors, with the approbation of the Board, 307–309——Evidence as to the establishment at Addiscombe, examination which the cadets undergo, 310–319——Particulars with respect to writerships offered to competition of the public schools, 320–325——The establishment of the preparatory institutions, Addiscombe and Haileybury, has tended to improve the character and efficiency of the civil and military servants in India, 326–329

Rule observed when the number of assistant surgeons, or other officers, to be appointed, does not equal the number of the Court, 331——It would be an advantage, if it were possible, to combine the system of Haileybury with that of other public institutions, so as to make it less exclusive, 333–339——Opinion that the general administration, as regards the appointment of servants, and their promotion, should be left to the local Government, 347–351——Virtually, India is governed by the local Government, subject to the control of the Home Authorities, necessity for the Government of India being dependent upon the Home Authorities, 352–354——Statement as to the cost of education, &c at the establishments at Haileybury and Addiscombe, 355–361

With regard to the composition of the establishment at the India House itself, appointments are made by the directors in rotation, 370–373——The general system of promotion at the India House is by seniority, but the Court of Directors exercise their discretion in appointing to any office deemed important, 371——The system of payment at the India House is liberal, a return of the establishment, and the salaries paid, is in course of preparation, 374, 375 512——System of superannuation pursued at the India House as prescribed by the Act, 376——As regards the raising and officering of irregular troops, the arrangement is made in India, and is reported by the local Government to the Court of Directors for approval, 387–390——Examination and test to which candidates for assistant surgeonships are subjected, the appointment of full surgeon rests with the local Government, 391, 392

Despatches are always addressed in the same form, 393–395——The appointments to the Bombay marine, commonly called the Indian navy, are made by the Court here, this service is subject to martial law, 396–398——The several ships employed under the Bengal Government are under martial law when engaged in military operations, the appointments to them are made by the Bengal Government, 398——Statement of the changes effected in the constitution of the Government of India by the Act of 1834, 399——Previously to 1834 there were three Governments in India, by the Act of that year the Government of all India was placed in one general central Government, denominated the Governor-general of India in Council, 399——Explanation as to the constitution and powers of this central Government, 399–403

All powers of the Government of India are exercised, subject to the orders of the Home Authorities, agreeably to the Act 13 Geo 3, c 9, 399——Laws passed by the Government of India, although they have immediate effect, are liable to be disallowed by orders from home, 399 508–510——Steps taken by the Court of Directors to give effect to the changes made in the constitution of the Government of India by the Act of 1834, 404–407——

407——Effect of these changes upon the Government of Bengal, 408, 409——Power of the Governor-general to appoint a deputy, both in cases of absence and when he is present, 409——Effect of the changes effected by the Act of 1834 with respect to the Government of Agra, 410——With respect to Bengal, witness would be glad, if it were possible, to revert to the old system under which Bengal was administered by the Governor-general of India in Council, 411 414-417

As to Madras and Bombay, witness does not see how it would be possible to reduce to Lieutenant-governors the Governors where there are separate armies and separate services, 411——Necessity for the constitution of the Governors in Council at Bombay and Madras being maintained, 411-413——Power of control possessed by the Central Government over the creation of new offices, and also with regard to the expenditure of money, 418-421——Duty of the subordinate Governments to give every information to the Supreme Government, the system of legislation should be in the hands of one authority, and that the Central Government, 422, 423——Important difference between the position of the Lieutenant-governor of Agra and the Deputy Governor of Bengal, 424, 425——The present arrangement of the Governor-general of India being also Governor of Bengal entails immense labour on that officer, any attempt to remedy this would raise practical difficulties in regard to patronage, 426-438

It would be a good arrangement if there was a Governor appointed for Bengal in the same way as there is a Governor appointed for Agra, 432——Great advantage results from the Commander-in-Chief having a seat at the Council Board, 439, 440 459-462 ——Difference of opinion which has arisen as to the respective power of the Governor-general when absent from Calcutta and the President in Council remaining on the spot, 441-443——There would be no difficulty in the Governor-general selecting a suitable person to fill the office of Governor of Calcutta, 444-447——Local Act passed on the Governor-general leaving Calcutta arranging the division of business and defining the powers of the Council during his absence, 448-451 511 ——The Governments of Bombay and Madras are limited at the present time against expenditure of every kind, all matters referring to expenditure are submitted to the Governor-general in Council, how far any inconvenience arises from this restriction, 452-458 474-476 481.

No advantage would result from changing the seat of Government to a more central position in India, the Governor-general may go to any part and take his Council with him, 463, 464——Considering the extension of territory which has lately taken place in India, there might be an advantage in establishing an additional presidency in Northern India, the Punjaub and Scinde might form a separate presidency, 465, 466——Rank of the Commander-in-Chief when elected a member of the Council, witness sees no objection to the present regulation, 467-473——Limit upon the Governor-general of India as to the expenditure of money by him without the sanction of the Court of Directors, 477-480——Observations as to the new office created by the Act of 1834 for the Government of India, called the Legislative Councillor, nature of the duties of this officer, the working of this new office has been successful, 482-488.

With regard to papers and documents sent home with despatches to the Court of Directors, the Governor-general in Council is acquainted therewith, as everything sent home to the Court is sent also to the Supreme Government, 489-492——No inconvenience ever arose from the offices of Governor-general and Commander-in-Chief being united, but witness would not recommend the perpetual union of those offices, 494-500 ——In the absence of the Governor-general from Calcutta he generally allows the parties who administer the Government to administer the patronage, except in political appointments, disadvantage would result from the Governor-general losing the right of appointing officers, 501-507——Considerable reduction in the number of clerks employed in the India House since 1833, saving of expense resulting from that reduction, 513-515

[Third Examination ]—Witness does not concur in the statement that not more than one-fifth of the patronage of the Company is given to the sons of officers of the Indian army, 2470 2503——The Returns show that of 4,832 cadetships given since 1834, 1,080 have been given to the sons of military officers, and that they have also received 164 civil appointments, 2470——These statements only refer to sons, they make no reference to nephews, grandsons, and other relations of military officers, if those relations were included, the proportions would be much larger than witness has stated, 2470——Observations on the sixteen cases of hardship adduced in the distribution of patronage, it was never pretended that all claims that might be preferred on behalf of the Company's servants to appointments could be met, 2471 et seq

Considering the extent of the Indian army and the important services in which it has been engaged during the last few years, the very small number of cases adduced goes far to proved that the claims of this branch of the service have been liberally met, 2471 ——The first case mentioned was that of the widow of Brigadier Wallace, of the Bengal army, this case has been met, and an appointment has been given, 2472-2474——The next

next case which was mentioned was the widow of Lieutenant Alexander Stewart, before the memorial of General Welsh was ever heard of, an Addiscombe appointment was given, and that Addiscombe appointment was, on the 28th April 1852, exchanged for a direct appointment, 2475, 2476——In the third case, that of Colonel Lewis Bruce, an appointment has been promised, 2477

The next case was the case of Lieutenant-general Samuel Smith, of the Bengal Cavalry, an Addiscombe appointment was given to his son three years ago, 2478—— As to the application of Colonel Carmichael, who applied on behalf of a nephew, the son of the late Mr David Carmichael Smith, who was a member of the Bengal civil service, two sons of Mr Smith have obtained civil appointments in the Company's service, and are now in India, 2479——Remarks upon the case mentioned of Lieutenant-general Greenstreet having applied for an appointment, which was refused, at the same time that an order, with several clasps, was transmitted to him, 2481——With regard to the case of the widow of Colonel Birch, witness has reason to believe that a cadetship would have been given had not the mother declined it, in the hope of obtaining a civil appointment, 2482.

Witness has not been able to obtain any information as to the cases of Lieutenant-colonel Geddes and Lieutenant-general Hunter, 2483, 2484——Nor in the cases of Lieutenant-colonel Gregory Jackson and Colonel Richmond, 2486, 2487——Information with respect to the case of Lieutenant-colonel Budd, promise of a direct appointment in this case, 2485——Statement relative to this case of Mrs Hunter, the appointment sought was for one of the fourth generation of members of the service, 2488——With regard to the case of Lieutenant-colonel Bulkeley, the disappointment was caused by the death of a friend, 2489——Remarks relative to the case of Sir Henry Lawrence and his brother, 2490——The Committee are not to understand that in the several cases the parties named have themselves appeared as complainants, but their cases have been adduced by others, as cases of hardship, 2491

Denial that the paragraph in the newspaper announcing the appointment of Mr. Stewart, on the ground of his father having been killed, came from the India House, 2492——Opinion that no right of the servants of the Company to appointments for their children can, upon any sound principle, be recognised, 2493——The cases of families of officers killed in action justly claim sympathy, and always receive attention from those entrusted with the dispensation of the patronage, 2493, 2494——Giving the officers of the Company a claim to appointments for their children, would be going far to make the service of India an hereditary tenure, 2493, 2494——To disturb the present arrangement as to patronage, which works most beneficially for the servants of the Company, and to substitute for it one of distinct allotment of a number of appointments to meet claims, would be most mischievous, and would have a tendency to show that India was administered, in part at least, for the benefit of the servants of the State, 2494 2503-2507

It appears to witness that the present mode of distributing appointments is that best calculated to give to each class its due proportion, at the same time maintaining the efficiency of the public service, 2494——Frequent precautions taken from time to time by the Court of Directors, in its collective capacity, to ensure the pure exercise of the patronage by individual members of the Court, 2495, 2498-2502——With a view to show the Committee the attempt made by the Court to investigate even the motives which have led to an appointment, witness delivers in the documents which embody the statements made by each individual director, in the case of civil and military appointments, 2496, 2497——Opinion that during the last 20 years the number of appointments tainted with any suspicion of corrupt motives in its distribution has been under twenty, and in some of those cases the Court took judicial means to bring the guilty parties to justice, 2508, 2509

Opinion that if the patronage were taken from the Court entirely and vested in the hands of the Ministers of the Crown, or any other public body, instead of the Court of Directors, the servants of the Company, civil and military, would not have so good a chance of providing for their families as they have under the present system, 2510——From witness's thirty years' experience of the exercise of the patronage by the directors of the East India Company, it is his opinion that it has been purely and advantageously exercised, with reference to the Indian service, 2511-2513——Evidence with reference to the doubt that has been expressed concerning the power existing in the Board of Control over the Home Treasury, and generally over the operations at home, of the East India Company, the practice is quite in conformity with the Act 3 & 4 Will 4, 2514-2519 2521, 2522

With regard to Sir George Pollock receiving a civil appointment for his son, witness has no doubt the appointment was given, on public grounds, by an individual director, 2520——If the President of the Board of Control desired an additional force of steamers to the Indian navy, it is witness's opinion that he could originate that question, 2523-2525——He would state to the Court of Directors, by letter, with reference to the state of India and to the strength of the Indian navy, that it appeared to the Board to be desirable that an additional force should be provided, and he would request the Court of Directors to consider the subject, and prepare the draft of a communication upon it, 2523——If the Court do not adopt the views of the President of the Board, he has power to give effect to his opinion as the law now stands, 2526, 2527.

2 Powers of the Members of the Council

1 Evidence relative to the Appointment of the Members of the Council of India

Mode adopted by the Court in appointing members to the several Councils of India, Shepherd 730–732——Appointments to the Councils are made by the Court of Directors by selection from the competent senior officers, seniority is therefore one great element in their selection, Prinsep 942——Generally speaking, the gentlemen who are selected for the Council are selected for their merits and services, and certainly not merely for their standing in the service, Bird 1062, 1063——As the law stands, it rests with the Court of Directors, under the control of the Commissioners for the Affairs of India, to appoint members of Council at Bombay and Madras, or to abstain from appointing them, as they may think the emergencies of the public service requires, ib 1088–1101——Objection to the appointment of the members of Council in India by the Court of Directors, without any intervention of the Government of this country, the President of the Board of Control having no negative upon these appointments, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2313——They are not appointed as representing particular departments, but in consequence of some supposed claim to a seat in Council, inconvenience which arose from this circumstance upon the death of Sir William Casement, the military member of Council, at the time the Council had to deal with a mutinous army, and a legal gentleman, who knew nothing of military matters, was substituted in Sir William's place, ib ——The nomination to seats in the Council should be left with the Court of Directors, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2363

Military Officers If any means could be devised, it would be advisable to allow greater scope for the selection of military officers for the performance of civil services, Sir G R. Clerk 1393, 1394——The appointment of military men to civil offices does not operate as a discouragement to the civil servants, ib 1417, 1418——The employment of military men in the civil service, as at present, undoubtedly tends to promote the efficiency of the service in general, but witness would hesitate before giving the Governor-general and the Governors a power of appointment of military officers to any situations in the civil service, Willoughby 1553–1556——Frequency of the sons of military men obtaining appointments in the civil service, and the contrary, it would be very bad to confine each service entirely to itself, the public good requires that they should be blended, *Sir G. Millett, Frederic (Analysis of his Evidence)—Went out to India in the Company's service in 1816 and retired in 1848, nature of the various offices filled by witness during that period, 1590——Opinion that it would be desirable to make the Presidency of Bengal a distinct presidency, under a deputy-governor or governor, distinct from the Governor-general in Council, 1591–1593——The power of control of the Governor-general in Council over the minor presidencies should remain as at present; giving more power to the minor presidencies would be contrary to the principle of centralization which is now acted upon, 1594–1598——Grounds for the opinion that it would be an advantage if the Home Government were to attach to the General Council a member from each of the minor presidencies, 1599–1608 1698 1708–1710

Opinion that one civil and one military member would be sufficient for the Councils in the minor presidencies, 1603 1623–1628——No inconvenience or injury results from the delay which occurs in the correspondence with the Home Government, the rapidity of communication obviates all those difficulties, 1609——Witness would not suggest any diminution in the quantity of papers and records which are sent from the Government of India to the Home Government, it is necessary that everything connected with the subject should come home, 1610–1613——Witness is strongly of opinion that the Court ought to possess the power of recall of all their servants, up to and including the Governor-general, 1614——On the whole, witness considers that the civil service in Bengal is very efficient, 1615, 1616 1637——Approval of the present mode of appointment of officers to the civil service of Bengal, 1616–1621

With regard to the course of education at Haileybury College, too great attention is given to the Oriental languages, which can be best acquired in India, 1616–1618——With respect to the subordinate Governments at Madras and Bombay, the same principle might be adopted in them as in the North-western Provinces, 1623 1710, 1711——Witness would not prevent the Commander-in-Chief voting in Council upon all occasions and confine his voting to military matters, 1629——The Government of India is one of such magnitude that the Governor-general should not be left without a Council, 1630–1636——It would diminish the power of the Court of Directors if they had the power of recall, with the approbation of Government, so as to be materially prejudicial to their authority, 1637–1646

Objections to the discontinuance of the Legislative Councillor, the Indian Government has benefited by the existence of that councillor, 1647, 1648——Recommendation that the students at Haileybury should undergo a more severe examination on their leaving the college, the examination is sufficiently stringent on entering the college, 1650–1655——Natives have been employed of late in much larger numbers than formerly, with great success, 1656–1658——It would be beneficial for the interests of India if the Governors of the minor presidencies were selected from among the Company's servants experienced in India, instead of being, as they often are, persons altogether unacquainted with India, 1659–1663 1709–1712

Opinion that the Home Authorities might give greater discretion to the local Governments for the settlement of minor matters without sending them for decision to this country, 1664–1666——The amount of expenditure on public works by the Governor-general is limited to 50,000 rupees, any larger amount must receive the sanction of the Home Authorities, 1667–1669——At present, if a councillor is necessarily absent from the presidency from illness, his place at the Council is not filled up, thus a Governor may be left without a Council, a civil servant might be appointed provisionally to take a seat at the Council Board during such absence, 1670–1680——Objections to councillors being allowed to retain their office for more than five years, 1681–1683

Opinion that the well being of India, which the Governor-general has to superintend, would be promoted by the Council being invariably attendant on the Governor-general, 1684–1692——Explanation with regard to the method of transacting business in the Council, 1693–1696——Manner in which the powers which are now delegated to the Governor-general on leaving Calcutta are defined, 1699——In the event of Bengal having a separate Governor, the Governor-general should still possess the patronage of the higher appointments, giving the other appointments to the Governor, 1700–1702——The absence of the Governor-general from the seat of Government is a great hindrance to business, he should be restrained from going away, except in cases of emergency, 1703–1707.

The Governor-general in Council may assemble the Supreme Council of India not only in any part of the Presidency of Bengal, but in any part of the Indian territory, 1713–1717—Opinion that in the promotion of officers in the civil service too much attention is paid to seniority, this system has of late been broken through with advantage, 1714——Witness does not consider that having a separate Government of Bengal would affect the question as to the seat of the Supreme Government, in time the transmission of intelligence by electric telegraph will make it a matter of little importance where the seat of Government may be, 1715–1720

As to Madras and Bombay, witness does not see how it would be possible to reduce to Lieutenant-governors the Governors, where there are separate armies and separate services, Melvill 411——Mode of communications from the minor presidencies to the Governor-general in Council, no other system can be more convenient, Sir T H Maddock 1166–1168——It would not be advisable to confine the selection of persons for the offices of the subordinate Governments to the Company's servants exclusively, Right Hon. Lord Elphinstone 2111

2 Remarks as to the Authority of the Governor-General over the Minor Presidencies, how far Advantageous.

The Governments of Bombay and Madras are limited at the present time against expenditure of every kind, all matters referring to expenditure are submitted to the Governor-general in Council, how far any inconvenience arises from this restriction, Melvill 452–458 474–476 481——The control of the Governor-general in Council over the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras in legislative matters has been productive of great good, because it has produced uniformity, Prinsep 881–884——Opinion as to the effects of vesting the Central Government with the present power of control over the subordinate presidencies of India, Willoughby 1476——It has produced both good and evil, on the one hand, by checking any tendency to extravagance, it has promoted economy, ib. ——And on the other hand, it has transferred to a distant authority the decision of questions in which the local authority is much more likely to form a correct judgment, ib

Some of the restrictions carry out the system of centralization too far, and, in fact, in practice, the strict observance of the law, which was for a time attempted to be enforced, has been evaded, Willoughby 1476——It is in measures relating to local wants and improvements that the minute control of the Central Government of India is most severely felt, instances in illustration of this statement, ib ——The power of control of the Governor-general in Council over the minor presidencies should remain as at present, giving more power to the minor presidencies would be contrary to the principle of centralization which is now acted upon, Millett 1594–1598——With respect to the subordinate Governments of Madras and Bombay, the same principle might be adopted in them as in the North-western Provinces, ib 1623 1710, 1711

3 Objections to the Appointment of Lieutenant-governors in place of the present Councils

Necessity for the constitution of the Governors in Council at Bombay and Madras being maintained, Melvill 411–413——The existence of a Council at the subordinate Governments of Bombay and Madras forms a strong security for the full and free statement of any case of conflicting opinion, Bird 1052——Necessity for retaining the present legislative control over the subordinate presidencies, it would be wrong to have many places where legislative Acts could be passed, ib 1067——Opinion that the whole administrative power should be left with the Councils of each of the subordinate presidencies, dencies, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2148. 2194——All enactments relating to Madras or Bengal should be sent to the Governors in Council of those presidencies for their opinion and report, ib 2195 2220–2222.

Remarks with reference to the effect of placing the minor presidencies under the immediate control of the Governor-general, upon matters relating to them witness, when Governor-general, would have been glad if the Council had been assisted by some distinguished officers from those presidencies, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2281 2284, 2285——The Councils of the minor presidencies should be maintained and the civil services raised to equal rank and consideration with the civil service of Bengal, ib 2282, 2283. 2296——Disapproval of the appointment of a Lieutenant-governor in place of the Councils which now exist at the minor presidencies, *Right Hon. 4 Changes made by the Act of 1833 with regard to the Subordinate Presidencies, and injurious Effect thereof.

Opinion that the Act of 1833 has effected most injurious changes in the subordinate presidencies, and has led to considerable delay in the ordinary transactions of business, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2104——The minute supervision to which the subordinate Governments are subjected by the Act of 1833, is a great check on all improvements, and causes a general want of respect towards such Governments among their servants at large, ib. 2105 2129. 2131——Opinion that the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras cannot well be placed on the same footing as the North-western Provinces, ib 2108——In order to effect the object, it would be necessary to amalgamate the army and civil service, objections to such amalgamation, ib 2109, 2110

Native Councils With reference to proposed legislative enactments affecting the habits and customs of the people, it might be advisable to have at each presidency a sort of consultative council of natives, whose opinions on such subjects might occasionally be required; such a measure should be introduced with great caution, Right Hon. Lord Elphinstone 2114——Bodies of natives might be formed to communicate with on all projects of law affecting their customs and religion, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2297——It would not be desirable to form a council of natives who might be consulted on matters affecting their customs or religion, when an Act on those subjects is proposed, the draft is published in the native languages three months before the Act is carried into effect, and full weight is given to all objections taken against it, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2435–2438

Native Languages A knowledge of the native languages is essential to enable any officer, either in the Diplomatic or the Revenue Department, to be efficient, Sir G R Clerk 1389–1392 1463——More efficient measures are required to insure speedy and accurate translations of the laws into the native languages, objection made to the Macaulay Code, that it will be exceedingly difficult to make an intelligible and correct version of it in the native languages, Willoughby 1477——As regards the important qualification, a knowledge of the native languages, the civil service has greatly improved of late years, ib 1494——At present the laws are not properly translated into the native languages, amendments proposed in the present mode of translating and promulgating the laws, ib 1579, 1580——The languages and habits of the inhabitants of the Madras Presidency and of the Bombay Presidency are as distinct as those in any countries in Europe, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2126——See also Addiscombe College, 1 Haileybury College, 2

Remarks relative to the appointments held by natives; they are confined to the uncovenanted service, distinction between the covenanted and uncovenanted service, Melvill 260-267 386——Natives have been employed of late in much larger numbers than formerly, with great success, Millett 1656-1658——That provision of the Act of 1833 which throws open all employments to the natives of India, without distinction of colour or religion, had not much effect on Madras when witness left that presidency, the cause of this may be referred to the numbers of natives then employed in the Revenue and in the Judicial Departments, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2117——Opinion that the operation of that provision should be gradually extended, but that the natives should not be appointed to the covenanted civil service, ib 2118, 2119——Further consideration of the distinction to be maintained, with regard to the natives, between the covenanted and the uncovenanted service, if it be desirable to exclude the natives from the highest office no system can be less offensive than the present, ib 2160-2162——Increasing want of consideration for the natives on the part of the civil service, and for the native soldiers on the part of the younger British officers, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2305.

No inconvenience has resulted to the Government of the North-western Provinces from the Governor-general exercising his patronage in that country, the Governor-general almost universally adopts the advice of the Lieutenant-governors in the distribution of the patronage, Prinsep 935-939——The government in those provinces is very efficiently administered, and it ought to be so, for it is more amply provided with good working machinery than any other government in India, Sir G. R Clerk 1336, 1337——Difference in the mode of administration of the North-western Provinces and the Government of Bombay, the Governor of Bombay has a Council, which the Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces has not, ib 1338, 1339——The Lieutenant-governor of the North-western Provinces receives his instructions from the Governor-general of India; the Governor of Bombay receives his instructions from the Court of Directors, ib 1342-1345——Manner in which the patronage of the North-western Provinces is exercised by the Deputy Governor, the whole of the patronage being in the hands of the Deputy Governor is objectionable, ib. 1424-1428——The superiority existing in the North-western Provinces may be partly attributed to the greater energy of the people over the natives of Bengal, or the South of India, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2115——The assessment of the revenue in the North-western Provinces by Mr Bird, as being more light and equal, and the greater expenditure out of revenue upon public works in these provinces than in any other part of India, may also account for their superiority over Bengal, or the South of India, ib. 2115 2137.

Copy of the memorial addressed to the East India Company as to the mode of distributing the patronage, and the inadequate consideration of the claims of the servants of the Company to patronage in favour of their sons, Macgregor 1841——This was signed by General Welsh, as senior officer, he being deputed to sign it by the other parties whose names were annexed, the number who coincided in the opinion expressed in the memorial was 220, ib 1842, 1843——Witness was deputed by General Welsh to state the ground on which that memorial was founded, Macgregor 1844——The details of the facts are not entered into at all in the memorial, it is a kind of statement of the general argument of the service of the officers in the Indian army in favour of a certain proportion of the patronage being given to them, ib 1845——Way in which witness would provide for the present inadequate consideration of the claims of the two services upon the patronage of the East India Company, ib 1847 et seq ——Witness would not object to the allotment of that portion of the patronage being vested in the directors of the East India Company collectively, ib 1850

Statement in corroboration of the memorial addressed to the East India Company, Macgregor 1857——Frequency of officers who have submitted their claims to appointments for their sons, on services alone, having been refused, ib ——To facilitate the conferment of the patronage under a new system, there might be appointed to the Chairman or to the Committee of Patronage a secretary from among their own establishment at the India House, or chosen from the service, one acquainted with the cases of the applicants, ib 1887——Witness believes that is little difficulty would be experienced in the administration of the Indian patronage through a single official medium, instead of continuing the necessity of applying to so many different quarters, ib ——As regards this patronage, the Indian officer is exposed to a necessity to which he is not subjected as regards any other patronage, and to which no class but his own are subjected, ib

The mode of distributing the patronage of military appointments in India most acceptable to the service would be that the administration of that part of the patronage which might be assigned as a public fund to meet service claims should be confided to the judgment and honour of a Board of officers, appointed by the direction, but not members of the Court, Macgregor 1888–1890 1920, 1921——Witness doubts that there are many instances of the directors bestowing appointments upon the sons of officers who have distinguished themselves when they were wholly unacquainted with them, solely on account of their father's services, ib 1916, 1917——Witness signed the memorial sent in to the Court of Directors of the East India Company, complaining of the present mode of distribution of the patronage in the service, circumstances under which he signed that memorial, as he does not concur in the opinions there inexpressed, Sir G Pollock, 1938–1941 1970–1972——Witness's idea of the memorial at the time was that it merely related to the way in which persons had access to the Court of Directors to obtain appointments, and nothing further, ib 1940——Witness paid no attention to the wording of the memorial at the time of his signing it, he took it more upon trust than anything else, ib 1956–1959

Witness gave his assent to the memorial presented to the Court of Directors complaining of the distribution of patronage as regards the servants of the Company, Taylor 1984–2032——He did so entirely in deference to what he believed to be the opinions and sentiments of a number of officers, whose rank and character entitled them to respect, and not from any conviction of his own as to the expediency of such a memorial, ib 1985, 1986 2005–2024——Witness concurs in some of the opinions expressed in the memorial, though not in all, ib 1987——Failure of officers of merit in obtaining appointments for their sons may be regarded as the exception rather than the rule, ib 1997, 1998——When witness assented to the memorial he supposed that it would be presented to the Court of Directors only, and made no further use of, it would not have been proper to have addressed any memorial or petition direct to the House of Commons, ib 2029–2032

Witness signed the memorial to the Court of Directors respecting the distribution of their patronage, but he did not concur in all the views of the said memorial, Alexander 2036, 2037——Concurrence with the fourth paragraph of the memorial relative to the nomination to the service of the sons and relatives of those who had died in the Company's employment, these nominations should be obtained on public grounds instead of by private favour as at present, ib 2038 2040 2043——The sons of officers should have some advantage in the respect of their education, as is the case in Her Majesty's service, ib 2038 2043——Witness also agrees with that portion of the fourth paragraph which refers to importunity in urging claims, these claims cannot be urged by mothers with respect for themselves, ib

Within witness's experience, many officers who render invaluable but undistinguished service fail in obtaining appointments for their relatives, Alexander 2041——There are many instances where patronage has been given entirely on public grounds, and without any reference to private influence, ib 2042. 2071. 2077——The servants of the East India Company have a peculiarly strong claim upon the Government they serve, inasmuch as their lives are passed away from their own country, and they thereby lose all other opportunities of providing for their families, ib 2044——Further concurrence with the memorial in complaining "that there is no department or public functionary anywhere that has the power of rewarding, by the conferment of appointments in India on their sons, the public service of the most meritorious officers," ib. 2048, 2049——The memorial was chiefly got up by Captain Macgregor, who seems to have acted on behalf of the officers who signed it, Alexander 2052

Witness signed the memorial to the Court of Directors with regard to the distribution of patronage; reasons for so doing, Macleod 2083, et seq——Opinion that it is impracticable to carry out the suggestion of the memorial, ib 2084 2086 2088 2093——Observations on the sixteen cases of hardship adduced in the distribution of patronage, it was never pretended that all claims that might be preferred on behalf of the Company's servants to appointments could be met, Melvill 2471 et seq——The Committee are not to understand that in the several cases the parties named have themselves appeared as complainants, but their cases have been adduced by others as cases of hardship, ib 2491——Opinion that no right of the servants of the Company to appointments for their children can upon any sound principle be recognised, ib 2493——The cases of families of officers killed in action justly claim sympathy, and always receive attention from those entrusted with the dispensation of the patronage, ib. 2493, 2494

2 Observations as to the Patronage in the hands of the Court of Directors

It is the practice of the Court of Directors to allot to the President of the Board of Control a share of the patronage equal to that which is given to the Chairman, Melvill 42–44——Evidence as to the system of patronage in filling up appointments to the services in India, ib 222–237——The possession of the patronage gives importance and position to the Court of Directors, the exercise of patronage by the Court has been, upon the whole, judicious and satisfactory, ib 244, 245——Witness is not aware of any case of an individual having a claim upon public grounds to an Indian appointment who had sought for it and had failed, ib 268–270 330——It is an admitted fact, that there is no department at the India House, and no public functionary there, or anywhere, that has the power of rewarding, except as of private gift, the services of the most meritorious officers, Macgregor 1857——Under the present system the administration by the directors of their patronage is as good as can be expected from any similar body of men so elected, but that admission must not be interpreted into an approval of the system itself, ib 1887——Reason for witness believing that there exists a greater disposition to distribute the patronage on public grounds as the period for the renewal of the Charter approaches, ib 1933–1935——Witness's experience would not lead him to state that the claims of the servants of the Company have been disregarded by the directors in respect to patronage, Taylor 1992——If the restriction which at present exists to preferring claims to the Court of Directors, as a body, was removed, it would be satisfactory to the military service, ib 1993 2026–2028——Officers in India are not allowed to address the Court, as a body, on the subject of patronage, Alexander 2055 2058

3 Remarks with respect to the distribution of Patronage in India

The exercise of patronage, under the circumstances in which it is exercised in India, confers no personal advantage on the Governor-general, if he were deprived of the patronage, he would not lose influence or authority in India, Bird 998, 999 1030 1035——The patronage of all the appointments in India, excepting a few of the higher offices, is vested in the East India Company, Sir T H Maddock 1286–1288——Suggestions with respect to the patronage of the Bengal Presidency, ib 1328–1331——Manner in which the patronage of Bombay is exercised, there is no inconvenience in the Governor making the appointments in Council, Sir G R Clerk 1429–1431

Explanation as to the manner in which appointments are made in the Bombay Presidency, the patronage vests in the Governor-general, but is checked by the Council, manner in which the patronage is distributed, Willoughby 1475——Doubts as to whether it would not be expedient that this patronage should not be vested avowedly in the Governor alone, when the responsibility would be exclusively his, ib——In the event of Bengal having a separate Governor, the Governor-general should still possess the patronage of the higher appointments, giving the other appointments to the Governor, Millett 1700–1702——It may be doubtful whether the Governor general's power of overruling his Council extends to matters of patronage, but it should be made applicable to those matters, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2311

4 Objections to the Patronage being transferred to the Crown

Objections to the patronage of the East India Company being transferred to the Queen's Government, Melvill 246. 332——Great disadvantage would result from the patronage being transferred to the Queen's Government, Shepherd 828——In Her Majesty's service there is no difficulty at all in the distribution of the military patronage

by a single head, Macgregor 1887——Suggestions for the disposal of the patronage if India should be placed under the direct government of the Crown, Right Hon. the Earl of Ellenborough 2305, 2306—— Opinion that if the patronage were taken from the Court entirely, and vested in the hands of the Ministers of the Crown, or any other public body, instead of the Court of Directors, the servants of the Company, civil or military, would not have so good a chance of providing for their families as they have under the present system, Melvill 2510

1. Evidence relative to the Pensions granted to Officers

There are certain rules laid down as regards the pensions of all classes of officers, pensions are not given to all the uncovenanted servants, Bird 1086, 1087——Explanation relative to the pension of 1,000 l a year enjoyed by the civil officers at the end of their service, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge, 2466, 2467.

1. Remarks as to the Tenure of Office of the Members of the Supreme Council, and of the Governor-General, being limited to Five Years, how far desirable to remove this limit
2. Opinion that it is not desirable to allow the Members to retain their Seats longer than Five Years

1 Remarks as to the Tenure of Office of the Members of the Supreme Council, and of the Governor-General, being limited to Five Years, how far desirable to remove this limit

There is no limit by law to the period of a member's seat in the Supreme Council of India, but the Court of Directors have declared their intention to limit such period to five years, how far it is desirable to maintain this limit, Sir T H. Maddock, 1170 1172——A similar understanding prevails with reference to the tenure of office of Governor or Governor-general, the Home Authorities have the option of extending the period or otherwise, ib 1170. 1178——The directors have occasionally prolonged the tenure of office as regards the Council of Bengal and the Supreme Council, ib 1173——Opinion that till very recently there was no limit to the period of a member's seat in the Council at Madras; since 1834 the limit of five years has applied to all the presidencies, ib 1173-1176——Instance of the Governor-general's office being prolonged in the case of Lord Auckland, who continued nearly six years in India, ib 1179——Similar instance as regards Lord Wm. Bentinck, who was Governor general for seven years after the last Charter Act, ib 1180

It would be desirable to continue the members of Council longer than the usual period, namely, five years, Sir G R Clerk 1366, 1367——With regard to the Governors, five years

years is sufficient length of service, from the harassing nature of their duties, Sir G R Clerk 1366——The members of the Council at Bombay are appointed for five years, great advantage would result from prolonging the term of office, Willoughby 1527, 1528

Objection to councillors being allowed to retain their office for more than five years, Millett 1681–1683——A member of Council generally retires after a service of five years, and, on the whole, this is desirable, Right Hon. Viscount Hardinge 2375, 2376

Pilot Service (Bengal) The volunteers for the Bengal Pilot Service are appointed by the Court of Directors, in rotation, Melvill 256

Pollock, Lieutenant-General Sir George, G C B (Analysis of his Evidence)—Witness joined the Indian army in 1803, and has been home rather more than four years, 1937——Witness signed the memorial sent in to the Court of Directors of the East India Company complaining of the present mode of distribution of the patronage in the service, circumstances under which he signed that memorial, as he does not concur in the opinions therein expressed, 1938–1941 1970–1972——Witness's idea of the memorial at the time was, that it merely related to the way in which persons had access to the Court of Directors to obtain appointments, and nothing further, 1940——From witness's general and extensive acquaintance with the Indian army, he has every reason to think that applications for appointments upon public grounds are generally attended to by individual directors, 1942–1945

Opinion that the military servants of the Company have their fair proportion of the patronage, as compared with other classes of servants, 1946 1950, 1951 1955——It would not be advantageous to the military service of India to give a certain proportion of the appointments to the relatives of military officers, 1947——No prejudicial effect is produced upon the efficiency of the army by the present mode of nomination, 1948——Efficiency of the system of education of Addiscombe, the students are extremely well educated, and great care is taken of them, 1949——The present mode of soliciting appointments from individual directors is very objectionable, but witness knows of no other system that could be adopted, 1952–1954——Witness paid no attention to the wording of the memorial at the time of his signing it, he took it more upon trust than anything else, 1956–1959

Proposal that there should be a committee to sift the grounds of applications for appointments, leaving the distribution of the patronage to the individual directors as it now stands, 1960–1969 1973——Frequency of the sons of military men obtaining appointments in the civil service, and the contrary, it would be very bad to confine each service entirely to itself, the public good requires that they should be blended, 1976, 1977——It would be beneficial if all the cadets appointed to the Indian service went through Addiscombe, it would give a larger power of selection for officers of engineers, 1978–1982.

Pollock, Sir George With regard to Sir George Pollock receiving a civil appointment for his son, witness has no doubt the appointment was given, on public grounds, by an individual director, Melvill 2520

President of the Board of Control The President of the Board of Control, as the adviser of the Crown, recommends for particular offices in India, as bishops and judges of the Supreme Court, to which the Sovereign appoints, Melvill 22——With respect to the power of the President of the Board of Control to institute proceedings of war and peace, he is responsible to Parliament for the exercise of that power, ib 184–191——The President of the Board of Control carries on an uninterrupted correspondence with the Governor-general of India, but this is entirely private and is not recorded, Waterfield 610–618——On the appointment of a new President, possibly the ex-president may communicate such letters to him as a matter of courtesy, ib 614–618——Frequency of great trouble being experienced in obtaining a second signature, in addition to that of the President of the Board of Control, to communications, no advantage results from such second signature, it is a mere formal signature, and takes no responsibility from the President, ib 661, 662

Giving power to the President of the Board of Control to send despatches direct to India, would alter what has evidently hitherto been the design of the Legislature, namely, that the Court of Directors should ostensibly be the governing body of India, Waterfield 681, 682——The present patronage possessed by the President of the Board of Control is a matter of courtesy, Shepherd, 830——All orders of the Court of Directors must be approved by the President of the Board of Control, Sir T. H. Maddock, 1262 1270——All instructions to the Governor-general relating to the whole internal economy and administration of Indian affairs are invariably controlled, and, it may be, dictated, by the President of the Board of Control, who might still exercise the same power during any long period of universal peace that may occur in future years, ib 1318, 1319——With regard to the relations existing between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors, witness questions whether the formidable powers of the President of the Board are in accordance with the spirit of the free institutions of this country, Sykes 1791——Opinion that the duties and powers of a Secretary of State are not so rigidly secret as those of the President of the Board of Control, ib 1815, 1816

Some of the best men in the Indian service have been brought into it under the patronage of the President of the Board of Control, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2320——It is absolutely essential that the President should be assisted by a Council who possess a knowledge of the details of the administration of the Government in India, ib. 2323——The Board of Control was, no doubt, intended to be a practical Council in former times, Mr. Pitt and Mr Dundas used to attend, but now, although the great officers of State are members of the Board, they never attend, and the whole authority is vested in the President, ib. 2335, 2336——When President of the Board of Control, witness always consulted the Duke of Wellington in all matters of difficulty, but he never consulted Sir Robert Peel when he was at the head of the Government, ib. 2336——The Governor-general communicates freely with the President of the Board of Control, and, as a matter of courtesy, with the Chairs, but all orders of political importance must be transmitted to the Governor-general through the Secret Committee, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2414-2417

Previous Communications. Remarks relative to the introduction of the "P. C." system as to despatches, it being the marking of despatches with regard to which previous communication has taken place between the Chairman of the Court of Directors and the President of the Board of Control, Melvill 208-210——With regard to the delay which takes place in settling despatches, the length of time they remain in "P C." does not arise from neglect or inattention of the Board of Control, whatever delay occurs arises from the sifting process which the draft undergoes, ib. 213-221——With regard to previous communications, they are merely suggestions and alterations passing between the Chairman and the President of the Board, there is nothing authoritative till the proposed despatch is in the form of a draft, Waterfield 527——Length of time which usually elapses between the receiving the first previous communication and the return of the approved draft, in the case of an ordinary despatch, ib 529——With regard to the Political Department, there are not many of the previous communications returned from the Board of Control without some alteration, the alterations suggested by the Board are generally adopted by the Chairs, ib 638-640

Evidence as to the delay which arises from the system of previous communication, the only mode of expediting the despatches is by abolishing this system, but it is the general opinion that such a course is not desirable, Waterfield 641-650——The delay resulting from the system of "P C" is counterbalanced by the advantage of the more strict examination of the despatch, there can be no check without some delay, ib 663-674——With regard to despatches which relate to subjects of pressing importance, previous communications are at times dispensed with, and the transaction expedited, ib 665-

Prinsep, Henry Thoby (Analysis of his Evidence)—Was secretary to the Government of Fort William, in Bengal, when the Act of 1833 passed, and became secretary to the Government of India upon that government being organized, 840——Statement as to what occurred when the Act of 1833 was carried into effect in India, and what was the constitution given to the Government of India under its provisions, 841 et seq——Steps taken by the Governor-general, Lord William Bentinck, to form a Council under the provisions of the Act when first received in India, 841——Formation of the separate Governments of Bengal and Agra under the Act of 1833, 842——Under the provisions of the Act of 1833, appointments were made and gazetted to the Secretariat of India and of each presidency respectively, 842, 843

Change made by the Act of 1833 as respects the manner of conducting the Government of India, 843——A separate Government of Bengal, it was found, could scarcely be constituted without a separate set of officers and separate records, 843——Way in which the measure was carried out in this respect, 843——In the Secretary's and Political Department, no addition was made to the establishment, but in the Judicial and Revenue Departments a deputy secretary for Bengal was appointed, 843——One of the first questions that arose was how to separate the services for Bengal and Agra, 844——It was at once determined by the Government of India that everything connected with the military should be considered as belonging to the Government of India only, and it is so to this day, 844.

Nothing connected with the military department is recorded upon any proceedings of the Government of Bengal, 844——The military secretary never goes for orders to the Governor-general separately in his capacity of Governor of Bengal, but he takes every military question before the Governor-general in Council, 844——With respect to the civil services, it was determined to annex to Agra all those civil servants who held offices in that division of territory which was made to constitute the Presidency of Agra, 844——And it was determined to consider as belonging to Bengal all those civil servants who held offices under the Government of Bengal, 844——With reference to the question of military, it is the army of the Presidency of Bengal, but the same army is also the army of the Presidency of Agra, 845-849——The Agra Presidency was constituted by the Act of 1833, and Sir Charles Metcalfe was declared to be the first Governor, 849

On the constitution of the separate Presidencies of Bengal and Agra, a question arose with respect to the patronage, way in which this question was settled between the Governors, 849——On the division of Bengal and Agra into separate presidencies, the subject of the accounts was found a very difficult one, change made in the system of accounts to meet the difficulty, 850——Process adopted in conducting the correspondence between the Governments of India and the Court of Directors, 851——The time occupied in transmitting a communication and receiving a reply varies according to the nature of the matter contained in the despatch, and the information that it is necessary to obtain, 852——The changes which have been made of late years in the mode of preparing the despatches has caused an increase of trouble and expense in India, and there are additional clerks entertained on the establishment of the Secretary's office for the purpose, 853

Evidence with respect to the mode of preparing despatches for the Court of Directors upon matters of ordinary routine, 854——It has been the study of the secretaries, and necessarily so, considering the quantity of business which they have in India, to make the preparation of these despatches as mechanical as possible, 854——In like manner, the reporting of the despatches from the subordinate authorities, which are reported in so much detail, is quite mechanical, 854——The preparation of these reports, though the quarterly reports look very formidable, is in fact so mechanical, that it is not by any means the great labour of the Secretary's office, 854——Explanation in respect to despatches received by and sent from the Secret Department in India, all the clerks entrusted with secret correspondence are sworn, as required by law, 855, 856

There is a secret department of the Political, and there is also a secret department of the Finance, sometimes there is as much or greater secrecy required in financial measures

than in political ones, 855——Nature of the supervision and control exercised by the Governor-general over the proceedings of the Governments of the subordinate presidencies, 857——The law gives the Court of Directors the power of determining whether there shall be a Council or not, and of how many members the Council shall be composed, 858——They have limited the number of members of Council to two at Madras and Bombay, 858——It was the intention of the Court of Directors that such members of the Council of India as might be qualified by being civil servants of the presidency should also be members of the Council of Bengal, 858——But it was decided, under legal advice, that the two duties would be incompatible; consequently, to save expense, there has been no Council appointed for Bengal, and the Court determined that no Council should be appointed for Agra for the same reason, 858

It is not desirable to abolish the Councils, there is a greater prestige about a Governor with a Council than there would about a Governor without one, 858, 859——There is no doubt that the appointment of a legislative councillor from England has improved the constitution of the Council, the Act of 1833 prescribes that he shall only sit and vote on questions connected with legislation, 860-863——How far witness considers it desirable to retain this fourth, or legislative member of the Council, 864——Statement as to the existing checks against abuses in the constitution and government of India, and improvements suggested therein, 865-869——The best security for good government is the necessity of recording everything that is done, and copying on the record every letter that is written to Government, and every answer, 865-867

Witness cannot fancy a more complete security, and the only mode of perfecting it is by perfecting the record and expediting the period when the review can be made, 868——Any aggrieved servant in the subordinate presidencies is not considered to have an appeal to the Governor-general in Council, but he must appeal to the Court of Directors, 869——The Governments of Madras and Bombay are bound to refer to the Governor-general in Council every matter that relates to the creation of a salary, or the grant of any allowance, however small, the present practice is not in strict conformity with the Act, 870-876——The present system is not productive of injurious delay or inconvenience, 876——By law the consent of the Governor-general is not necessary in the case of expenditure for public works, but the rule has been laid down by the Court of Directors, 877

Witness considers the control of the Governor-general in Council necessary with reference to public works, although the interference of the Government of India has been complained of by the subordinate presidencies, 878-880——The control of the Governor-general in Council over the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras in legislative matters has been productive of great good, because it has produced uniformity, 881-884——The legislative councillor who is appointed from England used formerly to sit and vote in the Council, referring to the Executive Government of India as well as to legislation, 885-887——This was objected to by Lord Ellenborough, and his sitting was discontinued, 886-888——The Court, being sensible that there was no inconvenience in his sitting, the practice has since been restored, 885-891.

The main object of the appointment of the legislative councillor was the preparation of a general code of laws for India, progress made in the preparation of such a code, 892, 893 899 908——Practical benefit which has resulted from the existence of the office of legislative councillor, 894-898——Remarks relative to the Indian Law Commission; the duties of the Law Commissioners and of the legislative councillor were separate and distinct, 894 901——The connexion of the legislative member with the Law Commission arose, not from a provision of the Legislature, but from his having consented to act as president of the Law Commission, 902, 903——The Governor-general has an Advocate-general to refer to when necessary, when witness was in India it was the practice to consult the Advocate-general, whenever the Government desired it, but not to pass laws through his revision, 904-908

Witness has not given much consideration as to whether any advantage would result from the number of the Legislative Council being enlarged by including within its body other public servants, heads of departments, 909——No doubt a larger body would give more mature consideration to the different subjects which might be brought before it, but it might be more difficult to manage, 909-912——Difficulties in the way of appointing residents in Calcutta to assist in the deliberations of the Legislative Council, in the same way as residents do in many of our colonies, 910——The Indian Government now publish their laws before they are passed, this practice was adopted very soon after the constitution of the Legislative Council, 913, 914——On the whole, the publication of the acts, and the discussion which such publication has given rise to, have been attended with great advantage, 915-920.

Before the last Act, the Governor-general acted with his Council in the administration; now he acts independently of his Council, this was the most imperfect part of the scheme established

established by the Act of 1833 921–924——Opinion that the Government of Bengal would be most efficiently administered if it were administered by the Governor-general in Council, 924, 925——The present system requires that on the Governor-general leaving the presidency, one of the members of the Council shall be made Deputy Governor of Bengal, great disadvantages arising from the system, 926, 927——Advantage has resulted from Agra being constituted a presidency with a Deputy Governor, 928——The Government of Bengal has not been so well administered since the late Act as before, 929, 930

Opinion that the Governor-general could administer the affairs of India and conduct the administration of the Presidency of Bengal at the same time, 931–933——Importance of the Governor-general retaining the patronage of the Bengal Presidency, otherwise he would lose much of his authority and influence, 934——No inconvenience has resulted to the Government of the North-western Provinces from the Governor-general exercising his patronage in that country, the Governor-general almost universally adopts the advice of the Lieutenant-governors in the distribution of the patronage, 935–939——Manner in which the higher appointments, such as secretaries, are made in India promotion can only go by selection for those offices, 940, 941

Appointments to the Councils are made by the Court of Directors by selection from the competent senior officers, seniority is, therefore, one great element in their selection, 942——Remarks relative to the promotions in the civil service by seniority, the officers have no right to any particular office by seniority of service, 943–947——All appointments are made by the Governor-general, with the consent of the Council, power of the members of the Council to prevent an appointment being made by minuting against it, provided there is a majority against the appointment, 948–955 957——Power of the Governor-general in Council of appointing the Deputy Governor at Agra, 956, 957——Observations relative to the out-of-employ allowance which the covenanted servants of the East India Company receive, the allowance is regulated by the Court of Directors, 958, 959

The system of the civil service of India has undoubtedly worked satisfactorily, that service being filled by men competent to discharge all its various duties, 960–965——Witness has no reason to believe that by any other system a more efficient body of public servants could be provided, 964——The appointments in India are with the Governors of the different presidencies, the members of Council having the power of dissent, 966–968——In making appointments in India, witness believes that the period of service has always been one element of choice, 969——Memorials have been presented to the Government in consequence of supercessions, but they have never received any attention, 970——Opinion that the members of the civil service generally are fully equal to the important functions they have to discharge, 971, 972.

Explanation as to the footing of our Straits' settlements, and those on the Tenasserim coast, with the Government of Bengal, as the law now stands, 973——It would be exceedingly desirable that there should be a provision in any future Act, leaving power to the Governor-general in Council, that is, the supreme authority in India, to provide a Lieutenant-governor, or a delegate of some kind, to take charge of any particular division of territory that may be deemed necessary, 974–976

Prinsep, Hon H T Minute by the Hon H T Prinsep, dated 10 November 1842, on the Second Report of the Bengal Finance Committee, App 385.

Promotion of Officers With regard to promotions in India, they are entirely made by the local Government, without the interference of the Home Authorities, Melvill 259 377–385——The general system of promotion at the India House is by seniority, but the Court of Directors exercise their discretion in appointing to any office deemed important, ib 371——Remarks relative to the promotions in the civil service by seniority, the officers have no right to any particular office by seniority of service, Prinsep 943–947——Complaint in the civil service that the situations which they used to occupy are now, in a great measure, occupied by the uncovenanted service, and therefore promotion is not so rapid as it used to be, Bird 1019.

Perhaps in no service in the world is real and superior merit more likely to be sought out and rewarded than in the services in India, Willoughby 1475 1494——The system of promoting by seniority often operates prejudicially; the rule should be relaxed to a far greater extent than is now customary, indeed, witness would advise its almost entire abolition in the higher grades, ib 1494——Witness sees no objection to the plan adopted in Bengal of the civil servants purchasing out the senior servants in order to accelerate promotion, ib 1510–1516——Opinion in favour of the entire abolition of the system of seniority in the higher grades, ib. 1520——Remarks relative to cases of promotion of officers for merit in place of seniority, witness would leave it in the discretion of the Government whether the reasons of the supercession should be communicated to the officer superseded, ib. 1521–1523

Opinion that in the promotion of officers in the civil service too much attention is paid to seniority, this system has of late been broken through with advantage, Millett 1714 ——Promotion by seniority is more the rule in Bengal than in Madras, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2122——In Bengal promotion is carried out by a removal from the Revenue branch to the Judicial branch of the service, ib. 2123——Promotion by seniority, if strictly observed, would be objectionable, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2373 2374

1 Powers of the Court of Proprietors, Attendance of the Members

Evidence as the powers possessed by the Court of Proprietors beyond that of electing directors, Melvill 5, 6——There is no limit to the power of the Court of Proprietors in making grants of money, ib 6——Generally the Court of Proprietors show great deference to the opinion of the Court of Directors, ib. 74, 75——As regards the voting of the Court of Proprietors, it would not be desirable to extend this power to those holding stock in the Company's loans, Shepherd 736——The relative powers and authority of the proprietors and directors of the East India Company are governed by the Charter of Incorporation, ib 742——Power of the Court of Proprietors to discuss the affairs of India at the Quarterly Courts, ib 764-766——Great variations in the numbers of proprietors attending the Court upon the discussion of different questions, Sykes 1784, 1785

2 Advantages resulting from the Court of Proprietors, suggested formation of a Quorum

Advantage of the Court of Proprietors possessing the power of discussion with regard to the affairs of India, questions are raised and discussed there instead of being raised and discussed in Parliament, Melvill 7——It certainly was contemplated by the parties to the arrangement of 1834 that the General Court should have the power of discussion, ib ——At present no quorum is required to constitute a General Court of Proprietors, it would be an improvement if there were one, ib. 8, 9——Opinion that the Court of Proprietors are a very useful body, inasmuch as to a certain extent they stand between the Government and the Court, Sykes 1781——A quorum of from thirty to forty proprietors, including the directors, would be very essential for a proper consideration of all questions before the Court, suggestions for establishing this quorum, ib 1781, 1782 1786-1790 ——In all other respects the Court of Proprietors is well constituted in its powers and usages, ib 1783

Publicity of Proceedings Very little publicity is given to the proceedings of the Government in India, opinion that advantage would result from greater publicity being observed therein, the present system of government is almost inconsistent with the existing free press, Willoughby 1557–1578——There is no objection to giving greater publicity to the proceedings of the Indian Government, but nobody in this country will attend to the subject, Right Hon Lord Ellenborough 2326——Much good might be effected by publishing certain information relating to public affairs in the newspapers, submitting the same to the Government of the presidency previous to publication, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2407–2409

RECALL OF OFFICERS

2 Proposal for giving the Crown a control over the Recall of Officers from India

1 Power of Recall exercised by the Court of Directors, it is desirable that they should retain this Power

The Board of Control are expressly prohibited from nominating or appointing any servants of the Company, or from interfering with the absolute right of the Court to recall and dismiss their servants at pleasure, Melvill 22——The power of the Company to dismiss or to recall any of their servants is most essential, Shepherd 772–775——Opinion that the power of the Court of Directors to recall the Governor-general is just and indispensable, Sir G R Clerk 1472——The power of recall of the Governors being vested in the East India Company is most undoubtedly essential for the maintenance of the good government of India, Willoughby 1500

Witness is strongly of opinion that the Court ought to possess the power of recall of all their servants, up to and including the Governor-general, Millett 1614——It would diminish the power of the Court of Directors if they had the power of recall, with the approbation of Government so as to be materially prejudicial to their authority, ib 1637–1646——With regard to the recall of the Governor-general, the Court of Directors should undoubtedly retain their present power, Sykes 1791–1793——Opinion that the Crown also should possess the same power of recall which they have at present, ib 1794

Opinion that the Crown should have a joint power with the Court of Directors in the recall, as well as in the appointment, of the Governor-general, Sir T. H Maddock 1182, 1183——Witness is only aware of one instance in which the Court of Directors have exercised their power to recall the Governor-general, ib 1187, 1188——General evidence respecting the power of the Crown and the Court of Directors, jointly or severally to recall or dismiss any servants of the Company, from the highest to the lowest grade, Sir T H Maddock, 1197 et seq ——Opinion that in case of any difference of opinion respecting the recall of the Governor-general, the power of the Court should yield to that of the Crown, ib 1206-1210 1281——Inconsistency of the law as regards the office of Governor-general of India and that of the subordinate servants of the Company; the power of the Court to recall the viceroy of such an empire, as representative of the Crown, is very anomalous, ib 1215-1220 1260-1272

The authority and position of the Governor-general in India might be weakened if it were known among the natives that he was liable to be removed by the Company without the consent of the Crown, Sir T H Maddock 1260——The orders of the directors to the Governor-general would be carried out as at present, even if the power of recall were transferred to the Crown, ib 1262——It is objectionable in principle to give the power of recalling the Governor-general to a certain proportion or majority of the Court of Directors, ib 1283——Evidence respecting the recall of the Governor-General, there is great anomaly and inconsistency in giving such power to the Board of Directors, ib 1287. 1299 1300. 1303 et seq ——The law already provides the course to be pursued in case a Governor-general should be accused of a ruinous or improper system of government, opinion that on such occasions the Crown is at least as responsible as the East India Company, and should possess the entire authority of recall or otherwise, ib 1309, 1310 ——See also Secret Committee, 1.

Records Voluminous nature of the papers sent home from India, the diaries are very complete, and are carefully deposited with the records, Shepherd 782-786——Importance of these collections, it is not advisable to circumscribe them, ib 787——The best security for good government is the necessity of recording everything that is done, and copying on the record every letter that is written to Government and every answer, Prinsep, 865-867——Witness cannot fancy a more complete security, and the only mode of perfecting it is, by perfecting the record and expediting the period when the review can be made, ib 868——Keeping a record of everything is a great and important check against abuses in India, Bird 1015——Witness would not suggest any diminution in the quantity of papers and records which are sent from the Government of India to the Home Government, it is necessary that everything connected with the subject should come home, Millett 1610-1613 ——See also Secret Committee, 1

Returns of Patronage There has been made public in the Court of Proprietors a return of the military patronage, including the summary and direct cadetships, for the twelve years from 1840 to 1851, but witness is not aware of any public return of the patronage between 1834 and 1840, Macgregor 1846——Witness is prepared to go into some examination of the returns submitted by the Court of Directors, both in 1833 and at this time, as to the distribution of the patronage, evidence generally upon the subject of those returns, ib 1857, 1858——Return of the distribution of the Court's military patronage during twenty-one years, from 1813 to 1833, and observations thereon, ib 1857——Return of the direct cadetships and seminary appointments for twelve years, from 1840 to 1851,

1851, and remarks thereon, Macgregor, 1858——It is impossible, from this return, to say what proportion of the appointments was given to the Indian army and what proportion was given to the marine and ecclesiastical departments, ib ——If those two branches were excluded, and if the return was extended to the whole nineteen years instead of the twelve arbitrarily selected by the Court, the result would be that only one-fifth of the patronage would be shown to have been given to the Indian army, ib ——Witness is confirmed in that opinion by a return derived from the East India House, in which it appears that 17½ per cent was the proportion of the patronage for the seven years, 1836 to 1843, being under one-fifth, which in witness's estimate he gave the Court credit for, ib See also Army, 2 Distribution of Patronage, 2.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE

1 Generally
2 Papers laid before the Committee

1 Generally

On the arrival of witness at Madras the revenue was rather below the expenditure, after some years they were equalized, and the revenue has since been gradually increasing, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2116——With regard to the revenue of Madras, during witness's government there the change from a deficiency into a small surplus is attributable to a succession of good seasons, that is, to natural causes, and not to any variation in the system of Government, ib 2139, 2140

2 Papers laid before the Committee

Salaries The system of payment at the India House is liberal, a return of the establishment and the salaries paid is in course of preparation, Melvill 374, 375 512——The Governments of Madras and Bombay are bound to refer to the Governor-general in Council every matter that relates to the creation of a salary, or the grant of any allowance, however small, the present practice is not in strict conformity with the Act, Prinsep 870-876——The present system is not productive of injurious delay or inconvenience, ib 876——Amount of the salary of the Governor-general of India, and of the members of the Council, Bird 991——The civil service of India is very fairly paid, it was better paid some time ago, ib 1019——With reference to the salaries of officers, it has been laid down by a rule of the Court that nobody under a councillor is to receive more than 50,000 rupees a year, ib 1065, 1066.

It would not be prudent to reduce the remuneration of the civil servants of the Company to a lower rate than at present, Sir T H Maddock 1186——Opinion as to the sufficiency of the pay of the public servants in India, Sir G R Clerk 1364, 1365——Opinion that the scale of remuneration that the civil service receives is liberal, but not extravagant, considering the extent and nature of the duties and responsibility devolving upon the Indian functionaries, Willoughby 1495-1498——The scale of salaries in Bombay is much lower than in Bengal, there is no reason why the salaries should remain unequal at those two presidencies, Willoughby 1505–1509——The remuneration of civil servants may be considered sufficient, but not more than sufficient, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2302——The scale of remuneration in the civil service is not too high, Right Hon. Viscount Hardinge 2377

H Maddock* 1189, 1190——Since the introduction of railways into India and the increased communication with Europe by steam it is less desirable than ever to remove the seat of Government to Bombay, ib 1191——Objections to the removal of the seat of Government from Bombay to Poonah, or the Inhabuleshwer Hills, as great inconvenience would result therefrom, Willoughby 1541–1547——Witness does not consider that having a separate Government of Bengal would affect the question as to the seat of the Supreme Government; in time the transmission of intelligence by electric telegraph will make it a matter of little importance where the Government may be, Millett 1715–1720——Calcutta possesses great advantages as the seat of Government, remarks with regard to Agra, Delhi, and Simlah, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough 2289, 2290——A change in the seat of Government from Calcutta would not be desirable, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2366

1 Evidence relative to the Constitution and Powers of the Secret Committee

The powers of the Secret Committee, which had previously been limited to cases of peace or war, or negotiations with native states and princes of India, were in 1834 extended, Melvill, 4——Observations with respect to the Secret Committee, nature and jurisdiction of this Committee, how far any enlargement of the powers and jurisdiction was made by the Act of 1834, ib 30 83——Improvements suggested in the constitution and powers of the Secret Committee, advantage of maintaining this Committee as a channel of communication with the Government of India, ib 31–33 80–87——The Court of Proprietors cannot call for any papers which are in the Secret Committee, until those papers have been laid before the Court of Directors, ib 63–73——Manner in which despatches which pass through the Secret Committee are recorded and deposited, ib 64, 65

Remarks relative to the length of time that matters are kept within the province of the Secret Committee, it may occasionally happen that subjects are kept too long by them, in which the necessity for secrecy has ceased, Melvill 90–105——Reference to the case of the papers relating to the occupation of Scinde, the Punjaub, and Affghanistan, periods they were retained by the Secret Committee, ib 93–102——Great advantage has accrued

accrued to the public service from keeping matters relating to the administration of a newly conquered province within the jurisdiction of the Secret Committee, Melvill 103–105 ——Selection of the members of the Secret Committee by the Court of Directors from among their own number, ib 117–119——The operations against Affghanistan were commenced and completed, and all the expenses incurred, whilst within the province of the Secret Committee, and before the result was communicated to the Court of Directors, ib 120–123

Explanation of the duty and limited power of the Secret Committee, Shepherd 716–721——How far it is desirable that the Secret Committee should have the power to send certain despatches to India without the knowledge of the Court, and to keep those despatches secret from the Court for many years, Sykes 1761——Opinion that any important secret might safely be entrusted to the twenty-four directors, proof of such safety in the instance of Lord Ellenborough's recall, which was kept secret even through the annual change in the direction, ib 1774, 1775——It is essential that the orders of the Secret Committee should be signed by the Chairman and Deputy Chairman, in order that they may see that the subject matters are within the jurisdiction of the Secret Committee, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2392, 2393

2 Connexion between the Secret Committee and the Board of Control, the Committee should have the power of dissent from the Orders of the Board

In the business called secret, the Board of Control has the absolute power of giving orders, which the Secret Committee are bound to carry out, the only objection that the Committee can make is, that the orders so given are not within the provisions of the law, Melvill 124–137 166–169——Opinion as to the effect of giving power to the Secret Committee to make any communication upon any question of war or otherwise which is now kept secret for a considerable period, ib 182, 183——Witness does not think it advisable, in the case of the Secret Committee declining to sign a despatch, that they should have the power of making an appeal, or of entering a protest upon the Board's orders, ib 211——Evidence as to the course adopted with regard to secret despatches, Waterfield, 530–560——All despatches sent out to India by the Secret Department are recorded at the India Board, and there is a similar record at the India House, ib 580–609——Witness never knew any evil arise from the indiscretion of anybody connected with the Secret Department at the India Board, ib 609——No delay occurs with regard to despatches sent through the Secret Committee, course of proceeding in settling these secret despatches, ib 675–677

Remonstrances may have passed between the Secret Committee and the Board, against keeping any matters in the Secret Department that did not properly belong to it, Waterfield, 678–680——Suggestion that the Secret Committee should have the power of recording their opinions when they differ from the Board of Control, Shepherd 717–719 ——The Secret Committee incur no responsibility in the case of important diplomatic questions, or of peace and war, such matters rest almost exclusively with the President of the Board of Control, Sir T H Maddock, 1294–1298——Opinion that the Secret Committee, if they thought proper, should be empowered to enter their dissent, and to give their reasons for so dissenting from any order of the President of the Board of Control, which they are by law obliged to transmit, Sykes 1761–1763 1777——Remarks on the connexion between the Board of Control and the Secret Committee, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge, 2384——The Secret Committee should have the power of recording their dissent to orders of the President of the Board of Control, which they are obliged to transmit to India in their own name, ib. 2386–2391

3 Objection to giving the Committee the power of officially recording their Remonstrance against the Orders of the Board

The Secret Committee may write a letter to the President of the Board upon the subject of any orders which he may direct them to send to India, but witness would not give the Committee a power of officially recording a remonstrance against them, Right Hon the Earl of Ellenborough, 2266–2269

Shepherd, John (Analysis of his Evidence )—Has been Chairman of the East India Company on three different occasions, 705, 706——Opinion as to beneficial working of the system adopted at the India House for administering the affairs of the Indian Government, 708——The system pursued with regard to the public despatches ensures a careful revision of all the proceedings of the local Governments, 708——Advantages resulting from all papers and documents being sent home for the surveillance of the Court, 708–712——Differences of opinion between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors are generally settled in communications between the President and the Chairs, 713

Course pursued by the directors when a despatch comes down to the Board so far altered as to require a remonstrance, 713——Opinion that the system of proceedings of the Court of Directors and the Board of Control is the best that can be devised, 714——Advocacy of the system of " P C," as facilitating business and saving time, 714——Mode of dealing with despatches which demand prompt and immediate attention, 714, 715——Explanation of the duty and limited power of the Secret Committee, 716–721——Suggestion that the Secret Committee should have the power of recording their opinions when they differ from the President of the Board of Control, 717–719——Opinion that men of eminence have only to come forward to be elected directors, allusion to the case of Mr Butterworth Bayley in proof of this opinion, 722–724.

A reduction of the present number of directors would be most prejudicial to their efficiency and independence, 725——Of late years the directors have been principally Indian, an infusion of English members is very desirable, 726——Necessity for the chairman being a good man of business, 727——Advantages that would result if there were a quorum of the Court necessary to conduct the proceedings, 729——Mode adopted by the Court in appointing members to the several Councils of India, 730–732——Course pursued with reference to the appointment of Governor-general or Governors of presidencies, 733

[Second Examination ] Opinion that in the system of education pursued at Haileybury more time should be devoted to European subjects, and less time to the study of Oriental languages, 734 788 et seq——As regards Addiscombe the present system of education is very perfect, 734 824——The custom of distributing the patronage of the civil and military services chiefly to the sons of the Company's servants is very beneficial, 735——As regards the voting of the Court of Proprietors, it would not be desirable to extend this power to those holding stock in the Company's loans, 736——Opinion that no benefit would arise from giving the power of voting to servants of the Company who had served in India for certain periods, 737 740——Such a privilege would double the numbers at present entitled to vote, 738

Opinion that only a small proportion of the retired public servants of the Company are holders of India stock, 741——The relative powers and authority of the proprietors and directors

directors of the East India Company are governed by the Charter of Incorporation, 742——Any alteration in the present authority with respect to the choice of directors and proprietors of the Company could only be made by Act of Parliament, how far such an interference could be justified, 743-747 750-752——The proprietors make bye-laws for themselves and the directors, 748——These bye-laws cannot affect the mode of choosing the directors, such mode being defined by Act of Parliament, 749

The reason why many men of eminence have not become directors is attributed by witness to their apprehension of the canvass, 754——Mr Mountstuart Elphinstone had every facility for becoming a director, if he had not refused office in England, 754——Similar facility with regard to Lord Metcalfe, whose services were required by Her Majesty's Government, 754——Out of thirty directors six go out annually by rotation, 755——On the recommendation of the Court these six ex-directors are almost invariably re-elected, 756-763——Power of the Court of Proprietors to discuss the affairs of India at the quarterly courts, 764-766——Opportunities which a director has for serving on any one of the three committees of the direction which he may prefer, by exchanging with another member, 767, 768

Opinion that more than eight members of the Court attend daily at the India House, 769——The directors may engage in any pursuit independently of the Company's business, witness believes that other occupations increase their efficiency as directors, 771——The power of the Court to dismiss or recall any of their servants is most essential, 772-775——Further reference to cases requiring prompt attention from the directors, the introduction of railways into India being a most important question, required great consideration, 776, 777——The Court of Directors may come to any resolutions they please upon matters originating in the Secret Department, 778, 779——Witness has no objection to an annual review in Parliament of the affairs of India, 781

Voluminous nature of the papers sent home from India, the diaries are very complete, and are carefully deposited with the records, 782-786——Importance of these collections, it is not advisable to circumscribe them, 787——Further evidence respecting the system of education pursued at Haileybury College, 788-819——Nature of the test applied to students at Haileybury, 796, 797 801-804——Opinion that the test at Addiscombe is as high as that at Woolwich, 820, 821——At Addiscombe the engineer and artillery appointments are prizes, cadets who fail in obtaining such appointments get commissions in the infantry, 822, 823——The Court of Directors appoint the professors at Addiscombe and have the sole power of removing them, 825, 826

The President of the Board of Control has a vote on the appointment of the Lieutenant-governor of Addiscombe, 826——Witness cannot see the advantage of selling any portion of the patronage of the Court, 827——Great disadvantage would result from the patronage being transferred to the Queen's Government, 828——The present patronage possessed by the President of the Board of Control is a matter of courtesy, 830——Opinion that the civil servants of the Company have no cause to complain against the operation of the patronage, 831——The power of changing the system of education at the two colleges rests with the Board of Control and Her Majesty in Council, 832, 833——Reference to the appointment of Mr. Escombe from Westminster School, 834, 835

No admission to the colleges can be obtained without a nomination from a director or from the President of the Board, 836——Due consideration is given to the claims of meritorious old servants, opinion that to give a certain number of appointments with reference to such claims would act prejudicially to the officers of the Company, 837, 838——A system of self-election of the directors would be open to great objection, 839

Simlah Great delay in the transaction of business caused by the occasional visits of the Governor-general to Simlah, a distance of 2,000 miles from Madras, the object sought to be attained by the Act of 1833, namely, the centralization of power in a single controlling authority, is thus entirely defeated, Right Hon Lord Elphinstone 2105

The system of Government in India has been greatly improved by the last Charter Act, which confines the power of general and local legislation to the Supreme Council, Sir T H Maddock 1159——It is not desirable that a member of the civil service of Bombay should be one of the members of the Governor-general's Council, Sir G R Clerk 1360——Opinion that members from each presidency would be of great service to the Governor-general in Council, Willoughby 1524——Grounds for the opinion that it would be an advantage if the Home Government were to attach to the General Council a member from each of the minor presidencies, Millett 1599-1608 1698. 1708-1710——The Governor-general in Council may assemble the Supreme Council of India, not only in any part of the presidency of Bengal, but in any part of the Indian territory, ib 1713. 1717——It would not be desirable to add a civil servant from each of the presidencies of Bombay and Madras to the Council of the Governor-general, Right Hon Viscount Hardinge 2361

Sykes, Colonel William Henry, F R S (Analysis of his Evidence)—Served in India from 1804 till 1831, 1721——Is now a director of the East India Company, 1722——Witness gives the progress of a despatch through the Court to show that the efficiency of the Court would be materially impaired by any diminution of its number, 1723, 1724——The Court is divided into three Committees, the financial, home, and naval, the political and military, the revenue, judicial, and legislative, and probably in no other government on earth are all questions that arise more thoroughly sifted, 1723——New plan suggested by witness with reference to the method of electing the directors, 1725 et seq

The right to vote, which is at present restricted to holders of 1,000 l stock, might be extended to those representing 500 l stock, 1725——The adoption of witness's plan would probably insure an early seat in the direction to distinguished Indian servants, while men eminent in civil life at home would be brought in to preserve the ratios of classes, 1725, 1726——An Act of Parliament should be passed to meet the different questions in the system proposed for the election of the Court, 1728–1730——Ground for the opinion that the present mode of election deters many proper candidates from offering themselves to the proprietary, 1732, 1733

The change made by the last Act in allowing proprietors to vote by proxy has been beneficial, on the principle that it enlarges the constituency, and renders the action of the knots of interests less influential, 1734——The expenditure of a candidate for a seat in the direction is very great, and is occasioned by travelling about the country, keeping committees, and having a permanent clerk to keep his books, 1735–1743——Witness's election cost him 2,228 l, he was seven years about it, and stood two contested elections, the refreshments for the committee were the only expense attending the actual election, 1735, 1736, 1738, 1741——Witness never heard any imputations of bribery at an election, 1742

The members of the committee are generally proprietors, and their services are gratuitous, 1744, 1745——Witness has never suggested to the Court his plan for the election of directors, a similar plan has been found to work beneficially in the Royal Society, 1747–1749, 1751——The proposed system of election would not compromise the power of the proprietors to vote as they thought fit, but the recommendation of the Electoral College would make the chances of any other candidate very small, 1750, 1751——Seven years is a very long time for a canvass, but is not above the average period, 1752–1755——How far the Committee of Bye-laws have the power to carry out witness's plan if they deemed it advisable, 1756–1758

Opinion that the distribution of patronage by the directors is fair and just towards the families of the servants of the Company, reference to a statistical statement prepared under witness's instructions, on the 15th November 1843, in proof of the justice of this opinion, 1759——The proposal for selling a certain number of cadetships would be derogatory to the Government of India and to the directors, and would not be acceptable to individuals, 1760——How far it is desirable that the Secret Committee should have the power to send certain despatches to India without the knowledge of the Court, and to keep those despatches secret from the Court for many years, 1761

Opinion that the Secret Committee, if they thought proper, should be empowered to enter their dissent, and to give their reasons for so dissenting, from any order of the President of the Board of Control, which they are by law obliged to transmit, 1761–1763, 1777——Further opinion that, if the Chairs had had the power of recording their sentiments and of consulting their colleagues in Secret Court, the Afghan war might never have taken place, the responsibility would then have rested entirely with the President of the Board if he acted in opposition to what might have been the universal sentiments of the directors, 1764, 1765——By this proposed power being given to the Chairs, witness contemplates a moral, and not a legal, check upon the Board of Control, 1766, 1778——From the commencement of the Afghan war till its termination, a period of three years, the proceedings adopted were never communicated to the Court of Directors, and the expenses are not rightly known at the present time, 1768–1772

The Court have no knowledge whatever of the origin, progress, or present state of the war in Burmah, 1773——Opinion that any important secret might safely be entrusted to the twenty-four directors, proof of such safety in the instance of Lord Ellenborough's recall, which was kept secret even through the annual change in the direction, 1774, 1775——With regard to the proposal for reserving a certain number of seats in the direction for eminent individuals in the Indian service, the practical difficulties would be very great, and considerable jealousies would arise, 1776

[Second Examination]—There would be 180 additional voters if the qualification were reduced from 1,000 l to 500 l, but if it were conceded to holders of stock to vote upon 500 l, no doubt there would be a considerable increase, 1780——Opinion that the Court of Proprietors are a very useful body, inasmuch as to a certain extent they stand between the Government and the Court, 1781——A quorum of from thirty to forty proprietors, including

the directors, would be very essential for a proper consideration of all questions before the Court, suggestions for establishing this quorum, 1781, 1782 1786–1790——In all other respects, the Court of Proprietors is well constituted in its powers and usages, 1783——Great variations in the numbers of proprietors attending the Court upon the discussion of different questions, 1784, 1785

With regard to the relations existing between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors, witness questions whether the formidable powers of the President of the Board are in accordance with the spirit of the free institutions of this country, 1791——Opinion that the President of the Board of Control has a power to dip into the home treasury of the East India Company for political purposes; reference to a return before the House of Commons in support of this opinion, 1791 1795–1798——Instance in which the Governor-general might act in direct opposition to the known sentiments of the Court, and, as a consequence, of the President, exercising the power at his disposal, 1791.

With regard to the recall of the Governor-general, the Court of Directors should undoubtedly retain their present power, 1791–1793——Opinion that the Crown also should possess the same power of recall which they have at present, 1794——The mode of education at Haileybury is very useful, but from its exclusive nature, a higher intellectual standard, by the study of law and political economy, might be obtained from the universities, 1799–1801 1808, 1809——Opinion that the study of Oriental languages is carried too far at Haileybury College, 1799——With regard to the Military College at Addiscombe, there is no establishment in Europe which does its work more satisfactorily, 1799——How far any distaste might be imbibed against the civil service of India if the young men were to associate with those who were to be engaged in home appointments, 1802–1804

At Addiscombe there are four terms, and the whole is comprised in two years' study, Hindostanee is the only Oriental language taught, 1805, 1806——However much the President of the Board of Control may consult his colleagues on all important matters relating to India, the Board should still be fenced round with as many moral checks as possible, 1813, 1814——Opinion that the duties and powers of a Secretary of State are not so rigidly secret as those of the President of the Board of Control, 1815, 1816——Further reference to the investigation of business by the different committees of the Court, showing that it is not expedient to diminish the number of the directors, 1817–1820

With regard to the transaction of business between the Board of Control and the Court of Directors, there is in many cases great despatch, 1822——Objection to the "P C" mode of conducting business, as necessarily prejudging questions, whereby the committees may have to run counter to the conjoint opinions of the Board and the Chairs, 1823–1825 ——Manner in which the Chairman and Deputy Chairman of the Court are elected, 1826–1839——Witness cannot understand the use of the ballot by the directors for the election of their Chairs, proposal for its abolition, 1832–1839.

Taylor, Colonel Thomas Matthew (Analysis of his Evidence)—Brevet Colonel in the Indian army, has been in the service forty-three years, 1983——Witness gave his assent to the memorial presented to the Court of Directors complaining of the distribution of patronage as regards the servants of the Company, 1984 2032——He did so entirely in deference to what he believed to be the opinions and sentiments of a number of officers whose rank and character entitled them to respect, and not from any conviction of his own as to the expediency of such a memorial, 1985, 1986 2005–2024——Witness concurs in some of the opinions expressed in the memorial, though not in all, 1987——The present mode of conferring the patronage is very unsatisfactory, objectionable nature of the present practice of urging claims upon individual directors, 1988–1991

Witness's experience would not lead him to state that the claims of the servants of the Company have been disregarded by the directors in respect to patronage, 1992——If the restriction which at present exists to preferring claims to the Court of Directors, as a body, was removed, it would be satisfactory to the service, 1993 2026–2028——If applications were admitted, supported by the Commander-in-Chief, and perhaps by some of the superior officers, it would remove one cause of dissatisfaction, 1993——Any regulation to distribute a certain amount of the patronage amongst the military servants of the Company would not be beneficial to the service, as it would close the door to any other description of application, 1994, 1995. 1999 2009–2020——The present mode of nomination has not worked prejudicially to the military service in India, 1996.

Failure of officers of merit in obtaining appointments for their sons may be regarded as

as the exception rather than as the general rule, 1997, 1998——The Court of Directors as a body has no power of distributing patronage, it being divided in certain proportions among the members, 2000-2004——Inconvenience of the present mode in which persons who have claims from their public services have to make applications for appointments, it operates to exclude the applications of a considerable number of most deserving men, 2025——When witness assented to the memorial he supposed that it would be presented to the Court of Directors only, and made no further use of, it would not have been proper to have addressed any memorial or petition direct to the House of Commons, 2029-2032.

1. Generally:

Previously to 1834 the proprietors could only vote by ballot personally, which was secret voting, under the Act then passed they were allowed to vote by proxy, that is, open voting, the result of this has been largely to increase the number of votes given, Melvill 4——The change which took place in the right of voting under the Act of 1834 was an improvement, ib 175-177——It would not be advantageous to allow civil and military servants of long standing to vote without being holders of stock, ib. 178——Opinion that no benefit would arise from giving the power of voting to servants of the Company who had served in India for certain periods, Shepherd 737-740——Such a priviledge would double the numbers at present entitled to vote, ib. 738——The change made by the last Act in allowing proprietors to vote by proxy has been beneficial, on the principle that it enlarges the constituency, and renders the action of knots of interests less influential, Sykes 1734——There would be 180 additional voters if the qualification were reduced from 1,000*l.* to 500*l* ; but if it were conceded to holders of stock to vote upon 500*l*, no doubt there would be a considerable increase, ib. 1780.

Waterfield, Thomas (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Senior clerk in the Political and Secret Departments of the Board of Control, 516-518——Paper submitted to the Committee of the House of Commons on Official Salaries, by Lord Brougham, in 1850, explanatory of the system adopted by the Board of Control, its constitution and its duties, read, remarks thereon, 519-523——The only alteration made since that period is the reduction of the number of junior clerks from thirteen to twelve; 524——The money necessary for the maintenance of the Board of Control comes from the East India Company, as authorized by the Act of Parliament, and is limited to 26,000 l a year, 525 621——The amount drawn in 1851 was 23,200 l , 526——If the Court of Directors were to refuse to transmit a despatch, the Board of Control would have no other power than that of applying for a mandamus to compel them to do so, 527, 528 561. 688-692.

With regard to previous communications, they are merely suggestions and alterations passing between the Chairman and the President of the Board; there is nothing authoritative till the proposed despatch is in the form of a draft, 527——Length of time which usually elapses between the receiving the first previous communication and the return of the approved draft, in the case of an ordinary despatch, 529——Evidence as to the course adopted with regard to secret despatches, 530-560——All instructions for the Government of India must proceed from the Court of Directors or the Secret Committee; the East India Company is the only authority known in India; the President of the Board of Control cannot send out instructions, 561——There has never been any meeting of the Board of Control according to the provisions of the Act 3 & 4 Will. 4, such a Board has never been formed, 562-567. 623

Board of Control, 568-574——All despatches sent out to India by the Secret Department are recorded at the India Board, and there is a similar record at the India House, 580-609——Witness never knew any evil arise from the indiscretion of anybody connected with the Secret Department at the India Board, 609——The President of the Board of Control carries on an uninterrupted correspondence with the Governor-general of India, but this is entirely private and is not recorded, 610-618——On the appointment of a new President possibly the ex-President may communicate such letters to him as a matter of courtesy, 614-618

The sums requisite for defraying the charges of the Board of Control are obtained from the India House, by the President certifying every quarter that a certain amount is necessary for the expenses of the Board, 619-622——The undrawn amount of the sum that is annually allowed to the Board of Control merges in the revenues of India, 624, 625——With regard to the political powers of the Board of Control, the Act of 1833 made very little alteration, 626, 627——The great alteration made with regard to the powers of the Board of Control in the Act of 1834 was, that the Act gave to the Board a control over the home treasury of the East India Company, 627——Increase in the business of the Board since 1830, 628——Duties of the paid Commissioners of the Board of Control who were abolished by the Act of 1833, 629, 630

Remarks relative to the substitution of two Parliamentary secretaries by the Act, for one Parliamentary secretary and an assistant secretary, 631-634——Recurring to that system, and having an assistant secretary without any Parliamentary duties, would not facilitate the transaction of business, 635-637——With regard to the Political Department, there are not many of the previous communications returned from the Board of Control without some alteration; the alterations suggested by the Board are generally adopted by the Chairs, 638-640——Evidence as to the delay which arises from the system of previous communication, the only mode of expediting the despatches is by abolishing this system, but it is the general opinion that such a course is not desirable, 641-650

Grounds for the opinion that no inconvenience arises from the change of the secretaries to the Board of Control at the same time with the President, and that no advantage would result from a permanent assistant secretary being appointed, 651-660——Frequency of great trouble being experienced in obtaining a second signature, in addition to that of the President of the Board of Control, to communications, no advantage results from such second signature, it is a mere formal signature, and takes no responsibility from the President, 661-662——The delay resulting from the system of "P C" is counterbalanced by the advantage of the more strict examination of the despatch, there can be no check without some delay, 663-674——With regard to despatches which relate to subjects of pressing importance, previous communications are at times dispensed with and the transaction expedited, 665-674

No delay occurs with regard to despatches sent through the Secret Committee, course of proceeding in settling these secret despatches, 675-677——Remonstrances may have passed between the Secret Committee and the Board against keeping any matters in the Secret Department that did not properly belong to it, 678-680——Giving power to the President of the Board of Control to send despatches direct to India, would alter what has evidently hitherto been the design of the Legislature, namely, that the Court of Directors should ostensibly be the governing body of India, 681, 682

The East India Company are acting as trustees for the Crown, having command over all the public servants in India, 682-686——Under the last Act the Board of Control have power over every part of the expenditure of the East India Company, with the exceptions laid down by the Act, 693-704——Any proposition to expend money, however small the amount, must be submitted for the Board's decision, frequency of the Board declining to accede to, and proposing to diminish, the grants, 696-704

1. Generally:

Previously to 1834 the proprietors could only vote by ballot personally, which was secret voting, under the Act then passed they were allowed to vote by proxy, that is open voting, the result of this has been largely to increase the number of votes given, Melvill 4——The change which took place in the right of voting under the Act of 1834 was an improvement, ib 175-177——It would not be advantageous to allow civil and military servants of long standing to vote without being holders of stock, ib. 178——Opinion that no benefit would arise from giving the power of voting to servants of the Company who had served in India for certain periods, Shepherd 737-740——Such a priviledge would double the numbers at present entitled to vote, ib. 738——The change made by the last Act in allowing proprietors to vote by proxy has been beneficial, on the principle that it enlarges the constituency, and renders the action of knots of interests less influential, Sykes 1734——There would be 180 additional voters if the qualification were reduced from 1,000*l.* to 500*l*, but if it were conceded to holders of stock to vote upon 500*l*, no doubt there would be a considerable increase, ib. 1780.

Waterfield, Thomas (Analysis of his Evidence.)—Senior clerk in the Political and Secret Departments of the Board of Control, 516-518——Paper submitted to the Committee of the House of Commons on Official Salaries, by Lord Brougham, in 1850, explanatory of the system adopted by the Board of Control, its constitution and its duties, read, remarks thereon, 519-523——The only alteration made since that period is the reduction of the number of junior clerks from thirteen to twelve, 524——The money necessary for the maintenance of the Board of Control comes from the East India Company, as authorized by the Act of Parliament, and is limited to 26,000*l* a year, 525. 621——The amount drawn in 1851 was 23,200*l*, 526——If the Court of Directors were to refuse to transmit a despatch, the Board of Control would have no other power than that of applying for a mandamus to compel them to do so, 527, 528 561 688-692.

With regard to previous communications, they are merely suggestions and alterations passing between the Chairman and the President of the Board, there is nothing authoritative till the proposed despatch is in the form of a draft, 527——Length of time which usually elapses between the receiving the first previous communication and the return of the approved draft, in the case of an ordinary despatch, 529——Evidence as to the course adopted with regard to secret despatches, 530-560——All instructions for the Government of India must proceed from the Court of Directors or the Secret Committee; the East India Company is the only authority known in India; the President of the Board of Control cannot send out instructions, 561——There has never been any meeting of the Board of Control according to the provisions of the Act 3 & 4 Will. 4, such a Board has never been formed, 562-567. 623

The present Board of Control only consists of the President and certain ex officio members, 563-579——Remarks relative to the appointment of the secretaries of the Board

Board of Control, 563-574——All despatches sent out to India by the Secret Department are recorded at the India Board, and there is a similar record at the India House, 580-609——Witness never knew any evil arise from the indiscretion of anybody connected with the Secret Department at the India Board, 609——The President of the Board of Control carries on an uninterrupted correspondence with the Governor-general of India, but this is entirely private and is not recorded, 610-618——On the appointment of a new President possibly the ex-President may communicate such letters to him as a matter of courtesy, 614-618

Remarks relative to the substitution of two Parliamentary secretaries by the Act, for one Parliamentary secretary and an assistant secretary, 631-634——Recurring to that system, and having an assistant secretary without any Parliamentary duties, would not facilitate the transaction of business, 635-637——With regard to the Political Department, there are not many of the previous communications returned from the Board of Control without some alteration; the alterations suggested by the Board are generally adopted by the Chairs, 638-640——Evidence as to the delay which arises from the system of previous communication, the only mode of expediting the despatches is by abolishing this system, but it is the general opinion that such a course is not desirable, 641-650

Grounds for the opinion that no inconvenience arises from the change of the secretaries to the Board of Control at the same time with the President, and that no advantage would result from a permanent assistant secretary being appointed, 651-660——Frequency of great trouble being experienced in obtaining a second signature, in addition to that of the President of the Board of Control, to communications, no advantage results from such second signature, it is a mere formal signature, and takes no responsibility from the President, 661-662——The delay resulting from the system of "P C" is counterbalanced by the advantage of the more strict examination of the despatch, there can be no check without some delay, 663-674——With regard to despatches which relate to subjects of pressing importance, previous communications are at times dispensed with and the transaction expedited, 665-674

Willoughby, John Pollard. (Analysis of his Evidence)—Has served in India upwards of thirty-two years, list of the various offices filled by witness, 1473——Evidence in detail describing the mode in which public business is transacted in the Bombay Government, 1474——Explanation as to the manner in which appointments are made in the Bombay Presidency, the patronage vests in the Governor general, but is checked by the Council, manner in which the patronage is distributed, 1475——Doubts as to whether it would not be expedient that this patronage should not be vested avowedly in the Governor alone, when the responsibility would be exclusively his, 1475——Perhaps in no service in the world is real and superior merit more likely to be sought out and rewarded than in the services in India, 1475. 1494.

As far as relates to the covenanted branch of the service, the knowledge that no man's advancement depends on the will and caprice of those in power, operates very beneficially, 1475 1494——Opinion as to the effects of vesting the Central Government with the present power of control over the subordinate presidencies of India, 1476——It has produced both good and evil, on the one hand, by checking any tendency to extravagance, it has promoted economy, 1476——And on the other hand, it has transferred to a distant authority the decision of questions in which the local authority is much more likely to form a correct judgment, 1476——Some of the restrictions carry out the system of centralization too far, and in fact, in practice, the strict observance of the law, which was for a time attempted to be enforced, has been evaded, 1476

The rule of referring all matters of finance, however trifling in amount, to the Governor-general in Council, is inconvenient and productive of delay, 1476——Course adopted to remedy this inconvenience, 1476——It is in measures relating to local wants and improvements that the minute control of the Central Government of India is most severely felt, instances in illustration of this statement, 1476——On the whole, witness is of opinion that in matters of finance a greater latitude of discretion might with advantage be allowed to the subordinate Governments, provided they are competent and efficient, 1476——The legislative power being exclusively vested in the General Government of India was a wise provision of the Act of 1833, as it insures uniformity where such is desirable, and a more perfect and matured deliberation in the enactment of laws, 1477

More efficient measures are required to insure speedy and accurate translations of the laws into the native languages, objection made to the Macaulay Code, that it will be exceedingly difficult to make an intelligible and correct version of it in the native languages, 1477——The delay experienced in the correspondence with England is not greater than may be expected from the double authority that exists, first, of the Court of Directors, and then of the Board of Control, 1478, 1479——There is no doubt that it is highly important that that check and control should be maintained, 1480——Opinion that the ship diaries might be curtailed, if not dispensed with altogether, 1480, 1481 ——The expense of copying and examining papers in India has increased yearly, on account of the increased business arising from the copies of the numerous papers that are sent home, with every document however minute, 1480.

Manner in which the members of the Council of Bombay are appointed, and detail of the duties of the Council, 1482, 1483——Great utility of the Councils, objections to their abolition, the question of the abolition of Councils was warmly discussed in 1833; it was urged that the measure would confer on the Governor arbitrary authority, 1484 ——The arguments used on that occasion, and especially by Lord Ellenborough, are unanswerable, 1484——Arrangements made for the conduct of public business when the Governor is absent from Bombay, powers exercised by him when absent, 1485.

Frequency of the absence of the Governor of Bombay from the seat of Government; inconvenience and great expense which result from the absence of the Governor, 1486–1489——Observations with respect to the power of voting possessed by the Commander-in Chief, he almost invariably votes with the Governor, and this is a great objection to his having a vote in the civil administration of the country, 1490–1493—— He should not vote except on military and political questions which may be connected with military operations, 1492, 1493——Efficiency of the civil service of India; taken collectively, the officers are much more efficient in the discharge of the peculiar duties devolving upon them than could safely be calculated upon under any other system that witness has seen suggested, 1494

The members of the civil service of India are subjected to tolerably severe tests in regard to their qualifications, both in this country and in India, 1494——As regards the important qualification, a knowledge of the native languages, the civil service has greatly improved of late years, 1494——The system of promoting by seniority often operates prejudicially; the rule should be relaxed to a far greater extent than is now customary; indeed, witness would advise its almost entire abolition in the higher grades, 1494—— Evil effects of officers in the civil service of India being in embarrassed circumstances; suggestion that any one who is seriously involved should be deemed disqualified for such employment, 1494——To the general purity and integrity of the civil service, and to its intolerance of any thing approaching to corruption, witness can bear the strongest testimony, 1494.

[Second Examination.] Opinion that the scale of remuneration that the civil service receives is liberal, but not extravagant, considering the extent and nature of the duties and responsibility devolving upon the Indian functionaries, 1495–1498——Observations with respect to the system of education at Haileybury; defects in the system, and remedies suggested, 1499 1517–1519——Too much attention is paid to Oriental literature at Haileybury,

Haileybury, for the acquisition of which there are greater facilities in India than in this country, 1499——The power of recall of the Governors being vested in the East India Company is most undoubtedly essential for the maintenance of good government in India, 1500——At the present time men of great Indian experience are deterred from being candidates for the East India direction by the present mode of election, and the system of canvassing, 1501——Remedies suggested for removing the existing evils, 1502–1504

The scale of salaries in Bombay is much lower than in Bengal, there is no reason why the salaries should remain unequal at those two presidencies, 1505–1509——Witness sees no objection to the plan adopted in Bengal of the civil servants purchasing out the senior servants in order to accelerate promotion, 1510–1516——Opinion in favour of the entire abolition of the system of seniority in the higher grades, 1520——Remarks relative to cases of promotion of officers for merit in place of seniority, witness would leave it in the discretion of the Government whether the reasons of the supercession should be communicated to the officer superseded, 1521–1523——Opinion that members from each presidency would be of great service to the Governor-General in Council, 1524.

Necessity for the Governor, in his absence from the seat of Government, being always attended by two councillors, 1525, 1526——The members of the Council at Bombay are appointed for five years, great advantage would result from prolonging the term of office, 1527, 1528——How far the members of the Council have the right of recording their opinions on all subjects, 1529–1532——Right of appeal exercised by the Government servants to the Home Authorities, if they suppose themselves aggrieved by any act of the subordinate Governments, 1533, 1534——A member of Government is functus officio when absent from the seat of Government, 1535, 1540——During the absence of the Governor he exercises all his powers, the patronage is dispensed by him just in the same way as when he is present, 1536–1538——Manner in which the opinions of the members of the Council are taken, 1539, 1540

Objections to the removal of the seat of Government from Bombay to Poonah, or the Inhabuleshwer Hills, as great inconvenience would result therefrom, 1541–1547——Opinion that Bombay pays its own expenses; this opinion is founded on the annual statements prepared by the Accountant-general, there are many items of general expenditure charged on Bombay which do not belong to the presidency, and which cause the accounts to show a deficit, 1548–1550——Observations as to the manner in which the Indian navy is controlled, 1551, 1552——The employment of military men in the civil service, as at present, undoubtedly tends to promote the efficiency of the service in general, but witness would hesitate before giving the Governor-general and the Governors a power of appointment of military officers to any situations in the civil service, 1553–1556

Very little publicity given to the proceedings of the Government in India; opinion that advantage would result from greater publicity being observed therein, the present system of Government is almost inconsistent with the existing free press, 1557–1578——At present the laws are not properly translated into the native languages, amendments proposed in the present mode of translating and promulgating the laws, 1579, 1580——Remarks upon the subject of the department of public works at Bombay, the department is very susceptible of improvement with reference to efficiency, 1581–1583——Opinion that henceforward it should be a rule, that if a person was seriously involved in his pecuniary circumstances, the authorities in India should consider that a disqualification for high offices, 1584–1586——How far it is advisable that the public servants, having duties to perform connected with their public offices, should be allowed to act as directors of private banks, and in other responsible situations of that kind, 1587–1589.

Works, Public. By law the consent of the Governor-general is not necessary in the case of expenditure for public works, but the rule has been laid down by the Court of Directors, Prinsep, 877——Witness considers the control of the Governor-general in Council necessary with reference to public works, although the interference of the Government of India has been complained of by the subordinate presidencies, ib. 878–880——Remarks upon the subject of the department of public works at Bombay, the department is very susceptible of improvement with reference to efficiency, Willoughby, 1581–1583——The amount of expenditure on public works by the Governor-general is limited to 50,000 rupees; any larger amount must receive the sanction of the Home Authorities, Millett; 1667–1669——With regard to improvements at Madras, the
